ACTION MOVIE ARCADE... THE LARGEST
ARCADE IN HOUSTON!
FROM THE EDITOR

The From the Editor is fairly short this week, but not due to any lack of activities across the Southwest. It seems that a viral infection has taken its toll on the staff of the paper, and duties have been shifted from desk to desk.

The Mr. Gay America Pageant is still on for Labor Day weekend in Dallas. The event will be held at 2609 N. Pearl St. (the old Bayou Landing).

Talent night has begun once again at the Houston OP. So every Tuesday night look for those old gowns to be pulled out of the closet and to be in use.

Coming up in the not too distant future, The Locker, Houston's only leather bar, will be presenting Carnival on September 23rd. So get ready!!!!

In Houston, there's a new hair styling salon for you guys and gals. Alans Landing at 4532 Beechnut is now open, so call for an appointment.

Word has come to me that some people are having trouble finding R U 1 2, that quaint little bookstore in the 900 Lovett complex. Well, its in Sweet 104 downstairs, and believe me, it's well worth finding!

And while we're speaking of Representatives of the Gay Rights Chapter (GRC) of Southern California's American Civil Liberties Union met with Lt. Governor Mervyn Dymally on August 4th in the State Senate Chamber. Dymally pledged that he would cast the deciding vote if legislation outlawing police-initiated sexual solicitation arrests were deadlocked in the State Senate. Last year the Lt. Governor flew back to California to cast the tie-breaking vote which enacted California's Consenting Adults Law.

Dymally spoke to the question during a day long ACLU work session in which approximately 75 individuals, representing chapters from all over Southern California, lobbied in Sacramento for ACLU supported legislation. The GRC participated in the lobbying session at the specific invitation of the Southern California affiliate. The affiliate extended the invitation even though the chapter is in the formative stages as an acknowledgement of ACLU's commitment to gay rights and as a demonstration of ACLU's hope that this first Gay Rights Chapter would establish a precedent among other affiliates across the nation. Of the nearly 80 participants in the day long session, seven represented the GRC directly, and a number of others affiliated with other chapters identified themselves to GRC as gay ACLU members.

"Gay men and women have long been in the forefront of ACLU activities," said Dick Caudillo, a member of the GRC contingent, "but this new chapter represents the first time we are able to function as a cohesive special interest unit within ACLU. The formation of this chapter can do nothing but strengthen the GAY COMMITMENT to American civil liberties."

GAYS ON THE TUBE

Television programming is taking a turn away from hetero-chaunism -- the idea that males are attracted only to females and women only to men.

Each of the three major networks is now scheduling a regular series with its own male homosexual character. On CBS's Bob Newhart Show, in which Newhart plays a psychiatrist, one member of a therapy group he leads is gay.

A new entry at ABC, The Nancy Walker Show, will feature a role portraying a homosexual actor.

NBC plans to cast its token gay
as a hairdresser on a show called Snip.

Meanwhile, the popular Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman will reintroduce a gay couple, Ed and Howard, who were in some episodes last season.

In New York, the Gay Media
Task Force, which has been agitating for more outfront homosexual roles on television, was quoted as being "very pleased"
with the new season's portrayals.

MOST POPULAR?

A survey by The Ladies Home
Journal has found that Charles Manson and Linda Lovelace are listed among the top 50 individuals
most admired by American children.

Manson and Lovelace joined with such other notables as President Ford, O. J. Simpson, and Chris Evert on the list of notables selected by 500 children in grades
five through twelve.

A New York psychiatrist, Dr.
Mario Rendon, hired by The Journal to evaluate the choices, was able to find a plus in the fact that a convicted mass murderer and a porno movie star were named: Dr.
Rendon says the poll reveals "the diversity of values in the United States as opposed to Russia and China."
Dear Mel:

I just ran across the NUNTIUS for the first time up here in Arkansas and just wanted to say how much I enjoyed it. You seem to carry something of interest for everyone from gay news to advice to unusual news stories.

I just want to enter my subscription to the paper so I won’t miss any issues. Thanks for a enjoyable paper.

Dear Mel:

I have noticed in the past that you have asked for opinions on different things happening around the gay community, but no responses ever appear. Why???

Gene Shalot

Austin, Texas

Dear Gene,

It seems that reader apathy as far as actively participating with a pen in hand sometimes falls behind when it comes to controversial issues. Columns such as Aunt Sofa and Rhoda Blablitt draw the largest response I have ever seen from readers.

It’s not that we don’t print replies that come in from controversial issues, it’s just that few if any replies come in at all. I sometimes feel dismal about it, but the response regular running columns get make it all worth.

