Kenneth Vance—new administrative director of Houston's

NEW COUNSELING CENTER DIRECTOR

HOUSTON — Kenneth Vance has been appointed to the position of administrative director of the Montrose Counseling Center, TWT NEWS has learned from Marion Coleman, board of director's chairperson.

An extensive search had been conducted to find a new director to lead the center in expanding its activities in the community, Coleman explained. That search took the board of directors to New Mexico, where the center found Vance, then program manager for the State Department of Health and Environment, an impressive position.

When asked by TWT NEWS of his primary goals, Vance zeroed in on providing "a full time staff of mental health professionals to serve the needs of the gay, lesbian and bisexual community of Houston.

"I would like to see us in a position of removing the stigma of mental health services," Vance explained.

Another goal of the center is not to be another full service clinic, but rather to be a community oriented agency addressing the needs of the community which it was originally organized to serve.

AUSTIN MORE LIBERAL THAN NYC

NEW YORK — There are many ways in which New York City is unlike Austin, Texas. Although New York is bigger, Austin is more liberal.

NEWS

Whereas the citizens of Austin voted last year to defeat an anti-gay housing ordinance, New York last week defeated a gay rights bill.

The defeat for one million homosexuals in the country's largest city came after a tumultuous 15-hour hearing where 202 people spoke for or against the legislation. In the end, the General Welfare committee voted 6-3 to kill the bill.

About fifty cities, including Austin, and one state, Wisconsin, have passed gay rights legislation, TWT NEWS observed.

THRF MONITORS GAY DONORS

HOUSTON — The Texas Human Rights Foundation (THRF) has announced to TWT NEWS that it is participating in a national program to monitor policies restricting blood donations by gays.

A temporary restriction on gay donors of blood was placed on several Houston plasma centers last December. In January, Dallas buckled under pressure from the Center for Disease Control. And, just last month, Austin followed suit.

The crackdown came after an infant in San Francisco contracted AIDS through a blood transfusion from blood donated by a man who later died of AIDS, TWT NEWS recalled.

Anyone with definitive information concerning this subject should contact THRF president, M. Robert Schwab, in Houston at (713) 526-9139.

DALLAS DOCTORS PUSH 21.06 APPEAL

DALLAS — TWT NEWS has learned that a group of lawyers and doctors from this city contend that homosexual sex acts may present a public health hazard by citing the recent epidemetic among gays of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

The group, known as Dallas Doctors Against AIDS, is a non-profit group of fifteen members. A local dentist, Keith Thornton, is president, while a Richardson internist, Klem Mueller, is vice-president and Dallas lawyer Don Campbell is secretary/treasurer.

That group has filed a motion with the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals asking to be allowed to provide evidence that ties AIDS to sexual relations between men.

They have also asked to join in the State's appeal of 21.06, feeling that the legalization of sodomy in Texas would "possibly affect the rest of society (non-gay) such as in the case of blood transfusions," Mueller told the Dallas Morning News. He added, "I'm not the expert."

Don Baker, plaintiff in 21.06, expertly responded that "these people are confusing civil rights with this disease."

"The motion is outrageous, absurd and ridiculous," Jim Barber, Baker's attorney, explained.

Baker noted, "It's ludicrous that you ought to criminalize the conduct of half a million people (gays) in Texas to prevent a few from getting a disease. If that were legitimate, we would have to ban all intimate contact between people just because they might get a disease," he concluded.

Barber's courtroom strategy includes filing affidavits from medical experts in rebuttal of the assumption of the group of professionals.

Meanwhile, Jim Mattox, the new Attorney General, has yet to decide whether he will pursue the case. A brief will be due on March 14, TWT NEWS learned.

AMARILLO GAY HEALTH SEMINAR

AMARILLO — Androgyny, in cooperation with the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center, presented a gay health seminar on AIDS last Tuesday, March 1 at the Unitarian Fellowship.

Speaker for the evening was Dr. Philip Periman, medical director for the center. Among the topics covered were Kaposi's Sarcoma, AIDS, herpes, hepatitis and venereal diseases.

The seminar marked the beginning of an intensified effort between health care facilities and the Amarillo gay community resulting, hopefully, in better health care being provided for gays.

"Currently, very few doctors here understand our needs," Robert Schroeder told TWT NEWS. "In return, gays are very reluctant to open up to their physicians."

AIDS FORUM
PACKS SHERATON

HOUSTON — The response to and attendance at the AIDS Forum held at the Sheraton Hotel in downtown Houston on February 22 was much more than expected, as over 700 gathered to hear Dr. Peter Mansell update the latest data on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

"We don't know the causes of AIDS," Dr. Mansell, associate director of M.D. Anderson Hospital's Department of Cancer Prevention, said at the outset. "It's difficult to keep up with all the rapid changes."

"We don't know if AIDS is contagious, but we do know that there is a 45% mortality rate," he explained.

"Although we don't know exactly what causes AIDS, we do know that those who have it are susceptible to cancers, malignancies or opportunistic infections such as pneumonias, herpes and fungus diseases," he continued.

A chart graphically showed that it has affected 65% gays, 9% bisexual, 16% heterosexual and 6% female. What began as mostly a gay disease has now spread with ripples to other groups. In fact, the gay percentage is dropping.

About 100 cases of AIDS have been diagnosed in Texas. Of the cases at M.D. Anderson Hospital, 10% involved Kaposi's Sarcoma and 25% involved opportunistic infections.

In a question and answer follow-up, Dr. Mansell stated, "There is some evidence to suggest AIDS is transmissible from one person to another in human blood, but it is not hard and fast.

"We know that marijuana has an adverse effect on one's immunity system and we know that those who have had sexually transmitted diseases are more susceptible," he explained.

He also answered a question about semen. "There's proof that if you inject semen intravenously into your system, your immunity system is damaged," Dr. Mansell stated. A member of the audience disagreed by responding, "But people have been injecting semen for centuries without getting AIDS."

In response to a question as to what can be done to recharge one's immunity system back to normal, Dr. Mansell noted that there are some drugs which can help and which have the capability. Some are experimental and are being used under a critically controlled environment.

"There are skin tests and blood tests one can take, but they are expensive," he added.

When asked by TWT NEWS about the latest theory that AIDS might be caused by a virus, Dr. Guy Newell stated, "If it turns out to be caused by an infectious agent, the chances are it's going to be a virus."

The forum was sponsored by CHE and KSC and televised by KHOU-TV, Houston's CBS affiliate.

DENTON, Texas — Resolved: That Homosexual Practice is consistent with a Christian Lifestyle. That was the topic of a major debate hosted by the North Texas State University Philosophy Department last Saturday night, February 26.

Affirming was Dr. Ralph Blair, founder of Evangelical's Concerned of New York. Denying was Evangelist Dan Billingsley of the University Church of Christ in Denton.

Over 1,000 attended, with half being gay. Many came by bus from Dallas and Fort Worth. Even members of Houston's A Capella Chorus made the pilgrimage. "Twice as many attended as expected," David Henderson of TWT NEWS in Denton reported.

The debate centered around scriptures commonly used to renounce gays and the Church of Christ's (mis)use of them.

Blair asserted that homosexuality as we know it today is never mentioned in the Bible and "Church of Christ members should not speak of what the Bible is silent on but keep mouths shut."

Blair further contended that the 27 citations of Sodom referred to pride and inhospitality, never to homosexuality.

Church of Christ members have developed opinions on homosexuality from other areas of society and abused scriptures to substantiate their views, Blair also stated.

Billingsley strongly disagreed in a typical "hellfire and brimstone" stance. He said love doesn't cover all by citing "a father engaging in sex with his 15-year-old son out of love."

