Spanish Steps Rome's Favorite Gay Meeting Place

By Scott Young

Rome has three particularly good gay meeting places: the lively Spanish Steps, the nearby Via Veneto, and the farther-away (toward the River Tiber) Piazza Navona.

The Piazza Navona, with its three spectacular Bernini fountains, is a favorite get-together place of the stars and directors of Rome's filmmaking and television industry. They come here in force each day to lunch or dine in the Piazza Navona's excellent cafes and restaurants. Lots are gay, and lots of gay people come to see and meet them.

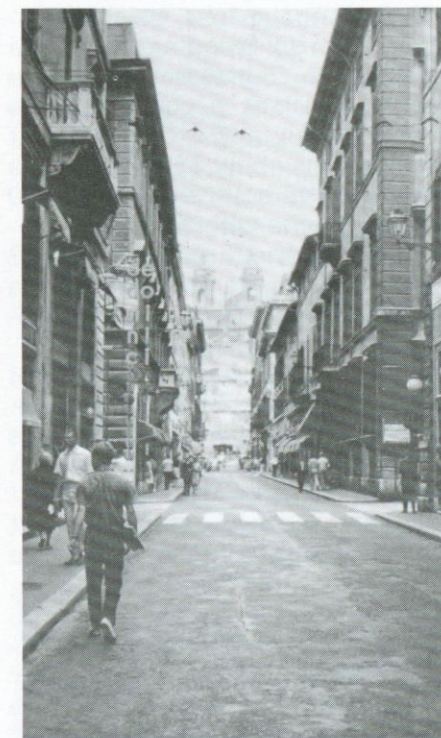

Of the Via Veneto it must be said that much of its elegance and some of its safety have been compromised in the last couple of years, for it's from here that kidnappers have snatched the rich and political and held them for ransom. Aldo Moro, the President of Italy, was abducted from this area. It doesn't seem all that greatly changed, possibly because many consulates—also the United States Embassy—are located in the vicinity. But the hustlers are now of a sharkier type, and the gay complexion has changed somewhat. Still, it's favored by Roman and visiting gay guys, so if you're not rich enough or famous enough to be abductable or ransomable you may cruise the Via Veneto in peace. It's more gayly responsive at night; by day it is less rewarding in would-be encounters, although there are lots of Americans who come here to the U.S. Information Service.

THE SPANISH STEPS

The Spanish Steps lead into the Piazza di Spagna, off which are the streets of Rome's glamor world of high fashion—Via Condotti in particular. The Steps are near to so much that's exciting in Rome, it's understandable why they are a favorite meeting place of both Roman and visiting gay people. The Steps have been a gay congregational since the early nineteenth century when the English poets, John Keats and Percy Bysshe Shelley, succumbed to Roman amore and found their true sexual selves.

Keats and Shelley shared an apartment just next to the Spanish Steps for a time. The Keats-Shelley Memorial is in the house containing the same apartment. Keats died here in 1821. You may recall that his lover died a year later. The Memorial is tidily kept, and well worth a visit. The custodian speaks good English and will be glad to show you through the Memorial and library, as well as show you the balcony where Keats worked—it overlooks the Steps. Apart from the gay pilgrimage aspect, it may be of interest to know that every author and poet of note (or not) who visits Rome, comes here. You can meet some mighty interesting people you could otherwise miss while cruising the Steps.

Americans visiting the Spanish Steps for the first time may be puzzled by the sight of more Americans than Italians. It can be a little disconcerting to look around and see Buffalo, Minneapolis, Denver, Seattle and other points-west faces. This is because the American Express office is nearby and everyone who doesn't have an established Italian address comes here for his mail.

By Roman piazza standards, the Piazza di Spagna is small and relatively quiet. It's really almost an oasis now that Roman traffic has been diverted from the area (clamor from the big names of Rome's high-fashion streets). What makes it more quietly appealing is the little boat-fountain, the Barcaccia, designed by the other Bernini (Pietro) which stands, or seems to float, in the center of the piazza.

Looking upward from here one sees the twin spires of the Church of the Trinita dei Monti, which seem to look benignly down known on the gay getting-to-know-you on the Steps. But what gives the Steps even more color—so that they take on a rather village ambience distinct from the eternal grandness of Eternal Rome all around, are the flower markets under their many-colored umbrellas at the foot of the Steps. This is especially beautiful in spring when the Steps are covered with pots of red and white azaleas. It's a mini flower festival.

The fashion streets that form a junction at the Piazza di Spagna, such as the Via Condotti, should be a part of your cruisy walking tour of the area. They're not big 'Main Street' streets, but charm as much by their miniaturity as they awe by their expensive elegance and understatement.

The Via Condotti, for example, is only about 300 yards long. Even if you're not going to be fitted for a $700 suit by Battistoni (as Frank Sinatra and Alain Delon are), or if you're not going to buy a bauble in rubies or diamonds from Bulgari, or if you can withstand Gucci in anything, at least give the Via Condotti a quiet daily cruise. You can be amazed by what can happen when you're eyeball-to-eyeball with gay celebrities. If you grow weary strolling along this short avenue—having been made breathless by the high-price tags of the Via Condotti shops—why not stop in at the Antico Caffè Greco at 86 Via Condotti? Everyone calls it just Caffè Greco, but antico it really is. It dates from 1760, and the great and near-great of Roman life have been coming here ever since. Incidentally, it was the favorite afternoon hangout of Keats (no doubt waiting for Shelley to toss of a final quatrain of the day), and a posher coffee place there ain't nowhere.

Because the Caffè Greco is such a dream of a place we'd like to describe it just a little. In the front is a wooden bar. Looking beyond this there are many small salons, the decor of which is pretty much nineteenth century . . . lots of oil paintings in gilded frames. The same tables of Keats's time are here today . . . marble-topped tables of Napoleonic design set against a backdrop of red or gold damask. Antique mirrors reflect the soft lighting and give the entire café a feeling of warmth and joy. The waiters are attired in black tailcoats—heightening the feeling of Via Condotti elegance. Order a cup of cappuccino (less than $1) or a sandwich for about the same price. Or a scotch and soda. Or ask for the house specialty: a paradiso, made with orange, lemon, cherries and grapefruit—among other calorigoodies. About $2. Sit and enjoy, and watch the coming-in, the going-out and the goings-on of Rome's glamor people.

Having refreshed yourself at the Caffè Greco, continue your way along the Via Condotti. When you reach the very last street that traverses the Via Condotti—Via Belsiana—you'll spot a small bar that may not look like nothing much, but which you shouldn't miss. It's not a gay bar, as we use the term, but at recess-time for clerks in the Via Condotti shops, and those in swank paralleling streets, and at cocktail time, as well as in the early evening, it seems somehow to explode like gay Roman candles! You'll have the feeling of serendipity—of having stumbled into a secret hangout of almost every famous face in Rome . . . actors, film stars, TV personalities, singers and personnel from the Rome Opera. All know this place intimately. You can't miss it. On the Via Belsiana it's diagonally across the street from the beautiful Benedictine church of Santa Trinita dei Spagnoli.

LIVING NEAR THE SPANISH STEPS

If you'd like to anchor your stay in Rome to the immediate vicinity of the Spanish Steps, you can do so expensively or quite inexpensively. Let's start with expensive. Famous, deluxe, and at the top of the Steps, and close to the Borghese Gardens, is the Hassler—6 Piazza Trinita dei Monti. It has a rooftop restaurant with a fantastic view over Rome. It's not large—less than 100 rooms. About $60 single with bath and $80 double with bath. Too expensive? Then how about the small Croce di Malta, somewhat farther away on a street paralleling the Via Condotti? This hotel is not expensive at about $20 single with bath. The address is 28 Via Borgognona.

Just about four blocks from the Spanish Steps and near the American Express office, is the City, which is a pensione. The address is Via Due Macelli 97. It should run about $20 or less for a single with bath, and about $30 for a double with bath.

Want something cheaper still? And still in the immediate area of the Steps? Two recommendations.

One is a hotel, the Hotel Homs, 71-72 Via della Vite. Some rooms have baths, others require a trek down the hall. A double room, at present lira/dollar exchange rates, is about $11 without bath. The other is a pensione: the Pensione Suisse, 56 Via Gregoriana. It has 35 rooms, mostly bathless. A bathless double goes for about $6 per person. Both are spotless, quite plain, and very comfortable.

None of the hotels/pensionis mentioned are gay. As usual with so many small Rome hotels and pensionis, particularly those with the least expensive tariffs, the clientele is largely that of visitors coming to Rome on pilgrimage—nuns, priests—or to see the jolly new Pope John Paul II . . . and maybe get a glimpse of a first-time-in-the-Vatican Polish kielbasy. Since he seems to fly around almost as much as Superman, perhaps we can all get a peek. All the hotels mentioned have the virtue of accessibility to the cruisiness of the Spanish Steps, which alone can save a lot of valuable get-with-it time.

We've tried to give readers unfamiliar with Rome a better insight on what to gayly expect, and where. You really can't miss with the Spanish Steps. There are, of course, many gay areas elsewhere in Rome. Some have been covered, and others will be. In the meantime, visit the Spanish Steps. They can rather spoil you for any other Roman location.

Ciao!

Coconut Grove Freakish & Fun, Growingly Gay

By Jon Lorrimer

Are you sometimes puzzled when a gay area you visit seems to be more of a state of mind than of actual boundaries . . . that's more of a 'happening' that no one can explain how it happened?

Greenwich Village began like this. In the midst of a city of eight million supposed straights a comparative few gays began to change the character of a hodgepodge of streets and made it their own. A more recent example is the swift evolution of gay Key West in straight Key West. Harder to do: a small town, still nodding its sleepy head over the glories of ante-bellum Florida.

