Activity across the Southwest appears to be more abundant than ever. The El Vaquero in Laredo is getting set for a show on July 31st. On stage will be Maya’s Follies with guests from Houston, San Antonio, Laredo, and Monterey. After hours will be held that night in Nuevo Laredo at the Normandy Bar & Restaurant. It should be a fun filled night.

The Dallas Old Plantation will feature Jan Russell and the Pantomanics this Sunday night for the show.

The Houston Old Plantation is getting set for the Miss Gay America Pageant and the Mr. Gay Texas Pageant in the next few weeks.

The Bayou Landing will be hosting the Mr. Gay America Pageant Labor Day Weekend.

The After Dark Book Shop and Film Galleries have finally opened after a long wait for many Houstonians. Stop in and see the “difference.”

TANGIERS now has shows in the round every Thursday night. Special guests appear weekly, so check out their ad for who’s who!

Sorry to cut things short, but deadlines are past and have to be kept. But before I close, for those of you wondering just who is on the cover, well, he’s a California transplant now living in Houston. Kenny Welch is 20, a Taurus, and loves to dance. In fact he can be found most evenings at the Second Sun in Houston.

GAY TELEVISION ON THE WAY

Gay television shows may be hitting the viewing screens in the near future.

KATADIN Productions in Houston are surveying businesses for their ideas and views concerning the possibility of gay TV programs in the near future. After all, Mary Hartman has a gay "couple" that now appears regularly before a national television audience.

But the format as to being news, documentary, variety, comedy, or even a combination of all is still undecided.

The production company is soliciting ideas from individuals as well as businesses as to the format of the show. If you have any ideas concerning how such a program would be received across the country, the length of the show, what you'd like and would not like to see, or your ideas in general, send them to Steve Fredericks, c/o KATADIN Productions, 5400 Memorial, Suite 504, Houston, Texas 77007.

HOW IT HAPPENED

An Oklahoma man was about to tell a highway patrol officer how his car happened to hit a telephone pole, but he never got the chance.

Fifty-nine year old Woodrow Creekmore had swerved off the road, and struck the pole head-on, but emerged unhurt.

However, as Creekmore stood next to his wrecked auto, recounting what had happened to the police man, the pole suddenly fell over, hit him on the head and killed him.

POLICE HARASSMENT BEGINNING

Can police harassment of gays be beginning once again in Texas? Only a few weeks back gays were taken from the Kon Tiki Baths in Galveston, and several raids have been taking their toll on some Houston bars.

This past Tuesday morning, Tooter's Restaurant, Houston's only gay eating establishment, appeared to be open to police harassment after a year of solitude. During the peak hour of business, Norman Thompson, co-owner of Tooter's, was leaving the parking area with friends in an automobile belonging to a friend. Realizing that they had left their cigarettes in the restaurant, the car was driven out of the drive-way, around the corner, and into the drive on the side street. Immediately after turning into the parking lot a police car containing Officers J. Wright and H. C. Burks pulled into the lot behind them with their red light flashing.

After removing all occupants from the car, a member of the group was asked if he had any "dope" on him or if any was in the car. After telling the officers that there was none on them or any in the car, the officers continued to use the theory of "dope" to hold the people outside of their automobile.

By this time, more police cars had arrived on the scene, a total of eight before it was over, and blocked both drives entering and exiting from the parking area. The officers refused to move their vehicles.

Lisa and Norman were shortly arrested thereafter, never being told what they were charged with. After being taken downtown, Lisa and Norman found out they had been arrested for "interfering with the law." During the course of the action at Tooter's, Norman was being held at the car by the police and never moved, and Ms. Thompson only tried asking what was happening in the parking area of which she leases.

Norman and Lisa were booked at 4:04 a.m. and were released on bail at 5:13 a.m. after posting bond of $102.50 each.

Because this action by Officers Burks and Wright came at a prime business hour for the restaurant, and the fact that Officer Burks was involved with the harassment of the eating establishment before, it appears that there was no motive for the action of the policemen except that of harassment. The driver of the vehicle or other occupants were released and no one else was taken into custody.

I won't sleep in your bed because the sheets don't match?

The Chamber of Commerce named it the "City of the Future." And American International Films appears to have taken the slogan seriously. In looking for a site to shoot _Futureworld_, American International settled on Houston because of some of the city's impressive futuristic sites.