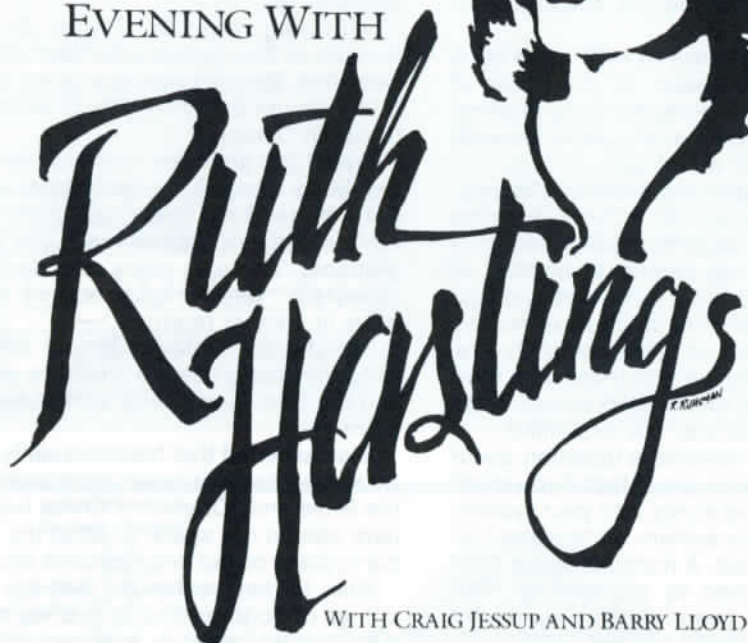

"No homosexual will inherit the Kingdom of God," he said, and advised gays to "take a cold shower" for salvation.

After the debate, which was televised by PBS, gays regained their composure with a campus reception hosted by TGLTF and GLAD, followed by a party at TJ's, Denton's only gay bar, Henderson reported.

NOT GUILTY CASE DISMISSED

HOUSTON — When you are arrested and you know you are innocent, it pays to fight the case in court. Just ask John Pegram, manager of the Midnite Sun. When he and several other people were arrested in January at the Chicken Coop, he got a lawyer and demanded a trial by jury.

"I was arrested before I had even ordered my first drink," Pegram explained. Being sober and innocent of the charge of "public intoxication," Pegram pleaded not guilty.

On February 24, Pegram appeared in City Court 3 with his lawyer, but "the seven officers involved who were subpoenaed to appear as witnesses never showed for the 8:00am trial," Pegram expounded. The case was dismissed and Pegram was returned his bond money.

Chicken Coop manager, Jerry Jones, and bartender, Roxie Starr, are also fighting their charges, with a court date set for late March. Most likely, they too, will win.

SAGA ELECTS NEW BOARD

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Gay Alliance (SAGA) has announced new nominees to the board of directors as unanimously elected at the February 7 meeting at Sunset Boulevard.

The eight new members are Larry Cooper, Claire Vinck, Toby Johnson, Franklin Rains, Jennifer Emms, Dub Dougherty, Rudy Gonzales and Lynn Joyce.

The newly-elected join four current members, David Mitchell, Nancy Hauser, Barbara Havard and John Stewart.

SAGA has signed on to sponsor three plays from New York whose repertoire is exclusively gay. My Blue Heaven is the opener on March 28. If This Isn't Love follows the next night and A Perfect Relationship concludes on March 30. All three are to be held in the Bonham Ballroom, Vinck, also of Community Productions, informed TWT NEWS.

By supporting the plays, you'll support SAGA, which receives 10% on all ticket sales, TWT NEWS learned.

GAY ALAMO VOTE TO HAVE CLOUT

SAN ANTONIO — At last, Texas' second largest city has a viable gay political caucus. A group of this city's gay citizens has formed a non-partisan organization for political action to be called the Alamo Human Rights Committee (AHRC). A goal of the group will be to increase political awareness and activity among the city's gay community.

Projected activities include voter registration, candidate screening and fundraising for the campaigns of those who support gay rights. The impetus for becoming active at this time is the San Antonio City Council elections to be held April 2, TWT NEWS learned.

In a voter registration drive held in the fall of 1982, no more than 16% of those registered had addresses within the same city area. Since there are no neighborhoods in San Antonio where gays constitute a major portion of the population, a gay bloc vote, should there be one, would be difficult to document.

AHRC feels that fundraising and political contributions may be the most effective way to exercise gay political clout in San Antonio and Bexar County. The group's first fundraiser is tentatively scheduled for the weekend of March 12-13.

With the formation of AHRC, San Antonio becomes the last large gay community of Texas to endorse sympathetic candidates. The circle comprised of Houston, Dallas, Ft. Worth and Austin is now encompassing San Antonio.

Gay voters in San Antonio will no longer have to go the polls—as they did last November—without knowing for whom to vote. TWT NEWS enthusiastically welcomes AHRC.

COMMENT

In this column, readers exchange ideas with other readers and with our editor in a public forum. Address all letters to: Comment, TWT, Montrose Ventures Building, 2205 Montrose, Houston, Texas 77006. All letters become the property of TWT and must be signed (if you don't wish your name printed, please specify). And PLEASE keep your letters short.

Herpes Is No Joke

Dear TWT:

This letter is born out of frustration, anger, and a little fear. . . . [Recently], I decided that I needed a diversion and chose to patronize a local club. . . . I noticed an attractive man sitting near by and cruising me. Feeling my ego being boosted I cruised back.

Well, when the heat of passion was cooled, we began making conversation and exchanging phone numbers, etc., and my partner drops the line, "By the way, I have herpes." My first reaction was tighten my fist and swing, but before the first blow was landed he made the statement, "I was just kidding."

Besides feeling a little insulted, I am perplexed with the issue—was he really "kidding?" Although I can't alter the fact that I may have been exposed, perhaps I can change the attitude that making such a "joke" is funny. I suppose what has really been victimized here is my own naive opinion that people realize that if they choose to participate in the liberal sexual environment, they have a responsibility to themselves and potential partners.

A sexual encounter, no matter how anonymous it may be, also bears a degree of respect for the other person(s) who become involved. In this case, where a person knows they have a sexually transmitted disease, I would hope they could exercise enough self-control during the critical stages and not perpetuate the disease. If my "friend" was truly "kidding," then there is still the responsibility, and joking about such is just plain cruel. I hope this letter is read by those who have joked in such a manner, and perhaps change their attitude . . . and I pray no one else will be the victim of such a cruel joke.

Drag Retort

Dear TWT:

Miss Charles Vise just wears me out!!!

A black person can call another black person a "nigger," and usually get away with it. And a "drag queen" can call another drag queen a drag queen. But a white person should never call a black person a nigger. And the people who do not associate with "female impersonators" should not call us drag queens. We hate it! Get the message.

Drag queens were here long before today's gay society was established. And when the straight public runs all over us, we'll still be here. Because I'll bet you all of my drag that the first person to physically defend our lifestyle will be a drag queen.

I have never been discriminated against (with my plucked eyebrows) by straight people—ONLY by other gay people. Most male gay bars discriminate against us, but not a man in full leather, who is just as much in "drag" as we are. Go in a men's bar right before they turn on the fluorescent lights at closing and 90% of the men will look like they work for "Max Factor." How dare they criticize us. What hypocrites. At this rate gay people will have their rights two days before hell freezes over.

The drag queens who give the gay society a bad name are the street drags (which I can be accused of being at times). But I do not steal or would not whore like the street drags do. I am a theatrical female impersonator, but if you ask me before a show, "What are you doing tonight," I'll tell you "I'm getting in drag," not "I'm getting in female impersonation attire." How stupid!! To those who don't like drag—fine. But I do. It's my choice. We are far from perfect, as all of us are. We should all work together, but don't, and we are all gay whether we are male or female. So let's stop the bickering, or we will become so divided that our enemies will have very little work to get rid of us. Remember Hitler.