And now the Florida roster grows. Right in the heart of Anita Bryant country, only a ten-minute drive from midtown Miami, is an area that's freakish and fun—casually and growingly gay, though by no means is it obviously so. This is Coconut Grove, a real fun happening (see it happen right in front of your eyes), and the next time you're down Miami way, give it a whirl.

Coconut Grove charms with the oddity of its contrasts. It's an enclave of grandiose yesterdays and jet-setting todays, and if you're here long enough you'll wonder why promoters bothered to create Disneyland East in Orlando when all the makin's were here. For Coconut Grove is where the real 'castles' of Florida's early rich—the elegant homes of its empire builders—rub shoulders with A-frames, bizarre houses, and the mobile homes of today's nomads. It's at once a town of Porsches and Pintos, of Pucci and pizza . . . all the more interesting to us because of the harmonious getting-together of all this with the gayly Gucci and jocks in jeans.

This amazing area has a resident population of about 40,000. A cross-section would show its continually-growing artists colony (painters galore . . . a sure sign of gay involvement, much as one notes in Santa Fe, Taos, Aspen, Carmel and—in summer—those gaying little towns like Saugatuck and along Cape Cod). Coconut Grove is also the home of many television writers who drive to the postoffice to mail their soap-opera scripts to New York and pick up their rich royalty checks at the same time.

The bird-watching Audubonists are here in force—rare birds are the attraction. Environmentalists also make a show of strength—guarding, protecting the ancient oak and fragrant pine trees that arch the winding lanes of Coconut Grove's residential area. Horticulturists have a field day . . . immersed in the uniqueness of such flora as the orchid tree, the flamevine, the thick growths of croton and Spanish bayonet, and the jungle-like thickets of hibiscus, plumbago, buttonwood and palm.

The Dade County Heritage Trust keeps a watchful eye on some 56 buildings—the largest number of mid-nineteenth century structures in south Florida. These include those on Bay Shore Drive (Florida's first Millionaires' Row), on the outskirts of the Grove. One of these is Vizcaya—an Italian-style palazzo of a mere 72 rooms, built by farm-machinery tycoon, John Deere. Another is Villa Serena, the home of that silver-tongued orator who never made it to the Presidency—William Jennings Bryan. Also, that castle of Commodore Ralph Middleton Munroe, who founded Coconut Grove. It's called the Barnacle, and in 1977 it was completely restored and, along with the Vizcaya, is now open to the public. Have a look when you visit the Grove.

Your drive from midtown Miami to Coconut Grove follows the shoreline along Brickell Avenue. First, a string of expensive condominiums may be seen . . . and then you are onto Bay Shore Drive where the mind is boggled by the magnificence, and the eye beguiled by the beauty of so many of these treasured castles. So you have a quite breathtaking introduction to the Grove.

Soon these residential areas that fan out from the Drive and Tiger Tail Avenue are behind, and then along Main Highway you pass several blocks of business district, coming into the still gas-lit Commodore Plaza (named, of course, for Commodore, founder of the Grove). Once unique in a Capri-style way—elegant and enchanting—it now seems a little tourist-tatty around the edges. Still, it is the focal point of diverse elements of residents and visitors. In its way it's like the vantage point of a small-town drugstore of yesterday from which the citizens watched the world go by.

Commodore Plaza

The 'world' of Coconut Grove, however, is something else. It's the place where casual and kooky do their thing. A few years ago it became the haven of hippies. Attracted by Miami's warm climate they came in winter hordes. Miami Beach was just too posh and pricey. Miami itself—in its other areas, particularly downtown—was too proper and policed. Coconut Grove was the magnet.

THE GROVE GROOVES!

A triangle of land fronting on Biscayne Bay, Coconut Grove has such 'versatility' that anyone can do almost anything within reason: follow any kind of lifestyle, even though there are the crusty, diehard 'pioneers' who fight such loose living, as well as anything that tends to 'modernize' the Grove. Petitions abound . . . city officials have been hanged in effigy. Still, the Grove grooves.

Although the knapsacks and harmonicas, the guitars and flower children are no longer here in force, the freer spirit of the Grove remains. But now one is more likely to see a certain Greenwich Village side: the artists, the writers, and those who make a career of just loafing: these grow in numbers. There are also the artsycrafters . . . those into weaving, quilting, 'batik-ery', sandalmaking, candlemaking and jewelry designing. Add to these the health nuts who can't get moving in the morning without their ration of wheat germ, and who lunch in health-food shops on cashew-butter and banana-bread sandwiches. In a sense, New York's Greenwich Villager may feel that he's not strayed very far from West Fourth Street, although a gay Christopher Street does not exist in the Grove.

Boutiques abound. All have clever names. If you've ever visited Fire Island and have noted the intriguing names of the more exotic homes of gay guys, you may think the owners have opened up businesses in Coconut Grove. From time to time new stores and shops open, and new names catch one's fancy. Some we recall: Dr. Feel- good's Fotos . . . Pigments of the Imagination . . . Four Eyes . . . The Pampered Chef, and The Scissors Wizard.

There's yet another reason why Coconut Grove is so upbeat; it draws students from the huge, sprawling University of Miami in Coral Gables. Also, many gays in the Miami area live here because the ambiance is good. Odd though it may seem, Miami's downtown area often seems constricted and oppressive. Gay guys who live and work there like the freer atmosphere of the Grove.

There are other reasons why Coconut Grove is the 'happier' Miami, and some of these we shall mention elsewhere in this article. But the logical question at this point is: Given all the Gucci/Pucci/Porsches; the Village aspect; the artist-colony impact; the heavily-gay college-student thrust, plus the fact that Miami's gay guys prefer to live here . . .

WHAT ARE THE GAY PLACES OF THE GROVE?

It may surprise you that there are only two of note: one is the Hamlet, 3416 Main Highway, adjacent to the Commodore Plaza. As you will note in the accompanying picture, it is identified only by the neon sign BAR. It's not a jumping bar, but a friendly and homey place—almost club-like, because here's where every gay guy comes—especially lively on weekend afternoons when the area around the Plaza is bustling with shoppers, young people, visitors and locals. It's just a great place to zone in on.

Hamlet Bar

Since there are no other gay bars as such in the area, the Hamlet is a kind of 'Mother Umbrella'. You'll see leather and western, denim, some motorcycle, handsome students . . . someone for everyone—to take home! Nothing overt. If you drive over to the Grove, head for the Hamlet. If you go at night, in addition to meeting other interesting gay guys in the Hamlet, there's also mild cruising outside the bar and in the Plaza and areas nearby.

The other place that attracts gays is Peacock Park. Don't expect to see these birds in their outrageous drag. Peacock Park bears the name of a family that built the Grove's first pub, and who brought Bahamians over to work in Peacock's Inn. By the way, descendants of those Bahamians still live here—mostly on Charles Street.

Peacock Park is a pleasant place . . . an 'everybody' park—not specifically gay. By day it's quietly 'Frisbee', and in one end are the sunbathers . . . in another many young guys smoke reefers . . . and then there are the joggers.

In still another area older men play chess and checkers. But the ambiance of Peacock Park is such that it draws young people day and night. Perhaps "mild cruising" better expresses it, but you can be pretty sure of making out.

Unfortunately, in this downtown area the tourists have added a certain tackiness to the business streets . . . careless people who seem to miss the trash baskets, and so what you get are bits of pizza underfoot and drippy ice-cream cone throwaways . . . winos toss their bottles anywhere. Still, like many other cities/areas, this is about par for the course. Not really enough to spoil your visit.

SOME OTHER GROVE ATTRACTIONS

• Coconut Grove is blessed with many bicycle paths. Why not rent a bike by the hour or for a day at the Dade Cycle Shop? The Grove is the only place in Florida with its own bike race. In early November bikers come from everywhere to compete—gorgeous guys!

Dade Cycle Shop

• The Arts Festival. This is held each February, and almost as far as the eye can see along the Commodore Plaza and the sidewalks there are paintings. The Plaza and these sidewalks and Main Highway are closed to traffic and the art show becomes an all-enveloping mall.

• Fairchild Tropical Garden. On your rented bike, pedal 5 miles south of the Grove. This unique natural park/haven, while maintained generally for educational and research projects, is open to the public from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. There's a nominal entrance fee, and for a buck extra you get a trackless-trolley tour with commentary by the driver. This magic Garden comprises 83 acres of orchids, ferns, bromeliads, plus 500 species of palm, and a rain forest thrown in to boot. Don't miss it!

• Matheson Hammock Park. Take your bike and head north of Fairchild Garden to this pleasant recreational area. All day long, from sunup to sundown, visitors come here to picnic, or fish along the canal, or just sit on the beach, or swim in the huge salt-water pool. There's a snack bar and restrooms and you are likely to make your day all the more complete. Some action in the brush too.

• The Coconut Grove Playhouse. Famous all over the country for its revivals and importations of plays and musical shows. It's on Main Highway. Check the local newspaper to see what's playing.

• Try a conch burger. Many snack bars and good restaurants feature this filling food. As reported in our coverage of Key West, the conch is a favorite fish of south Florida waters. You can have the conch fried, or chopped in a salad, or pounded into conch fritters or burgers. This chewy goody costs from about $2.50 to $5, depending on how it's prepared, and where. A longtime favorite of conch lovers has been Monty's waterfront bar.

There are many unusual dining places in the Grove. The new (1977) Coconut Grove Hotel has excellent French food in its rooftop dining room. And if you're seeing a show at the Coconut Grove Playhouse, why not dine just across the street at the Taurus Steak House, a restaurant with a mess of nautical decor. And if you'd like to do a bit of eye-catching/eye-cruising while dining a la Via Veneto, dine al fresco at the Commodore Plaza's Greenhouse.