_Futureworld_, which was released a few weeks ago was filmed in part in Houston's Jones Hall, NASA, St. Luke's Hospital, and in the offices of the Houston Chronicle.

The movie features Peter Fonda as Chuck Brown, a newspaperman, and Blythe Danner as Tracy Ballard, a TV commentator on an assignment in the futuristic city of Delos. Delos is the mythical city of _Westworld_, a movie a few years back starring Yul Brynner in which robots went out of control and killed vacationers at the resort.

The storyline of _Futureworld_ revolves around the "new" Delos, which is trying to overcome the adverse publicity about the resort. Our two stars find everything at Delos is too perfect... even for the place "where your wildest dreams come true." Something evil is happening in _Futureworld_. And it is possibly jeopardizing the entire world!

According to studio releases, _Futureworld_ is escapist entertainment; designed to take the viewer out of his hum drum world for a couple of hours.

The most part of the film was done at NASA, in some areas never before allowed to be used for sets. Delo's Central Control Room takes over the famous Mission Control Room, from which the four pleasure worlds - Futureworld, Romanworld, Spaworld, and Medievalworld - are observed and controlled. The enormous Hyperbaric Chamber, a 160 foot tall vacuum where spacecraft are tested, and the Anechoic Chamber with its black pyramids designed to eliminate all sound, are opened to the cameras for the first time.

The staff and operating theatre of Dr. Denton Cooley were used for an elaborate medical sequence. One scene even enlists the laser complex used for cancer treatment at M. D. Anderson Hospital.

The overall sets used and technical equipment used as backdrops would have been too costly for the film company to duplicate. The technology for _Futureworld_ is not really there to amuse the people as most believe. But the controversial people who move and shake the social structure are being reproduced and replaced by robots, or "clones."

_Futureworld_ lives up to being a sci-fi movie. After all, it could never possibly happen, could it?

Louise Lasser, the Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman soap opera star who recently pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine, reports that she does not use the white powdered drug.

Lasser, arrested on May 1st for cocaine possession and recently ordered by a judge to enter a drug education program, insists that a fan had given her the cocaine four months before police found a small vial of the drug in her handbag.

Says Lasser about her bust: “I’m not a case user, and I hadn’t used the stuff. But you can’t plead innocent if you’ve got it on you.”

Stanley Kubrick’s 2001 A Space Odyssey is slated to be aired for the first time on television this fall.

N.B.C. reports it has acquired the property rights to Kubrick’s film, as well as The Sunshine Boys and other MGM movies.

Even the cost of being possessed is high these days.

Exorcist two producer John Boorman reports that his sequel to the original 1975 Exorcist movie about possession is being budgeted for a whopping $10 million.

Boorman adds that there will be no devilish dialogue emanating from actress Linda Blair, who played the part of a possessed child in the first Exorcist film.

This time it will be Richard Burton, playing the part of a reformed priest, who becomes possessed by Satan in the same Georgetown house where little Linda had her first bout with the devil.

The movie, titled Exorcist Two: The Heretic, will be rated PG.

Singer Neil Diamond was booked last week for possession of marijuana after Los Angeles police raided his Bel Air home and found an ounce of the illegal weed.

Sixteen narcotics officers from the Los Angeles sheriff’s detail combed Diamond’s home for three hours, finding only the ounce of pot. The singer was described by police as being “cooperative” during the search.

Diamond is currently doing a show in Las Vegas.
LISTEN TO WHAT???

One of the biggest hits in Japan is a long playing record of -- not rock, or even classical music -- but instead, the sounds from inside a mother's womb.

The L.P., which is reportedly selling over 100 copies per day in Japan, is sold commercially under the title Lullaby Inside Mum.

When played, the record emits a gentle thud-thud-thud sound of heartbeats actually recorded inside the womb of a mother, just before the delivery of her baby.

The recording was developed by Professor Hajima Murooka of Tokyo's Nippon Medical School. Murooka says that in tests made at the school, the record immediately stopped nearly all of the 500 babies from crying, and put one third of them to sleep in minutes.

The L.P.'s gentle heartbeat noises reportedly take an average of just 34 seconds to stop a typical infant's sobs.