God bless to all and all a good night.

—A WOMAN'S PLACE—

by Hollie Hollister

Love is life's greatest delight. And what happens when one falls in love? You want to show her the time of her life. This usually consists of many nights out, dinner, dancing (trip the light fandango?) and a smooch or two before the night is through!

Wow, what fun. I am always on cloud nine when some wonderful woman notices me and chooses to spend time with me. But I soon run out of money. Money, money, money. What does it all mean?

I have just recently met and "married" someone wonderful. And we have recently gone through Valentine's Day. And I was broke. Oh, how many trinkets I spied while shopping for that gift that would prove I cared enough to send the very best, and Hallmark just didn't have it.

Why Hallmark doesn't take advantage of the homosexual market in the card business, I don't know. But I did find a fabulous card at one of our very own gay businesses on the strip. There was no inscription in the card, which left me plenty of room to add my own erotic thoughts. And, I did . . .

There was no dinner out this time, and no money in my pocket to prepare a gourmet feast (I'm from Louisiana, and you know how we cook!). I went around for three days trying to get over my blues about money, and found I could only afford a dollar for a card, and 35¢ for a heart. Here I was with Ms. Wonderful and no money. Oh, how I thought of the money I wasted in the past and how I kicked myself for not being more thrifty.

Well, the evening came, and I was still feeling the pangs of guilt about no money. I arrived home about 7:30 and she was there. I dropped my briefcase and grinned. She grinned and asked how my day was. I laughed and sighed, "Well, there isn't much work out there right now, honey. There just isn't much work." She said she felt sure things would turn around soon and not to worry. She's so supportive; I hate it when she's "so supportive." I felt even worse about my el cheapo card.

But love is not measured by the amount of money one spends on another. Love is many things which cost no money at all. For us it is back rubs, foot washings, and cups of hot coffee while I write this column—these things are truly priceless. You cannot put a price on long talks at night which soothe fears, or a big bowl of popcorn while watching Linda Ellerbee on Overnight.

This Valentine's Day I gave a card, and received a card and a bottle of bargain Bordeaux from her, and we ate beans and rice, deliciously prepared, and the wine was savored. The light bill is paid, the rent is coming, there is food (humble, yet nutritious) on the table and warmth in our hearts. If you have to pay for love, then you are paying for prostitution. If love will last forever it will last through the hard times. Hard times are temporary and can be fun; creativity will make them easier. If you live through years of struggling and keep the joy within it, think how much more fun you will have when things turn around! Learning to make a wine rack rather than buying one, and making homemade chicken soup from bones is wonderful. Later on that wine rack which held numerous bottles of bargain Bordeaux will mean more when it holds bottles of rare wine in the future! Remembering the struggle will bring grins later on.

Believe me, your dinner guests will be wowed over being served your homemade chicken soup (perfected by now). After all, how many dinner parties are catered today? I would much rather be served an epicurean delight prepared by my host or hostess.

Hang in there, gang—Ronnie can't be in there forever. Or as a cup my splendid one gave me for Christmas says, "DON'T LET THE BASTARDS GET YOU DOWN!"

Adonis Garcia, by Luis Zapata; 208 pp.; Gay Sunshine Press, P.O. Box 40397, San Francisco 94140; softcover, $7.95.

Reviewed by David Fields

I looked up the word "picaresque" in the dictionary, unfamiliar to me as it was, and discovered these definitions: 1) of or dealing with sharp-witted vagabonds and their roguish adventures. 2) designating a style of fiction originating in Spain and having a roguish hero. In this case, our roguish hero is Adonis Garcia, an intelligent, free-spirited hustler in central Mexico City, presented to us in an intriguing format by Luis Zapata, one of the first authors from Mexico to have a novel reviewed here.

The format is as interesting as the content that fits into it. To preserve a colloquial, informal and intimate distance with the reader, Adonis always speaks in the first person, all of the novel is written in lower case and, instead of punctuation, spaces of various lengths set off his sentences, phrases and interjections. Though it is at first strange, the reader will get used to it quickly and will find it approximates more accurately in the reader's mind the directness and conversational quality of Adonis' speech.

Each chapter is named Tape 1, Tape 2, Tape 3, etc., showing us that Adonis is giving an interview about his life. Other first person accounts from hustlers in fiction form come to mind — Phil Andros and John Rechy's anti-hero. But Adonis is not embittered or left cynical by his experiences. He is positive, upbeat, off-beat and has a sense of humor that informs as well as entertains. Zapata reminds us that it is an interview through Adonis' various references to the recorder, when they will stop for a break and so on.

Adonis has a liberated view of people he deals with. He takes them as they come, and is realistic about himself and his future. His education is his major strength, as is his street-wise attitude. He is not afraid of love, but is aware of its dangers to his "no attachments" code that allows him to continue his trade.

He shares his life and an apartment with those who wish to remain his friends, and some who each think they are his lover. Everyone else but him is a transitory figure in any case, never developed as characters to any great degree. But this is mainly due to the nature of the novel; Adonis is telling us about his life, giving his thoughts directly to the reader/interviewer. For this same reason, the plot is connected only by the continuity of Adonis' thoughts and memories, as he reveals to us his experiences.

One more quick note about the format concerns the chapters' beginnings. Each contains a dream sequence; sometimes it is an actual dream, at times a daydream, other times the reader is not told how it fits into Adonis' psyche. Also at the beginning of each chapter is a quote from a Mexican or Latin author that Zapata uses to foreshadow what comes in the chapter. They are often philosophical or religious, demonstrating the range and sophistication of thought and education of modern-day authors in the Latin American countries.

The many references to people and places popular or well-known in Mexican culture and the capitol city itself open up a new world of information about our nearest neighbor nation for those who want to know more or want to go back to visit. What we learn about the culture helps us to understand our own, and we see the similarities to our own culture.

Luis Zapata was born in 1951, has a degree in medieval French literature and teaches at the National University of Mexico (D.F.). He has written one other novel previously, and his current one was published first in Mexico as El Vampiro de la Colonia Roma, in 1979. The prizes and honorable mention this most radical contemporary Mexican novelist has received there qualify him to be read and appreciated here in the United States, and aids a great deal to the civil rights struggles everywhere, but also now in Mexico when it needs it the most.

Adonis Garcia is entertaining, different and illuminating, a book not to be passed up.

TABLE FOR FIVE

TWO-HOUR LOVE BOAT

Reviewed by Harry Deutsch

He played a male hustler in Midnight Cowboy, a crippled vet in Coming Home, a boxer battling over the custody of Ricky Schroder in The Champ, and now Jon Voight plays co-producer for a bittersweet seafaring drama intended to entice the whole family. Mr. Voight stars as a divorced husband and long-distance father of three kids whom he invites on a dream cruise from New York to downtown Cairo. His ex-wife and her new man, who's long been accepted as ersatz dad, are both surprised and somewhat concerned over the extravagant excursion Voight has planned for the children, mainly because he has never been considered a candidate for Daddy of the Month, but partly because there seems to be the distinct chance for a war at sea.

Soon after the wonderful voyage has begun, we see some of the expected rifts and run-ins; however, they are overcome a little bit faster than is good for the picture. The dinner table on board, over which Mr. Voight presides, sports an extra chair. The reason, much to the kids' chagrin, is that dad has the specific strategy to fish for a date or more in the boat's cruisy atmosphere. Consequently, it should not come as a surprise to the viewer if at times you feel that you made the regrettable mistake of having tuned in to the Love Boat. The light comedy suddenly turns dramatic when Voight gets the message that his ex has expired in an accident. How do I tell my children, is the sad task he faces and winds up delaying for days.