Truly, Coconut Grove is one of those serendipitously-gay places one never really thinks about when visiting the Miami/Miami Beach area. You just may luck out more here, and have a better time than anywhere along Collins Avenue!

Provincetown P'town Perfect

By Jim Quixley

It was love at first sight with me and P'town, so nothing you may read here is other than totally biased. Not that that fabulous affliction is uncommon in Provincetown. Strolling down the main street, Commercial Street, in the bright sunshine, eyeing the dozens upon dozens of lovelies and hunks with bronzed bods in stretched shorts and little else, with the beautiful sea always nearby and lots of gay hotspots within about a one-mile strip, well, you begin to get the picture!

Provincetown, to me, is a sort of lovely laddie/lady, perhaps epitomized by Madam (of Wayland Flowers and Madam) and Ellie Boswell (see later re both), plus something, some magic other, that isn't so easily captured, especially by a little ol' tourist like me. Maybe the permanent residents understand it. They certainly know a hell of a lot more about the 'lay' of the land (and I do mean lay!) that I do!

Anyway, one thing I have learned is that it takes time to appreciate this laddie/lady's infinite variety of charms. And time is important if you really want to get to know this number. Don't, please don't, like so many, belt into town for two days and think you've 'done' P'town. She's done you, baby, by hiding just about everything, even if you did make out—and serve you right!

No, your visit has got to be for an absolute minimum of one week (first time, that is—there'll be others). Why? Because as you know, all good things, good experiences, take time and, if you're not just here to make out (and we ain't puttin' that down in P'town—in fact, it's often rather hard to get it down here!) then you can begin to enjoy the many facets of this fabulous friendly little place.

P'town is on Cape Cod, a four-hour boat ride from Boston and about the same by car. Or why not just fly? Boston to P'town flight costs $17 one way, plus $3 for the taxi into town. Flight time, thirty minutes. And for the budget set there's even a Greyhound bus connection. Get your friendly travel agent (gay, if possible—he'll know all about the place) to arrange convenient connections.

One tip: if at all possible, don't bring your car here. It's a tiny town (that's probably why it's so friendly—we're all thrown together in the little space that's available). Anyway, a car is just a bloody nuisance. Commercial Street runs along the shoreline and is one-car wide and, especially throughout July and August, is packed with bodies, plus cars and bikes. So forget it. Apart from the headache of where to park the thing.

WHERE TO STAY?

First, a description to give you the general idea. P'town is a little Portuguese fishing village that artists and writers like Eugene O'Neill discovered earlier this century (and there's still a very strong artistic presence). Then we discovered it. Anyway, the locals tell me the normal population is about 4000. Then, cometh July and August, the population explodes to over 20,000, of which 85% is gay—mostly males. So, the general idea is that it is a gay town. It's our town, and we call the shots.

Some years ago the locals objected to so many gays and tried to freeze us out. We got the message and stayed away in droves. But when many businesses started to fear bankruptcy it was suddenly realized in P'town that gay was good—especially for business. So now we (with our money) are very welcome. Thus, accommodation is no problem (most of the many hostelrys are run by gays anyway).

The best kinds of places to stay are hotels or guesthouses, and each has a variety of prices. It depends on what kind of holiday you like. Guesthouses like the Captain's House, 350a Commercial St., can be great, particularly if you're on your own. In a guesthouse you have a group of friends right there. Marc, the French-Canadian owner, provides comfortable accommodation for about 20 men. There's a nice lounge, coffee, etc., in the morning, and weekly patio parties. Share bathrooms—but how many showers do you take? Average rage about $19.

The Capricorn, 6 Cottage St., is run by very pleasant Don. More elegant (but not piss elegant). Not as central, but typically has regulars who've been coming every year, same time, same room, etc. Surely a good recommendation. And a third, which I didn't visit, highly rated in the Boston gay paper Cruisin' recently, is Carl's Guest House, 68 Bradford St.

By the way, for the really budget-wise, the rucksack set, etc., there are the excellent camping facilities on West Vine St., near the gay beach—20 minutes walk from town. About $6 a night, and it's well maintained, with every facility for camper or trailer.

Gay hotels? Well, why not enjoy a little extra comfort—you are on holiday, remember! And here too there's a range. Places like the Pilgrim House provide simple small rooms in an older building, but it's clean and has all you really need. At the other end of the scale, if you can afford it, is the Boatslip, with your own suite, including TV (who the hell needs it here?) overlooking the pool, at $45 per night.

However, from my experience with several Provincetown watering places and chatting with my chums, I'd suggest the Crown and Anchor Motor Inn, right in the center of town (why not have the convenience?). It's got everything a nice hotel should have and, in addition, is a complete entertainment center. Prices start at about $19 up (for miniscule rooms, but thoughtfully compensated for with a communal shower room!), to well-appointed spacious rooms with your own bathroom. Big beds in all rooms, of course. Well run by Bob who is a walking authority on this town, having lived here for many years. The Crown and Anchor has its own pool, is right on the beach, and provides a wonderful bar in front with several entertainers afternoon and evening (see later), plus one or two other bars, plus the excellent Clambake Restaurant, and to top it off has the fabulous Back Room (a must for everyone in town) where entertainers like Craig Russell perform at the cocktail hour every day, and the disco at night is hot.

Booking accommodations in advance every place is very wise, especially if there's more than one of you, and it's essential for Saturday nights because weekends are popular. A lot of Boston gays come over regularly.

More advice: Tipping (for newcomers to North America). The usual tip is now about 15%. Never less than a quarter, except maybe for something like a coffee. So, for example, gin and tonic here is $1.25—leave a quarter. Really lousy service? Leave nothing.

WHERE TO EAT?

But cocktails first, surely, and that probably means one of the many wonderful shows this little old place is famous for. For even better and more information than I can give you, ask the locals—they know what's going on, when and where and which is the absolute best. Ask the staff of the hotel or even another tourist who may have seen some of the shows.

That's probably secret Number One here if you really want to enjoy yourself—be friendly. This lady/laddie won't come (whoops!) to you if you don't relax and give her a little friendliness.

Now, during the cocktail hour you might decide to enjoy the aforementioned great female impersonator, Craig Russell ('Outrageous'). You can stand a few feet away from the stage at the bar, if you like. Cruiser. The Back Room, where he usually plays, seats only a hundred-or-so people, so the rapport with the audience (85% gay, remember?) is, to put it mildly, ideal. And you bet the artists play to that. Or maybe you'll see the Divine Diva, Harriet Lieder, fat and camping crazy one minute, then tearing your heartstrings with her own fabulous rendition of "Send in the Clowns." Sometimes she plays together with the more than slightly sensational Michael St. Laurent, another terrific impersonator. And if your luck holds, Wayland Flowers and his utterly wicked and wonderful sex-crazed doll, Madam (seen them on TV?) may also be available for your delight. Check 'em out.

Of course, rather than a show at drinky-boo time, first day in town, you maybe will prefer to start hard cruising immediately (if not sooner). That means the 'Tea (sic) Dance' at the Boatslip. Everyone knows where it is—3:30-6:30 every day. Like the Back Room, there's a pool here, too, which all may use—in-between dances, if you want. Wild!

O.K. After the show or the 'Tea Dance', it's probably snooze time. As this joint jumps till the wee hours it's advisable to rest for an hour or two. I mean, go to bed, alone—it's good for you sometimes (truly!).

Food at last! Provincetown has an international reputation for culinary delights, especially fish dishes and Portuguese goodies. Prices vary from about $12 to $20 each, with wine and tip. Starting cheapish, there's The Old Reliable Fish House, down the lane beside 229 Commercial St. Try the Kale Soup—full of beans, cabbage, chunks of Portuguese sausage, etc., and any number of fish dishes. The California 'house' wine was watery, I thought; otherwise a good value place. And where else but in easygoing P'town would you hear the gorgeous blond guy you've been cruising at the next table and the waitress discuss whether the moon is full—both eager looking over the black shining sea outside to check!

At the other end of the scale is Cafe Mews, 359 Commercial, the place for elegant excellence, fine decor, nice atmosphere and rich, varied menu.

In between you have Pepe's delightful candlelit restaurant on the water. Splendid seafood, so reservations are essential, although there's a pleasant cocktail lounge available if you arrive early. It's just down the road at 371 Commercial.

I hear that Ciro's (formerly Ciro & Sal's) is still good, although rather expensive. I chose the more reasonable Sal's (he has his own place now) at the other end of Commercial (near 100), which is very popular, and rightly, just for a change from fish and Italian food. I tried the basic test—spaghetti. Firm pasta, huge rich meatballs in thick spicy sauce, but so generous a serving there was no room for dessert, only espresso coffee to top it off. And you know it's squeaky clean here—you enter via the kitchen. Service is a little chaotic at times—P'town and tension just don't seem to go together. This place had an almost family friendly atmosphere about it.

And then, of course, there's the renowned Moores, halfway to the beach. Maybe save this till your last night? A converted old shed and it still looks it, with wooden tables, fish nets hanging, etc. This is the place to forget about the budget and order that lobster you've been drooling for—divine! But make damn sure you arrive starving, since you must save some room somehow for dessert. They serve a huge slab of their own special cake, slathered in gobs of cream.

P'TOWN AT NIGHT

What to do after dinner? You will have already enjoyed strolling and promenading along Commercial, which everyone does night and/or day. There are a number of straights around, but the number of gays, so handsome in their summer finery, or just plain tanned flesh, does make walking without bumping into things rather difficult. Cruise, cruise, cruise—why not? And if you want to hold your lover's hand—go ahead. There'll be the occasional odd stare from a gawking straight—their problem.