SORRY, IT WON’T WORK

Two British subjects have beaten the pot law in London by convincing a court that marijuana leaves are perfectly legal in the British Isles.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws reports that Britain’s law specifically outlaws “the flowering or fruiting tops of any plant of the genus cannabis.”

The two defendants persuaded the court that marijuana leaves are not covered by the statute, and that it was up to the government to find pieces of flower in their stash. When prosecutors couldn’t, the case was dismissed.

Incidentally, that same argument won’t work in America: U.S. Federal statutes specifically outlaw all parts of the cannabis sativa plant, even the stems.

Are you ready for a pornographic version of the Wizard of Oz?

Well, Bill Osco, who gave us the X-rated version of Alice in Wonderland, is planning his next sex-filled childrens tale.

Kristine Debelle, who played Alice in the last flick, will take the lead in the new Wizard production.

Who says you can’t beat a dead horse?

Mark Lester, whose movie Tricia’s Wedding mocked then President Nixon, will soon be dishing out another film making fun of the 37th president. This time, the movie, called The Way He Was, portrays Nixon at work and play, right up to the end.

Describing how they came up with the screenplay, producer Lester told Variety, “We sat around trying to be as outrageous as possible.”

The picture cost $300,000 to produce.

It’s now official: There will be a full length Star Trek movie.

Filming will start next spring, but already Paramount Pictures has lined up Gene Roddenberry, creator of the TV series, to produce the flick.

Even before a screenplay is approved, however, designs are being worked out for a new Enterprise spaceship, updating the

EARLY NUCLEAR BLAST

(ZNS) Did a nuclear-powered spacecraft blow up over central Siberia in 1908?

Journalist John Baxter and Hollins College Professor Thomas Atkins, in a bizarre new book called The Fire Came By, are suggesting that a 1908 explosion over Russia in which shock waves were recorded as far away as Washington D. C. and in England, was the result of an interplanetary space crash.

On June 30, 1908, a giant cylindrical object blazed across Russia, exploding with a brilliance several times that of the sun, scorching vast forests, and causing an intense “black rain” to pour down over hundreds of square miles.

Baxter and Atkins write that scientists have found documented evidence of high radiation levels in tree rings of that period, and that plant life in Siberia has genetically changed since the strange explosion. The authors cite evidence that patterns of both felled and standing trees in the blast area are amazingly similar to those found in the wake of an atomic blast.

In addition, the two authors state, Soviet reports of the blast indicate that the object exploded about three miles above the ground, with a force as great as 1500 times the blast that demolished Hiroshima.

The two writers propose that the 1908 crash, which has continued to baffled scientists, was the result of a nuclear powered spacecraft from another planet attempting to make an emergency landing on the Earth.

MALES STILL AHEAD

One of the upshots of the women's movement is that more and more males are taking jobs as secretaries.

The U. S. Bureau of Labor statistics reports that the number of male secretaries in the United States has jumped from 17,000 in 1965 to 29,000 ten years later.

The Labor Department reports, however, that male secretaries, along with men in most other lines of work, are still paid more than their female counterparts.

SINGING IN THE RAIN

creator of the TV series, to produce the flick.

Even before a screenplay is approved, however, designs are being worked out for a new Enterprise spaceship, updating the original built 11 years ago. That original, incidentally, is now being exhibited at the National Air and Science Museum in Washington.

A Hollywood film company has given in to pressure and has come out with a movie with a spelling error in its title.

Crown International Pictures announced a few months back that it was distributing a movie about cheerleaders, to be called Pom Pon Girls. The words "pom pon" in this case are spelled "pom pon." According to Webster's dictionary, a "pom pon" (with an "n") refers to the cloth or floral arrangements used by cheerleaders.

According to Crown Pictures, however, every theater that has received the announcement, changed "pom pon" to "pom pom" -- the second word also ending with an "m". The company adds that there was no way it could convince its theaters that "pom pon" -- with an "n" -- was the correct word. As a result, the film is officially titled The Pom Pom Girls.

Incidentally, pom pom -- with an "m" -- is an anti-aircraft cannon, and there is no cannon fire in The Pom Pom Girls.

SINGING IN THE RAIN

After weeks of drought, Keith Davies stripped and performed a "rain dance" in the nude.

His civic spirited act brought rain to the parched community of Kidderminster, England, but got mixed reviews from the general public. Davies, 35, was fined $18 for indecent exposure.

IF YOU DRIVE . . . . .

(ZNS) If you drive, don't smoke. And if you smoke, don't drive.

That may become the slogan for a new campaign to warn marijuana smokers that driving under the influence can be fatal.

Robert DuPont, Director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, reports researchers can now show a link between cannabis consumption and driving ability. DuPont says the government will launch a new program "to build marijuana into the highway safety campaign now largely restricted to alcohol."