First time feature director Robert Lieberman unscrupulously uses the Mediterranean postcard scenery as backdrop whenever possible, and some of the takes look more than a tad choreographed. Much of the talking is done inside the Colosseum, in front of the Acropolis or Egypt's Sphinx or next to other touristy hotspots. If you're aware of the fact that screenwriter David Seltzer has written other films with a BYOK-rating (Bring Your Own Kleenex) such as The Other Side of the Mountain and Six Weeks, you're bound to expect something similar in this case, and you won't be disappointed. A few of the scenes are tearjerkers without shame, but there are also passionate, touching moments. The children are not overly cute, yet lovably lifelike and, refreshingly, for the most part they do not talk like "mini adults." Roxana Zal, age 13, and Son Hoang Bui, 15, as the adopted Filipino son have fine screen debuts; the midget showstealer, however, is Robby Kiger, 9, as Truman, the core-third-grader who half-heartedly battles a learning disability. Marie-Christine Barrault is well cast as the possible occupant of the fifth chair at the table; she manages to avoid being seen as only an object in the game-playing world aboard the cruiseship. Richard Crenna is excellent as the children's stepfather. Jon Voight is quite credible in his bid to win the youngsters' hearts; he also seems out to gain the viewers' sympathy at the same time. Mr. Voight can certainly not be accused of understating his plight as a frustrated father.

Table For Five is not a bad film. It does, however, live largely under the pretense that the world is a postcard. The movie's loose ends are tied up with too little complication.

Yilmaz Guney's Yol, an extraordinary piece of work, can be viewed at once as a piece of art, a political tract and an ultimately dark portrait of human existence, but never as a simple indictment of a governmental regime or group of people. The film (the title of which translates roughly as The Way) was directed by Serif Goren from sketches made by Guney in a Turkish prison. A national idol, Guney has been Desperately clinging to the shoulders of her husband, Seyit death from exposure, in Yol.

Alli (TARIK AKAN), Zine (SERIF SEZER) attempts to fight off

active as an actor, director, writer, political dissident and, it seems, as a convicted murderer. A member of Turkey's intellectual left, Guney was convicted in 1974 for the murder of a right-wing judge. In prison, he smuggled parts of his scenario out so that an associate, Goren, could do the actual filming. Guney escaped in 1981, and his picture received the Palme D'or—along with Missing—as the Best Film at the 1982

Cannes Festival. In an interview, Guney relates how he created the film: "The scenario that was submitted to the censor was shorter than the real scenario. Indeed, there are things in the film which were never in the scenario, and which I was able, as I had planned, to create out of the editing process." But the Turkish authorities had the last word, however. Yol cannot be shown in Guney's homeland.

On one level, Yol is concerned with a group of prisoners, out on temporary leave from an island goal to settle debts with family members and enemies. Yet on a deeper level, the film deals with a country whose unspoken social restrictions mirror, and indeed help create, political restrictions of a most obvious kind. As a piece of propaganda, the film burns with a raw, defiant passion, and Guney moves a viewer through editing and at times melodramatic emotional content in his images. The photography by Erdogan Engin retains an editorial feeling throughout, and Guney distances himself from his characters to further enhance his conception. Yol works, however, as a piece of art because Guney is a reactionary with poetic vision. He condemns both Turkish society and government from his deep-rooted love of the country; the bleakly repressive order, where women have no control over their lives, where adultery is punished by imprisonment or death, and citizens are more than willing to follow the restrictions of the social and religious orders but are angered at the "repressive" political forces at work, are presented unflinchingly by Guney. Some audience members may find the treatment of women a force which invalidates the whole film. In particular, the scenes with Tarik Akan and Serif Sezer as husband and wife—an adulteress who by law must be killed—are especially ironic and brutal, more so by the fact that Turkish men can never be condemned for such an action. Yet I think Guney wants us to be shocked at the patriarchal society and the violence it creates even if he, in the end, cannot condemn wholeheartedly his people and the governmental regimes responsible for it.

Yol is a dark, uncompromising film which offers little in the way of solutions. Guney takes us on a journey through the physical landscape—from cities, to open country, and eventually through an icy wasteland—which is as torturous and painful as the twisted journeys his characters must take in their own minds. Yol's brutal, unflinching environment—moving from warmth to cold, light to darkness, and natural abundance to inhuman barrenness—corresponds to the searing, embittered world created in the minds of people at war with themselves.

Thomas Lanier Williams

When I first heard a radio announcement about the death of Tennessee Williams, my first reaction was neither shock nor sorrow; instead I felt an almost overwhelming urge to call Jim, a close friend who lives in New York City. Many times over the past several years our telephone bills have been enormous because of late night long distance conversations in which we discussed such intent matters as "the conversion of Mount Rushmore's colossal presidential effigies into likenesses of Reta Shaw, Mary Wickes, Eleanor Audley and Madeline Sherwood." Another of our favorite topics, and one which has come up frequently during our 15-year friendship is "how much influence did Tennessee Williams have on our intellectual development during our warped childhood?" This topic has held us for hours, perhaps even weeks if you consider it cumulatively, and during our most recent conversation I asked Jim: "Do you think we're all gay because we saw all those Tennessee Williams movies when we were children?" Jim replied with equal facetiousness: "I blame him for everything."

I suppose my point is that Tennessee Williams was once taken very seriously, and some of us, even though quite young and inexperienced, identified with some of his major characters, particularly those who were sad, lonely and frightened. We were probably too young to appreciate Williams' themes, but we could hear the poetry and we may have thought we recognized something of ourselves in those odd, vulnerable souls.

Now that Thomas Lanier Williams, the man who became Tennessee Williams, has passed into history, the eulogistic declarations of "greatest American playwright" sound a bit ironic and strange. The man who gave us The Glass Menagerie, A Streetcar Named Desire and Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, had little or no success with works he produced during the last decade or so of his career; his artistic reputation was maintained through revivals of his classics, including such lesser works as Sweet Bird of Youth, Summer and Smoke (which was revised as Eccentricities of a Nightingale) and Night of the Iguana. Another friend of mine, a professional stage director, tells me that the problem with "taking these works seriously" lies with casting: Nowadays where do you find performers of the magnitude of Laurette Taylor, Vivien Leigh and the young Marlon Brando?

I don't feel qualified to describe anyone as "the greatest American playwright," but I think it's safe to say that Tennessee Williams was the most "poetic" of American playwrights and that his words will continue to exert a large influence on American theater. In time, maybe some of his forgotten and overlooked works—such as Orpheus Descending, The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore, Kingdom of the Earth, Out Cry, In the Bar of a Tokyo Hotel and Small Craft Warnings—will find new and appreciative audiences.

Tennessee and Tallulah during a 1955 stage revival of A Streetcar Named Desire.

"What's straight? A line can be straight or a street, but the heart of a human being?"
Blanche DuBois, A Streetcar Named Desire

Bette Davis on stage in Night of the Iguana (1967), in a role inherited by Ava Gardner in the film version.

There are intervals when a life becomes clouded over by a sense of unreality, when definition is lost, when the rational will, or what passed before, has given up control, or the pretense of it. At such times there is a sense of drifting, if not of drowning, in a universe of turbulently rushing fluids or vapors.

The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone

Geraldine Page and Laurence Harvey in the 1961 film version of Summer and Smoke.

"Yes, I have tricks in my pocket, I have things up my sleeve. But I am the opposite of a stage magician. He gives you illusion that has the appearance of truth. I give you truth in the pleasant disguise of illusion."

Tom Wingfield, The Glass Menagerie

"Whoever you are—I have always depended on the kindness of strangers."

Blanche DuBois, A Streetcar Named Desire

Robert Redford and Natalie Wood in This Property Is Condemned, a 1966 film which Tennessee Williams disowned.