Now if you ate earlyish you'll probably be in time for the other entertainments which are bound to be in town (I'll mention just the main ones). Check out the Madeira Room (downstairs at the Pilgrim House). Lynne Carter reigns supreme here—one of the finest female impersonators, with a classy show and a wit that provides a sort of 'crash course' in what gay really means—for the slightly bewildered straights sprinkled throughout the audience.

Always make reservations for the big stars like Lynne Carter, and, of course, Wayland Flowers and Madam. Being close to the stage can double your fun. I found that a limit of one show a day aided variety and stopped my gut from getting too sore (please—from laughing). The standard here is high, as New York talent likes to work/vacation here, and it's also a tryout place for many rising stars.

As well as the above, if your luck is in, you may catch Tiffany Jones 'The Texas Tornado', another type of female impersonator (see his roller-skating nun!) and Julie Wilson, as warm and elegant as Dietrich, yet quite unique. Her Sondheim numbers, such as "I'm Still Here," are unforgettable.

SHALL WE DANCE?

As I mentioned, one hot disco is The Back Room (latest reports are that it's gone straight, but check it out anyway; it was bloody good last summer). However, the hot spot, summer and off-season, is the Big Bar at the Atlantic House. Very gay, and jumps till 1 a.m. Next to it is the only macho bar I found in town, with an upstairs that can be quite raunchy.

There's the Town House Lounge. Downstairs, now called Dance 293. It swings. It has become less macho lately, with more women and more squares, but there's enough talent and good music. No cover charge makes it well worth checking out.

The City Fathers are presumably concerned that we get our beauty sleep, so the bars (and thus discos) close at 1 a.m. Be not dismayed. Now's the time for

SERIOUS CRUISING

Outside the Town Hall in the center of town, and for a half mile along Commercial, gorgeous guys congregate, pose, etc. This is 'The Meat Rack'—how did you guess? Two slightly embarrassed cops watch over us every night, for some strange reason . . . a less belligerent gathering would be hard to find.

To delay going back to your place of abode to check out its possibilities, you might consider a snack. Perhaps a piece of pizza at the Spartacus Pizza (half way to the Boatslip) which is always a good rendezvous place. Or maybe a sit-down supper at the Cafe Blase (just before the Pilgrim House).

Still horny? O.K. Try the beach beat behind the Boatslip. Go down the lane on the far side of the Boatslip and all the beach is cruisy. The hard action is to the right, about 500 yards along, usually underneath the pier there, or the boat in drydock. Note: at your own risk—there have been some arrests here (same as on the sand dunes). Even the P'town police get paranoid sometimes. So, careful!

Next day you will rise at the crack of dawn, say, about 10ish, and stagger out for a wee bite of breakfast. If you don't mind spending $3 or $4, why not a heart starter of champagne and orange juice at the Hideaway (down the same laneway as The Old Reliable Fish House). The Hideaway and The Long and Narrow (same side, halfway to the Boatslip) probably give the best breakfasts (or brunches) in town. Sitting on the water-side, nibbling the freshly-made omelets (many varieties) at the Long and Narrow and sipping lots of good strong coffee is very soothing to those early morning nerves.

Very pleasant alternatives are also available and at a smaller price. There's the Cafe Blase, already noted, and as it's open air, right on the street, and gay, it's ideal if you must start cruising that early! All kinds of first-class coffee, such as cappuccino, available.

Alternatively, if you prefer to be very economical at breakfast and maybe splurge at supper, then why not try Maggie's (more or less over the road from the Long and Narrow) good value and good service from liberated women. An equal value eatery I tried was Stormy Harbor (in the center, over from the Town Hall). Not a gay restaurant, but the usual sprinkling among the customers. Seems to be run by a family. Clean, plain, but nice for all the sterile formica tables and chrome (tolerable because there is so little of that sort of shit in 'most un-Miami-like' P'town). Here breakfast costs less than $2, good old-fashioned cereal is available and even that so often very necessary prune juice. Licensed, so worth checking out for other meals. Naturally, most places here serve breakfast till 2 p.m.

What to do for the rest of the day—what's left of it? The big decision is between relaxing by the pool at the Backroom or the Boatslip, or going to the Beach. There are two beaches. You are interested in Herring Cove (or New) Beach. I'm told the view of the sunset is glorious from the other beach—believe it or not, never had time to find out!

Go to the Provincetown Chamber of Commerce at the MacMillan Wharf (where the boat comes in), get a map, and they'll obligingly point you in the right direction. A bike or moped (easy to hire) is handy, although it's only a couple of miles, so you can walk it. Hitching is easy too.

The gay part of the beach is about a half mile before the changing sheds and kiosk, so walkers and bikers just cut across the dunes this distance short of the main part of the beach, and there you are in the dunes already cruising and/or heading for a dip.

Surprise! This beach is quite 'uninhibited' (although the Puritans have struck here too—no nudity on the beach, unfortunately). However, the serious cruising occurs behind the beach, on the dunes, alongside the stupid new 'Keep Off' signs, with the real serious stuff way back from the seashore, particularly along the covered paths that meander through the bushes. The dunes are patrolled, so do be careful. The covered paths are safest.

At 3 or 4ish you'll want to wend your way back to town to shower and get ready for the 'Tea Dance' or a show. If you've already 'done' that and those, why not try one of the alternatives? Starting at 4 or 5 there's a fun sing-along in the front bar of the Crown and Anchor. Ideal place for that vital first drink of the day.

Later on in the evening there's a choice of such friendly entertainment. A more mature crowd enjoys the front bar at the Town House Lounge most times and is royally entertained with great playing on the Hammond organ at night. Or at the back of the restaurant which is part of this complex is another sing-along piano bar, popular with a thirty-ish crowd, and for variety you can always pop downstairs to Dance 293.

However, for a change from hard cruising, in the evening the gal you must visit is Ellie—Ellie Boswell, the big, black, beautiful 'Mother Earth' who takes over about 8 or 9 at the front bar at the Crown and Anchor. She sings, swings, tells naughty jokes, tickles the ivories with mean drum accompaniment from her young daughter, welcomes anyone who wants to get up and do a number, but, above all, she's just sweet, irresistible Ellie. I hear she's promised to come back this summer—she's gotta—P'town wouldn't be the same without her.

MORE CRUISING

O.K., back to the all-important cruising. Is it good here? Well, as you've gathered, cruising is epidemic in P'town. Yet it's like any other place: success is largely up to you. There is teasing and, because of all the stunning beauty, we all have trouble making up our minds. Still, the usual rules apply. Be bold and, particularly in this town, be friendly, and remember, that guy who's slightly less than breathtaking is probably much more fun. Furthermore, there are many guys here 'on their own'—surely it's your duty to provide them with a little company!

But you can't cruise all the time, and here Provincetown comes into its own. It's not just limited to sun and sex as other fun spots often are. It's a total town, so even if the weather's lousy—and it can change rapidly like any sunny seaside spot—there's lots to do. In fact, to vary the pace I'd suggest avoiding the usual cruise places every third day—you'll appreciate 'em all the more next day.

OTHER THINGS TO DO

Go shopping one day. There's lots of crap, of course, for tourists, but also a lot of good stuff, particularly handcrafts. Remember, this town has a strong artistic tradition. Lots of the permanent residents are artists.

Silver and goldware, necklaces and rings, etc., are beautifully provided in many little shops. Sun Signs was my favorite for large, interesting stock and reasonable prices. Now at last, after several years without, P'town has a fabulous men's wear shop, Liverpool, at 395 Commercial, which also stocks 'toys' and Locker Room, etc. Very convenient, as just about everyone sniffs like crazy at the discos. Nearby are two very fine boutiques, The Crystal Gallery, with glorious crystal from all over, and Havorn, with lovely articles from Italy, etc., and hand-made mod jewelry by Fleming, who runs the place. For old-style stuff you might check out Small Pleasures at 373.

What other delights? Lots. There's a marvelous Playhouse where you can see fine productions of plays, such as Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie," or Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night" and there are three cinemas with a range from "Star Wars" to the last Fellini movie.

In addition to being hysterical, P'town is historical (true!)—you're in one of the most fascinating spots in the world. This is where the Pilgrim Fathers landed. There's a huge monument to commemorate the event: it sticks up like a huge phallus—appropriate!). A trip up to the top on one of those crystal-clear days Provincetown excels in, is a must. The view, right over the harbor and along the Cape, is breathtaking—take the camera.

Also, if you can, put aside a day to go along the coast to the island of Nantucket and/or Martha's Vineyard. The Chamber of Commerce will give you directions and brochures.

Another must, I'd suggest, is a trip around the bicycle paths, well worth hiring a bike for. And for the less energetic there's a walking tour (pamphlet at the P'town Bookstore) that takes you to all the old historic buildings hereabouts. By the way, as you walk, you'll notice that time here is always approximate—the Portuguese don't believe in the tyranny of punctuality and they have obviously taught everyone else this wisdom—so the Town Hall clock chimes every hour, about 10 minutes after the hour.

Finally, when's the best time to go to P'town? It swings from early July to the first weekend in September. Lately, however, more and more people choose to avoid those months because they're so frantic. But let's face it, this is party time—particularly August—and who minds parties? There are parties at the Backroom, such as that for the most outrageous costume the night before Craig Russell opened, and parties of white and various colors at the Big Bar at the Atlantic House. Not to mention the fancy dress for the, I think, Fire Brigade Benevolent Fund (sic) judged by the local straights at the 'Tea Dance'! Costumes—fantastic!