"Mendacity is a system that we live in. Liquor is one way out an' death's the other."

Brick, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof

"Oh, you weak, beautiful people who give up with such grace. What you need is someone to take hold of you—gently, with love, and hand your life back to you, like something gold you let go of—and I can! I'm determined to do it—and nothing's more determined than a cat on a hot tin roof—is there? Is there baby?"

Maggie, the cat, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof

Elizabeth Taylor (as "Maggie the Cat") feeling the heat in Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (1958).

Marlon Brando and Vivien Leigh in film version of A Streetcar Named Desire (1951).

"I never met a woman that didn't know if she was good-looking or not without being told, and some of them give themselves credit for more than they've got. I once went out with a doll who said to me, 'I am the glamorous type, I am the glamorous type!' I said, 'So what?'"

Stanley Kowalski, *A Streetcar Named Desire

"Such a pretty name for a disease. Sounds like a rare flower, doesn't it. Night blooming-dementia praecox."

Violet Venable, *Suddenly Last Summer

The legendary Laurette Taylor in the original 1945 stage production of The Glass Menagerie.

"I don't want realism. I want magic! Yes, yes, magic! I try to give that to people. I misrepresent things to them. I don't tell truth, I tell what ought to be the truth."

Blanche DuBois, *A Streetcar Named Desire

Elizabeth Taylor and the buns of "Sebastian Venable"—the gay cousin whose face is never seen in Suddenly Last Summer (1959).

Marlon Brando modeling wardrobe for 1951 film version of A Streetcar Named Desire.

Sue Lyon and Tennessee Williams on the set of the 1964 film version of Night of the Iguana.

"I don't ask for your pity, but just for your understanding—not even that—no. Just for your recognition of me in you, and the enemy, time, in us all."

Chance Wayne, *Sweet Bird of Youth

ENTERTAINMENT

TEXAS by Rob Clark

"The rafters in Houston's Windmill Dinner Theatre will ring with the fabled score and inspired lyrics of one of Broadway's most engaging musical fetchingly enhanced by one of Hollywood's most beautiful talents," it was announced by producer Molly Smyth. Yvonne DeCarlo, internationally famed star of film classics, will sing out as Mama Rose in the smash musical Gypsy, opening March 8 for a special limited engagement at Windmill. You also remember Ms. DeCarlo as "Lily" in the long running TV hit, The Munsters.

Yvonne DeCarlo

The Civil War is the setting for an inspiring study of one woman's perseverance through a tumultuous time in Dallas Theatre Center's Down Center Stage production of The Pride of the Brittons, now showing through March 19. The Pride of the Brittons, written by Kenneth Robbins, is a drama that follows Louisa Britton, a liberated woman living at a time that did not acknowledge the liberated female.

Alley Theatre has announced the cast for its Southwest Premiere production of Amlin Gray's comedy/drama How I Got That Story, which is scheduled to open on the theatre's Arena Stage, March 10 at 8:00pm, preceded by two bargain-priced previews on March 8-9. The play features just two actors, but they portray over 20 characters between them, in a format reminiscent of last summer's Alley hit, Greater Tuna. How I Got That Story will play through April 10.

Bottoms Up Revue and friends.

The cast of Breck Wall's Bottoms Up Revue literally hit the stage at Houston's newly remodeled Copa along with the "Fabulous Four" for a highly polished, professionally choreographed show. The "girls" have quite a reputation to live up to now.

The Broadway musical Annie returns to San Antonio's Majestic Theatre by popular demand March 8-13. A special party for the cast will be held at the Bonham Exchange on March 11.

Cast members kick up their heels every Friday and Saturday night in March, as Main Street Theatre presents the bawdy musical revue, El Grande de Coca-Cola. Showtime is 11:30pm and tickets are $5 each.

Mary Hooper (l) and other cast members of El Grande De Coca-Cola.

Two of the greatest comediennes of all time, Kaye Ballard and Imogene Coca, will combine their talents to appear onstage together for the very first time in a lively new comedy, Beloved Enemies, now running through March 27 at San Antonio's Fiesta Dinner Playhouse.

Kaye Ballard

Ms. Ballard is a formidable, talented actress, singer and comedienne well known to television audiences not only for her series, The Mothers-In-Law, but also for countless guest appearances on TV talk shows and sitcoms.

Ms. Coca's career has been equally legendary, having won three Emmy Awards. She also has two new films to be released this spring, Nothing Lasts Forever and National Lampoon Vacation '83 with Chevy Chase, and she is currently making guest appearances on the hit soap opera, One Life To Live.

Imogene Coca

A Perfect Relationship by Doric Wilson will make its first appearance in Texas at Cullen Auditorium, University of Houston, on March 10 and 13. Watch for a feature on all Community Productions shows in next week's issue of TWT.

San Antonio Performing Arts Association presents the outlandish Les Ballets Trockadero De Monte Carlo Monday, March 7 at the Theatre For Performing Arts. A cast party for the "Trocks" will be held at Bonham Exchange that same night, and FYI: I've seen these boys out of their tutus and some of them are H-O-T!

Ted Swindley, artistic director of Stages Theatre in Houston, has been chosen as one of the 15 people eligible to nominate the recipient of the Susan Smith Blackburn Prize to be awarded to the outstanding woman playwright of the year. Mr. Swindley is the only person from Houston to be chosen. Congratulations Ted!

KEYNOTES — Lena Horne: The Lady and Her Music is coming to Houston's Jones Hall for 11 performances, March 23-April 3. This is the smash musical which won the special Tony Award, the New York Drama Critic's Circle Award, the Drama Desk for Lena Horne, who was voted Best Actress in a Musical, and two Grammy Awards. In addition, Lena received the Handel Medallion, New York City's highest cultural award. You'll be missing a lot if you miss her show . . . so, don't miss it!

Lena Horne

The Turtle Creek Chorale, Dallas' popular eighty-voice men's ensemble, will offer its second concert this season on Friday and Saturday, March 18-19, 8:15pm at SMU's Caruth Auditorium. Stagestruck! will feature outstanding songs from stage and screen musicals with special arrangements by Kris Anthony and local arranger/performer Bill Keck. Call (214) 368-5500 for more information.

Houston's Montrose Singers, mens' chorus, has rehearsals every Monday night at Bering Memorial Methodist Church, choir room. For information call John-Michael Albert at (713) 749-2832. Watch next weeks' TWT for a profile on Mr. Albert.

Grace Jones hits Texas for three performances. The first two are at The Saint in Dallas, Monday, March 14 and Tuesday, March 15. Ms. Jones will then be at Houston's Copa Thursday, March 17. Did you catch her on the Grammy Awards? Didn't she crack-face with that outfit she wore? What really cracked a few was when Rick James said, "Stevie (Wonder), I wish you could see her hat."

A reliable source has informed me that the Tina Turner will perform at San Antonio's Bonham Exchange during Fiesta on April 24. Atta girl.

Nona Hendryx cancelled her show at The Saint, but Gloria Gaynor quickly filled in for a March 4 show. Welcome to Dallas, Gloria. Marlene Shaw will perform Friday, March 11.

As mentioned last week, Ruth Hastings, Craig Jessup and Barry Lloyd will be giving a benefit show Friday, March 11 at MCCR in Houston. The concert is underwritten and sponsored by the Diana Foundation and will benefit the Montrose Counseling Center and MCCR. This is Ruth's gift to all of us.

STUFF — Black Cardinal Press, a small publishing company devoted exclusively to publication of books and anthologies of poetry and short stories by gay writers, announces that it is now accepting submissions for its first annual poetry anthology. Deadline for submission is April 31, 1983. For information write to Black Cardinal Press, P.O. Box 31714, Tuscon, AZ 85751-1714.

The Houston Festival in the heart of downtown begins March 17 and goes through March 27. The ten days of festivities will spotlight local artists, performers and crafts. Here's your alternative to the Art Festival (which nothing will ever completely replace).

Divine has another movie in the near future called Beverly Hills, in which he will play an evil male role as well as a female role. Part of the movie will be filmed in Houston. Divine is doing extremely well in Europe at the moment, where his song "Shoot Your Shot" has gone gold in Holland and is No. 4 on the German charts. He has a new tune coming out called "Shake It Up."

FYI — The recent concert/benefit with Liza Minelli, Ann-Margret, Crystal Gayle and Marvin Hamlisch at Houston's Jones Hall was "the tea." Ann and Liza (especially) were fantastic. The private party afterwards at the Four Seasons Hotel simply reeked of money. I've never seen so many bugle-beads and baubles in one place before (they were real, too!). w by Bryan J. Guiot, M.A.; William A. Scott, M.S.W.; Walter Cadenhead, M.A.; Gary G. Treese, M.S.W.

Towards a Responsible Gay Lifestyle— A Preventive Mental Health Statement

This statement is not to promote fear or guilt—nor to dictate moralism. Our purpose is to recommend responsible, mature, informed and honest behavior among a community which is experiencing the threat of a frequently fatal disease. While medical scientists continue to study the biology of AIDS, this statement addresses the psychology of the attitudes and behavior of preventive health. Our words are directed toward a positive reaction to a bodily disease that we believe, as mental health professionals, to be related to the attitudes that we create about our mental and emotional lifestyles. Our commitment in this statement is to a quality of life for homosexual men and women that is a healthy whole.

During the past twenty years we have experienced, as an emerging group, a newly created freedom to be who we were meant to be. By our participation within the building of a sense of identity and commonality, we said no to our history of oppression. We created bars to dance and play. We used baths and bookstores to satisfy sexual desire—so often before denied, ridiculed or criticized as sick. We shed our sinfulness, took back political power and produced parties, parades and celebrations to declare our pride. We have taken a closeted, shameful tradition and remodeled it into a visible sign that we will no longer passively receive the dysfunctional projections of this culture. Personally and interpersonally—politically and socially—we have contributed to the creation of a cultural revolution. Some of the methods and trends that we have chosen to include in that revolution are also contributing to making us sick.

AIDS is a disease that appears throughout our bodies as a physical symptom of the suppression of our natural and autonomic ability to survive in an environment polluted with millions of bacteria and virus germs that we should be able to cope with on a daily, moment by moment basis. There are elements and trends, within what has become our community lifestyle, that can contribute to immunosuppression. These elements influence our thoughts, our feelings, our behavior and our physical bodies. The following statements address the ways that we may choose to contribute to immunosuppression. They are based upon the science of health and human behavior and our own professional experience as mental health specialists.

I am my body, my thoughts, my feelings, my attitudes and my behavior. I can choose to function as one integrated whole.

What happens in my body is influenced by what happens in what I think, what I feel and what I choose to do. I can choose not to function as one integrated whole.

My body has a tendency to produce symptoms that reflect a lack of integration. This disintegration may happen between my thoughts, my feelings, my behavior or between all three parts of me.

Disintegration can contribute to immunosuppression by creating intrapsychic and interpersonal stress about what I think and what I feel about myself and other people. Stress can contribute to immunosuppression.

The way that I choose to respond to my stress—in my head, in my heart or in my body—can contribute to disintegration. Disintegration can be immunosuppressive.

I have the ability to deny my responsibility for my health, for my thoughts, my feelings or my behavior. I can deny by ignoring the fact that alcoholism, hepatitis, venereal disease, herpes, chemical abuse and anabolic steroid abuse are as significant an epidemic as AIDS. Denial is lying to myself. Denial can contribute to immunosuppression.

I can deny by numbing my feelings with chemicals that create my experience for me. I can deny by believing that AIDS is a science fiction. I can deny by blaming other people (particularly heterosexuals) for what I really am choosing to think or to feel.

I can deny that I am feeling at all. This kind of make-believe-fantasy gives me permission to continue to use baths and bookstores; poppers and pot; fisting and rimming with the delusion that it's "his problem."

Blaming is perhaps the most irresponsible of all behaviors. AIDS is everybody's problem, gay or straight, rich or poor. AIDS in and of itself is not a political problem. It is a disease that has psychological, social and political implications. Blaming is destructive behavior.

I am responsible for what I think, what I feel, what I do, who I do it to and why I choose to do it. This statement does not reflect a new dogmatic moralism. It is common sense. When I do something, it has effects—my behavior has consequences. My attitudes about my behavior can contribute to immunosuppression.

In our work in psychotherapy with gay clients, we are frequently asked how one may choose to improve the quality of his/her life. The following are statements that can contribute to preventive mental and physical health within our community.

AWARENESS

Be honest with yourself. Denial can be immunosuppressive.

Be aware of what you are thinking, feeling and experiencing. Disintegration can be immunosuppressive.

Be aware of your stress. Stress can be immunosuppressive.

Be aware that anabolic steroids are immunosuppressive.

Be aware of your self-destructive, sado-masochistic behavior and honestly ask yourself if what you are bringing from fantasy into reality is affecting your health.

INFORMATION

Be informed that marijuana can change the structure and functioning of white blood cells and be immunosuppressive. Poppers, MDA, crystal, ethyl chloride, cocaine and alcohol can be immunosuppressive.

Frequent antibiotic treatment for venereal disease can be immunosuppressive. Be informed about the health of your sex partners by asking them questions about their general health and their protection against hepatitis.

Be informed that physical exercise enhances the immune functioning by relieving physical and, frequently, mental and emotional stress. High protein, balanced diets can enhance immune functioning.

Anger is a healthy emotion. Depression, repression, rebellious and stubborn behavior are unhealthy ways to deal with anger. These defensive games can be immunosuppressive.

DECISION

Dating is a healthy and appropriate way to play, meet new people and be sexually responsible. Decide to date.

House parties, movies, plays, the symphony, concerts, the zoo, art galleries, political and charitable organizations, volunteer work and community sports are already existing alternatives to irresponsible sex, intoxication, loneliness and withdrawal. Houston, Dallas, Austin, San Antonio and Fort Worth are among the most populous and cultured urban centers in the country. Ask yourself what you are doing to make yourself bored in these Texas cities. Decide to try other alternatives.

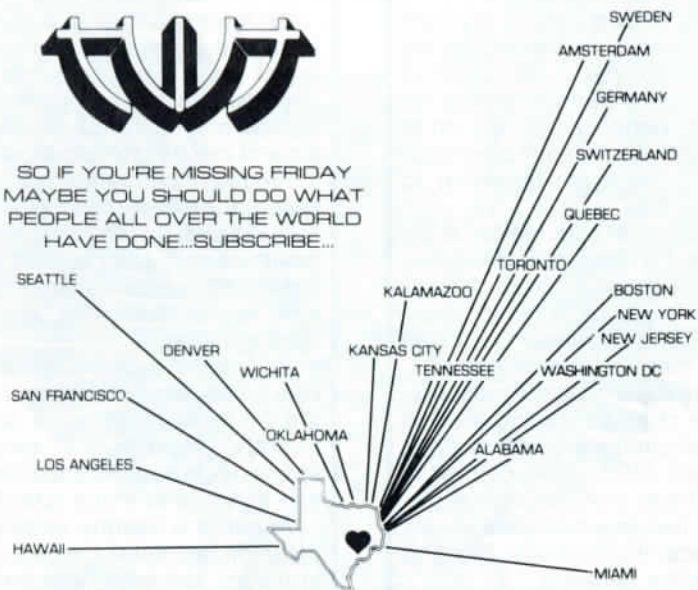

Create gay families—support groups—whatever you choose to call them— that incorporate new people into your life. Decide to ask for support and friendship and learn to give it.