Provincetown has so many people in love with her/him that the season is gradually being extended. September is increasingly popular, also May, June, and any weekend throughout the year. And the joint jumps during all holiday weekends, such as New Year's and Halloween.

Although the shows are no more in fall, the weather's usually still good, the sea's warm, and The Atlantic House Bars et al provide friendly fun. And it's true, we can 'make up our mind' more easily when it's less busy. Several of the good accommodation places stay open all year round, including the Crown and Anchor, others till Halloween, such as The Captain's House.

I doubt if I'll ever quite figure out all that goes to make this place wonderful. Who cares—as long as it exists! However, one of my theories is that it's actually a kind of gay North American Brigadoon. It isn't really 'real' at all. It kind of just appears from the mist every summer, etc. . . . If anyone else has an explanation of this miracle spot, do please let me know. Meantime, go find out for yourself—before it disappears!

An alternate gay summer resort is Fire Island. See ad for Caribbean/Fire Island Guide on p. 53.

Drive-Away Travel

A Different Kind Of Cruising

By Frank Keating

Is your job or profession vacation-flexible? Or are you perhaps a student whose college year is shot full of holes with the idle days of in-term this-or-that: Alumni Homecoming, Faculty Week, plus the many days of Christmas and Easter? If so, why not plan to take several short vacations each year instead of lumping your vacation days into traditional winter and summer periods?

For one thing, there's often an overkill factor in an extended vacation, particularly in an area you're visiting for the first time. You may find you've exhausted all its gay possibilities in a few days, so what's left to do but repeat them? Then too, there are credit-card-charged hotel accommodations (and how many months it can take to unscramble your credit-card account if you should revise your plans while away!). Although such vacation stability is preferred by some, many others want more mobility, casualness, and 'impromptu' in checking out gay spots in many areas—especially those rhapsodized-about by friends, or described/pictured in Ciao!, or recommended in our gay travel guidebook "Private Stock."

If you have such flexibility that you can take more and shorter vacations (from 4 to 8 days), you'll find the cost of all of them is less than that for that big vacation bash once or twice a year. By figuring hotel costs to be roughly the same wherever you go, on a per diem basis, the only difference between one long and several short trips is the cost of actual travel. Of course, if you had to plane-it to and from a different place each time you'd be forever picking up the pieces of your piggy bank and putting them together again. So why not consider 'drive-away' travel?

With the drive-away travel plan there's such little travel cost involved that with your saved travel-dollars you can visit more places; make the scene at more/more-varied gay spots; experience a greater variety and pace in lifestyles; make new friends—and if hustlers are your bag you can practically buy 'em by the bag!

WHAT IS 'DRIVE-AWAY' TRAVEL?

It's an umbrella name for a growing business (licensed by the Interstate Commerce Commission) that probably began when well-to-do senior citizens with expensive cars advertised in local newspapers (they still do, check it out) for young men to drive these cars to winter (or summer) vacation homes considerable distances away. Drive a family car down for local use, be paid for your time, then stick around for a week's vacation on your own before flying back home—ticket paid. You'd keep in touch with Daddy Warbucks because he'd want you to fly down and drive it back. Another week's vacation. For instance, it was/is a great way for a gay guy to make Miami Beach gayer—perhaps (now) a side-trip for a day or two in Key West to see our gayest new/old community. Or summerdriving to and from Cape Cod and all the gay goodies there.

Now, however, in any large city's Yellow Pages you'll find this is a legitimized business under the heading "Automobile Transporters and Drive-Away Companies." In nearly 100 American cities there are drive-away agencies which recruit both professional and non-professional drivers to transport cars, trucks, even mobile homes that owners have consigned to them for distant delivery.

Let's take Baltimore as an example. Baltimore is heavy on incoming foreign cars—it's a principal (and cheaper) port of entry. So if you live in the Baltimore, Washington, Virginia area and would like to drive as far west as, say, Los Angeles

(checking out special gay cities along the way—plus a short stop in Vegas, perhaps), register with such an agency in Baltimore, telling them where you want to go, and approximately when. If your personal credentials are okay (more about this further on) you may be called by the agency and asked to pick up a vehicle and drive it there, to arrive by a certain day. Fantasize! Perhaps it'll be a new Porsche, or a Mercedes . . . a Rolls-Royce . . . or maybe just a Fiat. Anyway, your pledge is to get it there (and you pledge yourself to enjoying every cruising minute of the getting there). Here are some of the requirements:

You must be at least 21; have a valid driver's license; produce positive personal identification—with a picture (such as a U.S. Passport). You'll also need local references and they'll be carefully checked. You may also take others on the drive, but each must fill out his own application and present the same accurate identification. All of you will be fingerprinted, and you'll be asked for your precise route. It's also nice to have someone at your destination who knows you. Give the agency his name, address and phone number.

In general, these agencies limit driving hours to not earlier than 5 a.m., and not later than 10 p.m. They also allow you a travel margin-for-error of 400 miles (such as might be caused by emergency detours). You must phone the agency and apprise officials of the situation. You'll have to be bonded, so you'll be required to put up a cash deposit of $65 to $100, which will be refunded on delivery of the car. Also, if you incur unexpected repair expense en route it will also be reimbursed at destination.

The fees for moving a vehicle from Point A to Point B are set by the I.C.C. and are comparable to one-way airfare for the same distance, such as about $200 for the Baltimore-Los Angeles distance. The only expense along the way for the driver will be for gas (and the agency starts you out with a full tank). Moreover, unlike driving your own car, you don't have to figure wear-and-tear. And you are secure. If anything should happen to the car the agency foots the bill—no charge to you.

Some agencies offer a cash premium geared to the expensiveness of the car—especially if it's a new one purchased abroad. But since every drive-away agency has its own plan of operation with regard to money, be sure to have this understood before you depart.

You may like this unique travel plan so well that when you reach Los Angeles and turn the car over to the agency or consignee you may want to register for one to drive on to some other fascinating city. Why not San Diego if you have enough short-vacation days left? Or drive another car back home, this time taking a different route, visiting more gay cities and meeting more interesting people. You can get really hooked on this mini-vacation deal. It's a nice habit you don't have to kick.

King Tut's Other Tomb

Radio City Music Hall

By David Bartel

Whenever it appears in its tour across the United States, the 'Tut Show' is the hottest entertainment ticket in town—every day a sellout. In New York City where the Tutankhamun exhibition is ensconced at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the entire 'run'—announced six months before—was sold out before opening day. Tickets originally set at $10 maximum are hawked by scalpers on the Museum steps for upwards of $50. Not bad for a show that's 3900 years old!

There's a bitter irony in the fact that Radio City Music Hall, which might truly be called King Tut's Other Tomb, has difficulty in filling the house even at $3 a head, except during the Christmas run of its famous spectacle, "The Nativity," and "The Glory of Easter," which runs during the Lenten season until about six weeks after Easter. During the intervening weeks the huge (6200 seats) theater is either dark, or sporadically shows some 'epic' film, or serves as a showcase for name rock groups. But the house itself is really another 'Tut Show'—as fantastic in its contemporaneous way as the other about two miles north.

Main Floor & Stage

Radio City Music Hall is one of the several famous New York City buildings erected in the late 1920s and early 1930s (the Chrysler and Empire State Buildings are the most prestigious examples) at the height of fervor in the Art Deco movement which stemmed in part from the discoveries in Tutankhamun's tomb about 1925. The Music Hall's interior is lavish. No amount of money was spared in making every architectural detail a 'Tut echo' . . . richly ornamented, and faithful to the Tut inspiration. It is therefore important that all who have seen it (which must be about every other citizen of the United States) to see it again, and with regard to its architecture, design and decor, rather than for its Rockettes. And for anyone who's never been inside Music Hall it should be a priority on your next visit to New York City. As matters now precariously stand, it actually may become more of a tomb than the Tutankhamun Pyramid—making it a kind of architectural atavism in reverse.

What is even more bitingly ironic is that Music Hall would still be packing 'em in at every performance if the management were not so morality-conscious and constipated by the historicity of what made the theater "The Showplace of the Nation." Inasmuch as Music Hall became famous for its family-type films as well as for its spectacular stage shows, the management of Music Hall would seem to be awaiting the Second Coming of Doris Day—hoping that such 'safe', almost-to-the-point-of-sex-but-never-quite films will once more gush out of Hollywood. Thus it is missing out on what are today's family-type films, such as Star Wars and, particularly, Superman (which should be a natural for the Music Hall—for one thing, because the sound-effects could be heard and experienced to the highest-decibel fullest, as they cannot in today's small theaters . . . and for another, because Superman, as a film, is so sex-less it actually never even gets to the point of 'almost to the point' sex; other than for a couple of busty gals there's not more than a hint of lust).

Fabulous Stage Productions

Occasionally the Music Hall gets hold of a good 'Lassie-type' movie and fills the house for a few weeks, but more often they get an expensive dud like Anthony Quinn's Caravans which, had it not been for the Rockettes and "The Nativity," might have close the house for good!

One of the glorious mysteries of Radio City Music Hall is how—after nearly fifty years of its existence—it looks more modern than any contemporary concert hall, opera house, auditorium or just-erected movie theater. Perhaps the reason lies in the infallible taste of its designers who—imbued with the spirit of Tut and Art Deco—sought to create the feeling of self-revival, so that no matter when this great theater might be revisited, or how in-depth it might be studied, it would seem as modern as tomorrow's milk-run to Jupiter. Anyone who has fallen under the Egyptian spell of Art Deco knows just how revivifying it can be. In a way, it's much like the Tutankhamun artifacts which, although nearly 4000 years old, seem to have been created only yesterday!