Believe that it is okay to grow up as a gay man or woman—our adoration of youth, our search for virility and acceptance and approval on physical appearance alone, chemical intoxication and irresponsible sexual activity are trends that were part of the development of our community. Gay people are changing. The adolescence of our gay lifestyle is developing into an adult community. Decide to be gay and to help create a gay lifestyle in an adult community.

If the theory that AIDS is sexually transmitted is correct, casual and anonymous sex may be one of the potential breeding grounds for the AIDS epidemic. Decide to think about that.

SELF

I am responsible for my behavior.

Only my SELF can make decisions, change attitudes and develop a lifestyle that works for ME. The choice of a healthy lifestyle is solely my responsibility. The decisions I make affect and influence the behavior of this community. I can choose to ignore or deny AIDS or I can choose to positively do something about its reality. Its prevention begins with ME.

We believe that one of our responsibilities is to educate the community within which we work daily as mental health professionals. We are asking you to look at your behavior. Listen to yourself and feel your experience. We do not wish to control you. We do want to continue to influence this community in a positive, constructive and creative way. The choice is always yours. The responsibility is always yours. For many, AIDS becomes a process of asking questions about life. We are asking you to choose to live.

NAME DROPPER — In Arlington, David Duncan (see CRUISE CAMERA photo) is the humpy new manager responsible for all the increased biz at TCMC which looks mighty spiffy since remodeling . . . In San Antonio, Scotty Roberts is the proud owner of the new Cahoots Club which is sked to open March 23 . . . In Houston, Ram Rocha is the able new manager of Downbeat Records . . . And, in Dallas, the author of this year's gay pride slogan, Jad (I), was presented his winning prize by Jim O'Connor (r), president of DGPA.

HOUSTON TEA — Let's hope that a short, catchy Gay Pride slogan is selected this Sunday, March 6 at Kindred Spirits, when the public is invited to pour its input into this 2:30pm vital decision . . . Mr. Houston is booked into the Copa for April 8 . . . March 20 has been set as the date for Mr. BRB—the club, incidentally, celebrates its fifth anniversary this Sunday—you made it! The curtain goes up on Dirty Sally's bright new look this Sunday at 6pm with free booze and beer . . . And, HOT TEA won $30,000 on the roulette wheel (then lost it) during the recent casino night at Kindred Spirits, which became a wild little Reno to benefit the Montrose Counseling Center.

HOT TEA by Chuck

RUMOR OF WEEK — A third Dirty Sally's shall soon open along the Gulf Coast just as sure as the tide washes ashore eternally!

LOBBY WEEKEND — The GPC has proclaimed March 5-6 as Lobby Weekend in Houston to raise $1,500 for our lobbyist in Austin, Bettie Naylor, who is fighting to defeat bills against same sex dancing and raising the drinking age to 21—so give when you see the GPC in your favorite club this weekend.

TATTLE TALE — The Midnite Sun has axed their Sunday shows . . . The Venture-N's new upstairs sound booth adds a new visual and audible dimension to Wacko City . . . Over 1000 followed the searchlight last Sunday to see the newly revamped and remodeled central park theme of the all new Copa . . . "The club is gorgeous," aptly stated Mr. Tiffany Jones . . . And, the show with the fabulous four and the fabulous Bottom's Up Revue was one of the best shows HOT TEA has ever seen in a gay bar in its eight years of writing this column . . . Although it would be too much to expect every week, it would certainly be awesome! CRUISE CAMERA P.S.: Dancer Jay Gondek (r) and Choreographer Reid (l) are to die for—are there anymore back at the dance studio like them? CRUISE CAMERA photo by Greg Havican of TWT's Houston bureau. ▶

THE ALL AMERICAN CITY

TEXAS TELETYPE — Deep in the heart of Texas, in Austin at the Round-Up, those weekly dance lessons by instructor Rick Opheim (l) and assistant Ron Talbot (r) are teaching patrons how to pair up to round up . . . It seems that the Boathouse and Sally's will exchange bartenders for Doo Dah Daz later this month, Msrs Jim and Jerry Smith report to HOT TEA . . . And, HOT TEA finds Back Street attracting lots of "basic" men we've never seen out before in the Capitol City.

ALAMO ACTION — Pauletta and Coco have been appointed show directors at the soon-to-open Cahoots . . . Jahonau Reis was the guest singer for the recent Modeling '83 contest held at Grafitti's; however, the new Miss Gay SA, Lisa King, who was rightly a finalist in the women's division, was wrongly disqualified over a gender requirement protest . . . Mr. Gay San Antonio is ahead on March 17 at Sunset Boulevard . . . The Texas Kactus Band helps Snuffy's celebrate its third anniversary this weekend . . . And, Bonham Exchange hosts a Trocadero Ballet cast party next Monday night to benefit the SA Performing Arts Association.

DALLAS DIRT — A city electrical inspector has condemned the Oak Lawn Transfer building because of faulty wiring—all of which has caused Ray Martin to move his new Unicorn club to the ol' Jock's location . . . As you read HOT TEA, the Unicorn is in biz in its new home—geared for a March 8-10 grand opening . . . High Country's amateur contest finals are this Sunday . . . Last week's DMC/TMC Armadillo motorcycle run was the first to invite women . . . And, at the Saint last Sunday, Fitness Exchange members celebrated the third anniversary of Dallas' leading muscle palace! Quite a man-size party!

COWTOWN CAPERS — A huge circus tent will be erected in the Lumber Company parking lot next weekend for some Mardi Gras madness to benefit the Agape MCC, TCGA, Lambda, Center for Community and Court of the Golden Unicorn . . . Even Jimmy Spaulding will be there to guest dj from the soon-to-open Snake Pit (no arson at the tent, please) . . . In other hot news: Agape MCC celebrates the ministry of Rev. Jo Crisco this weekend . . . And, over at the Tequila Sunrise, the CRUISE CAMERA rises to the occasion to toast with (l-r) Tequila manager Michael Pilla, David, Mike and Vanessa—the latter who is shown disguising her broken wrist. Photo by Al Macareno of TWT's Fort Worth Bureau.

BEAUMONT PAGEANT — At the Copa's Miss Golden Triangle Pageant on February 17, Felicia Phillips (l) gave up her crown to the new winner (c) Babette Jackie (r) was first runner-up. Andrea Mickels and Cassandra Landa, both former title holders, co-emceed. After the pageant, owner Lynn Ganey told HOT TEA that the Copa would close in about six weeks for extensive remodeling.

GAY REUNION — Dallas recently rounded up yesteryear's luminaries at the Round-Up for thirty years of music, awards, bartenders and costumes; and the CRUISE CAMERA was on hand to capture the nostalgia. (Top row, l-r) Round-Up manager, Richard Montgomery; Big Mike, who was presented a Duroflame log for the hottest and shortest grand opening; Joe O'Brien, the oldest bartender present; Randy White, who received the snow white award; and Ray Martin who was honored for working in the most bars (21). (Bottom row, l-r) Ron Short, owner of Dallas' first gay bar; Gary Parks, who won the biggest box award; Nick Raka, the jockey shorts contest originator; Bill Huber, who won the co-mc award; and Ernie Dougherty, who received a sliver—well, almost silver—teaspoon for the bartender who stirs the most HOT TEA. ## WSL MEETING

HOUSTON — The March meeting for the Women's Softball League will be held at 7:00pm this Monday, March 7 at House of Coleman. These meetings are open to anyone interested in becoming involved with WSL, and all teams are asked to send two representatives to the meeting.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL

HOUSTON — MSA Women's Softball League teams are having scrimmage games on Sunday in various locations throughout the city. WSL is gearing up for the season beginning with a pre-season game March 26-27 at Brooklawn Field, TWT SPORTS was informed by Martha Ritchie.