The Rockettes

This is also why the Music Hall will never be just a musty old auditorium. It doesn't show its age because it can't age . . . it has too many built-in 'hormones'. It was created with perpetual self-renewal in mind. Today, although it is often closed for many weeks, when one walks into the giant auditorium its ageless ambience is like that of Christmas. One knows that the mighty Wurlitzer organ will again slide from its niche in the wall to reverberate through the house . . . that the huge stage with its multiple other stages will rise and lower; that the orchestra pit will swoop up from below and actually slide onto and across the stage, where another stage will pick it up and raise it higher; and that the 36 Rockettes will again move with unison precision in a dance routine that is itself nearly 50 years old!

If you should be a first-time visitor to the Music Hall, or if you've seen it countless times, observe the magnificence of the bronze Art Deco entrance doors. Millions pass it by and never notice them, but they are genuine art treasures. And as you pass into the Grand Foyer, please don't let yourself be so beguiled by the brightly-lit candy counter that you fail to notice all the 'grandness' of the foyer. It is one of the glories of Art Deco, and its size, depth and sweep of staircase are simply overpowering. Study the great mural at the top of the grand staircase . . . beautiful beyond words—and priceless. The Grand Foyer is itself a great museum with its many set pieces and Art Deco art objects.

The Grand Foyer

Then go down to the lounges where john-elegance was born. The graffiti vandals, unfortunately, leave their spray-painted calling cards on the walls, and while regular effort is made to erase them, there'll be more tomorrow. For a long time, particularly during the World War II years, the lounge at Music Hall was the meeting/cruising area of servicemen. This continued until the great trans-Atlantic passenger ships of many nations called it a day. With all the humpy sailors of the Holland-America, French, Italian, Greek, Norwegian-American and Cunard lines coming into the Port of New York, all knew where to rendezvous. So cruising went on in many languages in the elegant downstairs Music Hall lounge.

Equally busy, if not more so—and quicker, too—has always been the men's room on the mezzanine. Not as large as the downstairs lounge, it has been the first 'port of call' for many a sailor, as for city-smart New York gay guys who prefer its more knowing/greetable intimacy.

Vandals are also at work in the auditorium, ripping the seats so frequently it's almost impossible for the staff to keep on a repair-schedule. Yet withal, the spirit of Tut and Art Deco remains; nothing diminishes its power . . . it is dauntless. So if you'll overlook the vandalism and give yourself over to the fullest enjoyment of the Music Hall's Egyptian-inspired Art Deco you will be rewarded beyond measure.

Queuing Up In Winter

Radio City Music Hall has been declared a New York Landmark, and thus, presumably, cannot be razed. Yet there is a developer's plan afoot to build a skyscraper atop it (air rights, and all that), so it's possible it may be closed for a considerable period while construction goes on. Therefore if you expect to visit or revisit the Big Apple anytime soon, be sure to include the Music Hall in your plans.

Who knows what might 'accidentally' happen during construction of the overhead addition, particularly in this age of deviousness and greed? This may sound foreboding, but it just may be that in the course of time there'll be another excavation . . . that of King Tut's Other Tomb. And unfortunately, what may be brought to light may not be as carefully preserved as the artifacts of Tut Tomb #1.

See it soon!

Gay Tangier

By Bill Miller

Tangier, at the crossroads of Europe and Africa, sits perched in the northwest corner of Morocco overlooking the Straits of Gibraltar and the spectacularly beautiful Spanish coast.

With the fabric of a truly international city: French, Spanish, German, Asiatic and English—it is a fascinating melting pot of many continents. It is also the gayest city in Morocco—if not in all of Africa.

You won't find a 1979 version of Humphrey Bogart, Camel cigarette dangling from his lower lip as the piano, off distance, tinkles out "As Time Goes By," but you will surely find more friendly natives and resident members of the large permanent international gay colony than you can handle.

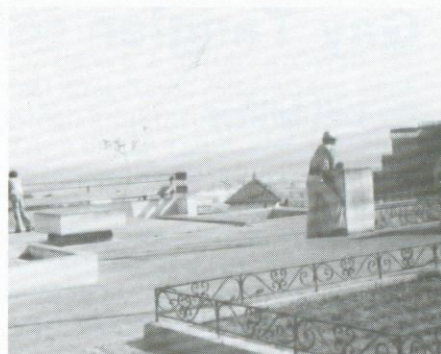

CRUISING

At any hour, cruising is the Number One pastime in Morocco. While most Moroccan men are uneasy about being considered homosexual, bisexuality is a fact of life and "adjustments" can be made.

Tangier's many sidewalk cafes, its main street with a postcard view of the harbor and port beyond the Medina and the old city and its waterfront boulevard are the major cruising areas. There is a frankness and openness in the cruising rarely encountered elsewhere. Little time is wasted. The approach is more direct and to the point than discreet. The problem becomes one of selection or rejection—rather than search.

Probably the choicest spot for cruising, day or night, is at a table at the comfortable and pleasant Cafe de Paris in the heart of the city, opposite the French Consulate on Place France. Here, everyone who is or isn't anyone, including the country's handsomest and most expensive hustlers, will sooner or later pass your table on business or pleasure.

Other especially pleasant

Views from the top—Tangier's Avenue Pasteur overlooks the Medina and Casbah of the ancient city, the Bay of Tangier with the Straits of Gibraltar and coast of Spain beyond. It is also Tangier's principal non-stop cruising area.

Scott's Bar, 12 rue Sanlucar, wildest disco in town—after midnight.

people-watching places are tables at the many small cafes in the old city's Petit and Grand Socco. But be wary of guides and street urchins begging for cigarettes, coins or whatever. The stretch of boulevard along the waterfront, from the steamer dock to the Hotel Rif, and beyond, is also busy by day, but whatever the hour, you will find a better-than-average share of hustlers in search of clients. Needless to say, at night stick to the well-lighted streets and cafes in the center of town and avoid completely the waterfront scene.

BEACH BARS

The waterfront, however, with its long line of beach bars, is the place to be during the day, especially during the summer months (May through September). The handsome Avenue d'Espagne that lines the waterfront at the foot of the town is a palm-lined boulevard, not unlike Barcelona's famous Ramblas, with a wide central mall for pedestrians and space on either side for vehicular traffic. The central mall with a generous supply of comfortable benches is ideal for promenade strolling or casual cruising.

Although a railroad track runs alongside the impressive boulevard between it and the beach, it is a busy cruising area extending from the steamer dock far along the length of the seafont. Directly below, and a few steps down from the railroad tracks, are the many gay beach "clubs." Most all have small bars, restaurants, lockers or "changing rooms" and open areas for sunbathing visible from the street above.

From here, boys from 15 and older aggressively cruise—stop, smile and greet sunbathers, hoping for an invitation to join them below in the Club's sunbathing and eventually other areas. You take your choice. The fee is minimal—about $3 and up, depending on the number of sunbathers, degree of interest, weather, and so on. A decent lunch, generally an excellent freshly-caught fish, is also about $3, and the locker, with a good local beer, can also be had for another $2 in Dirhams.

By resort standards, various beach clubs are singularly unpretentious and little more than beach shacks in the sand with their adjacent, often sunbathing, patios, inside bars and dining areas. They nevertheless serve their purpose and are both popular and pleasant.

Among the best is the Atlas, run by an affable Englishman, and located diagonally across from the Rif near Hotel Miramar. Nearby, the Windmill, also British owned, attracts a younger clientele, while the others—the Pergola, Coco Beach, Batouta, Carousel and the International, are all a mixed bag with something for everyone. You can walk from one to the other in a matter of minutes. About half remain open year-round, but from November through March business is slow to spotty. No matter what the season, don't miss a walk along the wide, sandy public beach with its magnificent view of Gibraltar and the Spanish coast on the opposite side of the bay.

RESTAURANTS

Although all dining places in Morocco are mixed, Tangier is blessed with several that could easily hold their own, from the standpoint of food and clientele, with New York's popular Uncle Charlie's. La Grenouille Restaurant, in the heart of the city at 3 rue el Jabja el Ouatania (formerly rue Rembrandt) near Avenue Pasteur, is probably best in town and easily the most popular. Here Frank Walker is the man in charge. He is a refugee from England and has attracted a first-rate staff in and out of the kitchen. His guests include the cream of the international gay colony, both living in and visiting Morocco. The tiny bar is a good meeting place and the point to pick up latest information on the newest disco opening, bar closing, or hottest sidewalk cruising area. The food is French and excellent.

The Nautilus, 9 rue Velasquez, nearby in the next block, similarly attracts a large gay group—both tourists and natives. The bar again is the meeting place and clearing house for what's new and "in." While neither of the two restaurants is by any means 100% gay, they are predominantly homosexual and wouldn't want it any other way. The food is fine, the help attractive and attentive.

BARS AND DISCOS

Because of the continual cruising on the streets, the beach, on sidewalk cafes and in restaurants, the gay bars in Morocco are almost superfluous if not unessential. But gay bars there are and the three tops are probably the Parade Bar and Restaurant (35 rue des Visignes), adjacent to the Hotel Atlas Annex; the Tangerine Bar (1 rue Magellan), not far from La Grenouille; and Scott's Bar (12 rue Sanlucar), in the center of town. Of these, Scott's Bar is a late, late place—newly redecorated, wild and noisy. The Tangerine, owned by two Englishmen, is a good place to talk, and the Parade is probably most popular with the international native gay crowd. There are other bars: Festival Bar, Manolo's Place, and Blow-Up, but are best left to the natives. Just as you would avoid New York's 42nd Street between Broadway and 8th Avenue after midnight, and often before, as a general rule avoid any of the many waterfront dives in Tangier after dark.

BATHS

If baths are your thing, you are in for some fabulous fun. There is a wide variety and they come with and without "boys" of your choice. Some have only steam and no sauna; nearly all have private rooms for "short-time occupancy." Most are in the Medina or Casbah, cannot be reached by taxi because of the narrow roads and guides are recommended. Casa Enrique, close to the Petit Socco in the Medina, is a basic institution. There are individual dressing rooms with individual steam rooms and you bring your own boy. Pension Enrique Arias (Banos y Duchas) at Calle Tamsamai 13, provides a fair selection of obliging boys. There are others without names or labels other than "Banos" easily reached with an understanding guide. Rates average $3 for entrance and about the same for the boys.

HOTELS

Unlike Amsterdam, Tangier offers no all-gay hotels, but the Hotel Marie Antoinette (6 rue Francisco Victoria), near the waterfront just up from the Hotel Rif, comes close, as does the better located Hotel Atlas, in the center of town. The Marco Polo, near the Marie Antoinette, is sympathetic to gay people and rooms at all three are moderately priced: $20 or less for singles. The Marie Antoinette is the least expensive (not all rooms have private baths). Ask for Room 6, if available.

The "Annex" of the Hotel Atlas is generally considered almost totally gay, and reservations for it are best made if you have a friend staying there, or if you have been there before. The hotel is clean and comfortable throughout, the rooms pleasant, and service very friendly. Single rooms begin at around $20 and include a Continental breakfast. The Atlas is convenient to most of Tangier's most popular cafes, bars and restaurants.

If money isn't a problem and you really want to enjoy the international flavor of Tangier, don't settle for anything less than the fabulous El Minzah Hotel (85 rue de la Liberte), in the heart of the city. It is an oasis of total luxury, one of the finest in Morocco. Its enchanting gardens, swimming pool, restaurants are little short of fabulous. There are 100 rooms and suites tastefully furnished with spacious baths, air-conditioned, with radios, TV and all other small amenities. The place is a landmark in the city, and for what it is it is not expensive. Singles are from $35; doubles from $55.

SHOPPING AND SIDE TRIPS

In the cosmopolitan city shops and the souks (bazaars) in the ancient Medina there are crafts of every kind: decorative ceramics, leather goods, caftans, Cafe de Paris, where all the world, on business or pleasure, sooner or later passes your table. The handsome iron gates are those of the French Consulate across the street.

Cafe de Paris, mixed—equally divided between gays, straights and hustlers.

La Grenouille, easily the gayest restaurant and bar.

Nautilus Restaurant, mainly gay, with exceptional service and fine food, especially fish.

silver and gold-filigree jewelry, woven straw mats and baskets, hammered brass trays, delicate white birdcages, and carpets, carpets everywhere. Everything is a bargain—depending on your negotiating skills.

Atlas Bar, opposite the Miramar and Rif hotels on handsome Avenue d'Espagne, is among the many more popular of Tangier's "beach club" bars on the waterfront.

The Atlas Hotel, in the center of town, whose "Annex" is almost always fully booked and fully gay. Reserve well ahead.

A week in Tangier should be anyone's minimum stay, because of a variety of nearby full- and half-day trips you shouldn't miss. You can visit Gibraltar by air, for example, on a full-day excursion, for as little as $48. Flights are 15 minutes each way! By boat to the famous Rock of Gibraltar takes about two and a half hours. On the all-day excursion you can visit the top of the Rock, watch the cavorting Barbary Apes, visit duty-free shops, and see a sound and light show in St. Michael's Caves.

There are also full-day excursions to Rabat, Fez and to Casablanca, the commercial capital and international gateway to Morocco. A shorter, half-day tour to Tetouan ($10.50) includes a walk through the ancient town and colorful souks in this capital of Northern Morocco with its towering minarets and mosques, sparkling fountains, castles, and elegant Palace.

For tour details and reservations, see your hotel concierge or the office of Royal Air Maroc in Tangier, just opposite the popular Cafe de Paris in the heart of the town.

Trips to Agadir and the southern coast are also recommended, but if time permits only one other Moroccan city, it probably should be Marrakech, about 200 miles inland to the Southwest. It is an eleventh-century city of palm groves and rose-red ramparts, set against the backdrop of the Atlas Mountains. From Marrakech, you can also visit the Atlas Mountains, the Sahara, or Morocco's South.

But all that is another story. For pure sex, the place to be—and to see—is Tangier.

Quebec City Plus . . . Montreal And Quebec's Summer Festivals

By Jerry Roberts
& Jon Lorrimer

The Quebec City Winter Carnival, beginning the first Thursday of February and continuing for ten fun-packed days and attracting many thousands of youthful visitors from all over Canada and even the United States—particularly on its two big weekends—is now well known throughout North America. Young guys of high-school and college age come by the chartered busloads to socialize, drink, have fun and sex. Needless to say, the 25th annual Winter Carnival was its usual huge success this year.

There are, however, two other festivals attended mainly by the under-25 crowd, both held during the warm summer months, when the youth of the Province of Quebec (many on vacation) turn out in full force to have fun in all its forms. These are the celebration of La Fete Nationale de Quebec (June 24), the Province's national day, and Quebec City's Festival d'Ete (July 3-15, 1979), a thirteen-day period packed full of Quebecois pop and folk music, plays, films, street dancing, magicians, theatre, musical groups and singers from other provinces and other countries, and other entertainment, most of it outdoors and a lot of it free of charge.

Both these summer festive times have a very enthusiastic following in the young people who are proud of their Province and its national day. With tens of thousands of young guys participating in both festivals the visitor has an excellent chance to meet and know many Quebecers. Cruising is far better than during the Winter Carnival when temperatures hover well below the zero mark, and since the summer air is warm, the guys are on the streets into the wee hours of the morning. Rue St. Jean, in the Quartier Latin, is Quebec City's main street, and is closed to traffic every evening after 7 o'clock to allow the hordes of youthful visitors a safe place to mingle (and cruise).

Full details on gay watering spots, baths and cruising areas, as well as hotels in Montreal are given in the June 1977 issue of Ciao!, while those for Quebec City, including a listing of the more exciting restaurants appeared in the February 1977 issue. Reprints of these articles are available from the QQ Publishing Company for $1.50 each. Also, our gay travel guidebook "Private Stock" lists newer cruising spots, bars and baths. This is also available from QQ Publishing Company. An advertisement about this handy guidebook appears elsewhere in this issue.

LA FETE NATIONALE DE QUEBEC (Quebec's National Holiday)

This celebration begins late on

CIAO!

June 23rd and continues through the 25th. The celebration will be more jubilant this year since the Parti Quebecois, whose aim is to preserve the French-Canadian culture and heritage by separating the Province from the rest of Canada, is gaining momentum and support.

Most of the celebration is after sundown. Since Montreal is the largest city in Quebec, it offers the most fun to the gay visitor, and gives him a chance to participate in the celebration and meet so many other gay guys. More than 150 streets in 28 neighborhoods in Montreal are closed to traffic to accommodate all the merrymaking in the streets. No trouble from the police is experienced. Drinking in the streets is permitted, and there is really no harassment about grass or dope. On the other hand, Quebec City's celebration of National Day is more subdued, simply because the population is smaller. So I'd recommend that you reserve this city for the July 3-15 Festival d'Ete.

This year, National Day, June 24, falls on Sunday, so the weekend celebrations should be the best yet; nearly everyone is off from work and Monday is a holiday for most. Things will get under way slowly on Saturday evening, June 23, and will reach their grand climax on Sunday evening and continue until sun-up on Monday. Bars will be open every day, including Sunday.

Celebrations take place in neighborhoods all over Montreal. There are five main areas, however, where the action is really concentrated, spontaneous and youth-oriented. These are: St. Denis Street; Place Jacques Cartier in old Montreal; Crescent Street; Terre des Hommes on Ile St. Helene; and Lafontaine Park. All can be reached by the Metro (subway).

Of all North Americans, the French-Canadians have perhaps the greatest natural sense of joie de vivre (nearly all are descendants of some 60,000 French immigrants who settled in Quebec before the British conquered it in 1759); most are not materia-listically inclined, but want to taste and enjoy life in all its forms at every opportunity, especially at this national festival. Amid all these thousands, only one small criminal act (which turned out to be a hoax) was reported by the police during the celebrations in Montreal last year.

You can buy beer in the streets from outdoor stands at $1 a can, or get it in a grocery store, along with wine, even on Sunday till midnight. A drink offered another from your own bottle is a very friendly and acceptable way of introducing yourself to anyone you want to meet. It's a wonderful way to cruise.

Brush up on your high-school or college French; it will be most appreciated. Explain that you're a visitor from the States who has come up to celebrate and you'll be welcomed with open arms.

Start your celebration in Place Jacques Cartier, where last year about 20,000 young people jammed the area, filling the air with the heavy aroma of pot and hash while listening to various bands. The area is the hangout for youthful hip visitors to Montreal, and those living here. Quite a few are gay or bisexual, and prefer the simpler, down-to-earth atmosphere to the more sophisticated atmosphere of gay clubs and bars in west Montreal. There are so many interesting cafes, boites, bistros and discos here, many featuring live music. It's a good place to meet an earthy, friendly guy any time during the summer.