WSL has been informed that Fonde Field will be available to women's softball teams for Sunday practice or scrimmage play. Teams wishing to use the field during March, before the regular season starts, may contact Ritchie at (713) 728-9371.

VOLLEYBALL DAY

HOUSTON — The Montrose Sports Association has scheduled a Volleyball Day to be held Saturday, March 12, 11:00am-5:00pm at Cherryhurst Park, 1700 Missouri.

"Game play is open to all women members of MSA," TWT SPORTS was advised by Martha Ritchie of the Women's Softball League. Those wishing to form a team may contact Ritchie at (713) 728-9371 for more information and registration.

Entry fee will be $10 per team and all participants must be at the park by 10:00am. Two nets will be available, allowing four teams to play at the same time.

HOUSTON BOWLING

HOUSTON — MSA Monday Night Bowling, '82-83 season, wrapped up the final scores as of February 28. Sam Immordino reported the teams' final scores to TWT SPORTS.

The top team for the season was The Other Men, captained by Nathan Whitehouse. The other members were John Ortega, Rudi Puga and Andy (Mike) Helopoulos.

During the season, the team had an average of 130. They improved their play and moved to the top standings with a 10-game win, 2-game loss in the rollofts.

The rolloff teams in order were: 1) The Other Men; 2) The Copa; 3) Bushwackers; 4) Queen Pins; 5) The Hole; 6) Sisters of Mercy; 7) Barnyard Hoers; and 8) Bowlerinas.

The winner of the handicap tournament is to be announced at the seasonal banquet, March 25.

Top three singles: Danny Weber—257; Larry Salas—253; Wayne Holloway—233.

Top three series: Weber—616; Salas—600; Holloway—585.

In other Houston bowling news, Stadium Lanes will host an organizational meeting for the Summer League on Monday, April 11 at 7:30pm. All interested bowlers please contact Immordino at (713) 528-4576 or Steve McConaughy, (713) 499-9036.

DALLAS BOWLING

Paula Prentiss, born March 4, looms over Cyd Charisse, born March 8, this week's Piscean STARSCOPE stars.

LOVESCOPE for March

MARCH SKY: As March begins, the Sun is in Pisces until mid-month; Mercury is trailing the Sun by one sign—back in Aquarius; both Venus and Mars have just entered Aries; Saturn remains in Scorpio; Sagittarius continues to house the threesome of Jupiter, Uranus and Neptune; and Pluto is in the last degree of Libra.

This month's New Moon occurs on March 14 and this month's Full Moon reaches maximum brightness on March 28. Thus, the stage is set in the Texas sky for your March LOVESCOPE—a monthly STARSCOPE feature.

PISCES: (Feb 18 - Mar 20) Money is at the root of your March LOVESCOPE since both Mars and Venus—the rulers of sex and love—are in your second house of money. You are cautioned not to go overboard in spending in the name of love. Mars can give you the energetic push to impulsively spend on Venus-type things such as art, music, theater, redecorating or a lover. Basically, March is a banner month for romance as long as you keep your financial wits about you.

ARIES: (Mar 21 - Apr 19) Your March LOVESCOPE is shaping up to shape you up for a month of love (Venus) and sex (Mars) because these two planets are currently poised in your first house, which rules your personality. Your personality now gains the social poise to deal with group situations, your attitude is one which others admire, your wisdom is being respected, and your charm is acting like a magnet drawing others into your romantic web. The ground is very fertile for a "new romantic you" as your March LOVESCOPE weaves a spell of amour.

TAURUS: (Apr 20 - May 20) Whether you are intrigued by a secret romance or not, your March LOVESCOPE promises some sort of behind the scenes sexual activity since Mars—your ruler of sensuality—is currently in your twelfth house of secrets. Your inner self is hued by the current passage of Venus (romance) indicating a hidden affair. There is no doubt about a clandestine affair figuring heavily into your March LOVESCOPE.

GEMINI: (May 21 - Jun 21) March should be a very social month for you since both Mars (sex) and Venus (love) are traveling through your eleventh house of friendships, hopes and wishes. Through a party, a function or a friend, you will be able to realize some of your fondest hopes regarding romantic stability. Your popularity is receiving a planetary boost. Your March LOVESCOPE is keyed to your behavior in public.

GANGER: (Jun 22 - Jul 22) Your normal affinity is to be at home where you always feel most comfortable. However, during March, both Venus and Mars are traveling through your tenth house of career. Thus, you may have to spend more time at your work than you would prefer. Ideally, you would prefer to transact much of your business from your house anyway, and this may be easily arranged due to the current placements of these two nearby planets which couple to bring a bit of romantic pleasure into your job. A romantic interlude with a coworker could work your imagination.

LEO: (Jul 23 - Aug 22) You could easily find yourself taking a trip with someone you are sexually and/or romantically involved with since both Venus (love) and Mars (sex) are currently traveling through your ninth house of travel. Long distance romance can not be avoided in your March LOVESCOPE. Somehow, your educational arena is also receiving a planetary charge, giving your ability to learn a needed boost. One of the things you learn about is love—not from a book, but from your first-hand experience this month.

VIRGO: (Aug 23 - Sep 22) Your March LOVESCOPE signals a confusion in your ability to distinguish between love (Venus) and sex (Mars). This is because these two highly-charged planets are currently moving through your eighth house of sex and lust. Most likely, you will be faced with a dilemma of choosing between one person who is your sexual ideal and another who is your romantic ideal. Caution—use care in all dealings with other people's money.

LIBRA: (Sep 23 - Oct 23) Now is the time for true love—a subject near and dear to all Librans since yours is the sign of partnerships. The current placement of both Venus (love) and Mars (sex) in your seventh house of marriage is ideal for not only starting any new romantic partnership but also for strengthening an existing alliance. Your March LOVESCOPE urges you to make the most of this double planetary placement which can have a doubly charged effect on serious matters of the heart.

SCORPIO: (Oct 24 - Nov 21) Your March LOVESCOPE will involve more matters of job and health and less matters of love and romance. As the good book says, there is a time for love and a time for work. Unfortunately, this month is more of a time suited for employment considerations than pleasure. But, you can achieve much in your career during March because Mars will give off much of its energy force to you in order that you may direct it at achieving important employment goals. Venus will protect you. Although you may overstretch your health limitations this month, Venus should act as a protective shield against any serious illness.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov 22 - Dec 21) If love affairs are important to your independent nature of wanting to date—but not getting seriously involved—then your March LOVESCOPE is exactly made to your order. The specifications outlined by Venus (love) and Mars (sex) which are currently traveling through your fifth house of love affairs and entertainment, indicate that your popularity should be soaring and that your desire for pleasure and fun are not to be thwarted. In short, your March LOVESCOPE focuses on fun and games.

GAPRIGORN: (Dec 22 - Jan 19) Your home will bring you more pleasure than usual this month because two very powerful planets, Venus (love) and Mars (sex) are resting in your fourth house which rules the home-front. Entertaining at home, shopping for new real estate and redecorating all figure prominently into your March LOVESCOPE. Furthermore, there will also be love and sex in your home because all these good things are promised by these two lustful planets.

AQUARIUS: (Jan 20 - Feb 18) If you are suddenly bombarded by love letters from afar, phone calls from admirers and stimulating conversation with a very interesting person, it's all because Venus (love) and Mars (sex) are currently passing through your third house of communication. This placement of planets is also ideal for taking a short trip in the name of love. Your March LOVESCOPE is brim full of mental togetherness and faraway places with new sounding persons.