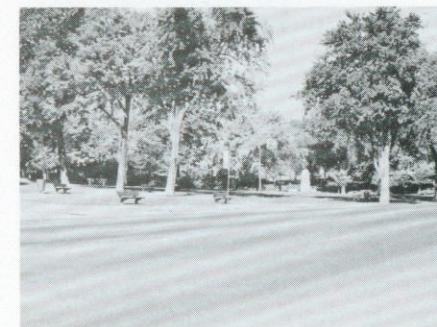

Another exciting spot is St. Denis Street, a bit north of Place Jacques Cartier. The most jubilant and nationalistic celebrations take place here with over 13,000 participating last year. There are many coffee houses, bistros, bars and restaurants that sell beer both inside and at sidewalk outlets; also outdoor cafes. St. Denis is a long street, the most active part running northward from St. Catherine Street, and there's lots to see. Music, dancing, singing . . . all along the way. Everybody has some pot or beer to share. Since many Montreal students and some of this hip crowd live in the small buildings along the street, they frequent the cafes, bars and restaurants along the way. Small groups cluster about to entertain you. Lots of people are in costume, and there are even makeup artists who'll give you a funny face so you, too, can clown it up.

The one block of Crescent Street between St Catherine Street West and de Maisonneuve Boulevard in west Montreal, was visited by an estimated 5000 of the 'beautiful' people last June, many of them joining in the spirited folk dances in the street. These are more affluent, better-dressed, disco-type people. Here on this street is a large concentration of chic discos, bars and pubs. It's only a few blocks west of Stanley Street, where most of Montreal's swiftest gay clubs are situated.

Over 150,000 people attended the free music show and other entertainment at Place des Nations on Ile Ste. Helene last year. There should be even more this time. There are usually so many that many sleep in doorways or on park benches. Also a good way to make out. When possible, many Montrealers invite the celebrants to their homes. Share a bed!

Lafontaine Park (facing on Sherbrooke Street) is the site of much good entertainment and is wonderful for cruising, so check it out. It's great not only during National Day, but at all other times of the year. There is no problem in bringing friends to your room in any of Montreal's big hotels . . . something you might not be able to do at other, less-festive times.

FESTIVAL D'ETE DE QUEBEC

The 12th Festival d'Ete de Quebec (Quebec Summer Festival) will run this year, as mentioned, from July 3rd to 15th in Quebec City. If you'd like a booklet listing the various events for each day of the festival, write Festival d'Ete de Quebec, Box 24, Station B, Quebec, P.Q., Canada G1K 7A1 or telephone (418) 692-0411.

During the 1978 Festival, some 2,000 artists presented more than 500 shows in 20 locations in the streets, parks, courtyards and indoor theaters. Plays, movies, magicians, acrobats, marionettes, mime groups, street dances, rock dances indoors, with emphasis on Quebecois music are all part of the program. A nightly rock concert in the former downtown railway station was very popular. Nightly classical concerts in the courtyard of the Petit Seminaire were filled to capacity. An outdoor band concert by Canada's Royal 22nd Regiment at the Citadelle, featuring real cannons and a battle with muskets firing between two 18th-century costumed armies, were part of the effects for the Tchaikovsky 1812 Overture (this is repeated yearly).

A concert of Quebecois pop music in the Bois de Cologne grounds attracted more than 75,000 young people on a hot Sunday evening, and will be repeated this year. The 1978 festival ended with a 4-hour pop concert on Dufferin Terrace, topped with a monumental fireworks display. Artists and groups from outside the Province of Quebec participate in this festival.

Most bars, cafes, bistros, boites, brasseries and other watering spots have special musical groups to entertain their patrons. With the hot weather, the windows are open, so you can savor everything from the outside.

Nearly all events in the Festival d'Ete take place within the Quartier Latin in the old walled city, starting at Place d'Youville, following along rue St. Jean and continuing right up to Dufferin Terrace—the boardwalk beside the famous Hotel Chateau Frontenac. Each evening there are free musical events on the Terrace, and during the daytime in the parks.

The various kinds of entertainment are about equally good each day, so there's no special time that the crowds come. Guys crowd the city streets in large numbers every evening.

Actually, rue St. Jean is closed to traffic after 7 p.m., from Carre d'Youville eastward, so there's lots of room for the large crowd of youthful visitors to mingle, smoke pot or drink on this street.

Benches, bordered by potted flowers, are conveniently located along rue St. Jean. Guys walk slowly along the street, stand about in doorways, fill the small squares and parks between Place d'Youville and the Chateau Frontenac, crowd Dufferin Terrace and its long row of benches, and, of course, fill the many outdoor cafes.

You can meet the motorcycle crowd at Place d'Youville where there is a large reserved space to park bikes, and talk. Many youthful visitors make it to Quebec City just for this 13-day event, so it's all the more exciting for the gay visitor. This is the time to come, cruise, see the sights, and taste the old-world atmosphere of Quebec City. The atmosphere is more relaxed and the fun more spontaneous.

During the day the sun is warm; the night is pleasantly cool. Drinking and pot are okay in the streets; the police are there with a smile to maintain order, not break up the fun.

If possible, make your reservations far in advance at one of the big hotels, all of which are within walking distance of the Festival area in the Quartier Latin (Hotel Chateau Frontenac, the Hilton, Loew's Le Concord, Hotel Victoria, etc.). If you come without reservations there is always a room available at one of the small guest houses in the Quartier Latin, and possibly at one or more of the hotels.

GUIDE BOOKS

Most of the better restaurants and all of the sights of historical and scenic interest are listed in the free monthly magazine Quebec Au Bout Des Doigts, with maps to show you how to get there on foot. Ask for it at your hotel, or at the tourist bureau.

For sightseeing on foot, get a copy of Walking Tour of Old Quebec from the tourist bureau on 60 rue d'Auteuil, or at its office just below the Chateau Frontenac at 12 rue St. Anne. Also available at the rue d'Auteuil office is a city map—Que- bec—Access to the City—and a leaflet, Metropolitan Quebec Welcomes You, describing the main attractions in Quebec and surrounding area.

The sightseeing booklet entitled "Quebec" published by Les Guides ABC for $2.00, as well as "Bonnes Tables de Quebec", a booklet listing 95 restaurants in the area, are very useful. Both are bilingual and available at most magazine and tobacco stores, and are a must for anyone staying longer than a day or so in Quebec City. The same company also publishes "Montreal," "Les Bonnes Tables de Montreal" and "Le Vieux Montreal." They are available for $2 each, plus 50¢ postage from Les Guides Touristiques B.B.C., Inc., 990 rue Begin, Suite 2, Quebec, P.Q. Canada G1S 3J4.

HOW TO SEE THE SIGHTS OF QUEBEC CITY

You can see many sights in Quebec City, including the Plains of Abraham and the magnificent display of flowers in Le Jardin de Jean d'Arc during an hour's ride in a horsedrawn carriage (caleche) at $15 for the hour's tour, plus tip. There are some handsome bilingual (in more than one sense) students who drive these carriages. Arrangements can be made with them for seeing more sights during their off hours! Most of the carriages are stationed next to the Chateau Frontenac.

Your own student guide is available at $10 per hour for a minimum of 2 hours. Inquiries and advance reservations can be made at the Kiosque on Dufferin Terrace (694-0665). These students are completely bilingual, well dressed, and many would love to show you more sights and a good restaurant in the evening.

There are many interesting bus tours of the city and surrounding area, as well as boat cruises along the St. Lawrence River. Leaflets are available at the Kiosque on Dufferin Terrace, and buses depart just a few feet away. I highly recommend the bus tour around the very picturesque Island of Orleans, which departs at 2 p.m. daily from the Kiosque, and lasts 3½ hours. You'll see the old homes that the settlers from Normandy built in the 17th and 18th centuries, and the fertile farms that produce some of the world's most luscious strawberries, as well as lovely churches in the little villages. A stop is made so that you can see Montmorency Falls, 275 feet high.

You can rent a tape-recorder from the Kiosque that will aid you in seeing the sights on foot.

A good selection of bicycles is available near the corner of rue Tache and Avenue Grande Allee East, just one block west of Loew's Le Concord Hotel. Their selection includes quadricycles, tandem, as well as fast bikes. Rentals start at 11 a.m.

Two large municipal garages, one under City Hall and one at Place d'Youville, provide inexpensive 24-hour parking. There is also one under the Hilton Hotel.

Buses run from Quebec to Montreal hourly from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m., the trip taking about 3 hours.

SIGHTS NOT TO MISS IN QUEBEC CITY

The Changing of the Guard at 10 a.m. or retreat at 7 p.m., is very colorful and well worth seeing at the Citadelle, just above the Chateau Frontenac.

If you want a bit of peace and quiet, start out on foot from the Chateau Frontenac and walk westward along Chemin St. Louis to the Plains of Abraham. Turn to your left at the Parliament Buildings and explore the Plains of Abraham; there is some good cruising during the daytime. Continue westward to a magnificent display of a great many kinds of flowers in Le Jardin de Jean d'Arc (one block west of Loew's Le Concord Hotel). Continue westward to the Quebec Museum. There is a large playing field in front where guys are playing all kinds of informal sports. Bring your Frisbee, football or baseball, or ask the guys if you can join in, as there is always room for one more. Soccer is popular here.

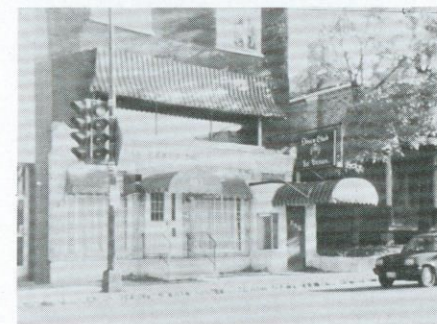

When you walk back, go one

block over to Grande Allee East and cruise the many little outdoor cafes and restaurants between Loew's Le Concord and the Parliament Buildings (one long but interesting block). Two of these are described below.

QUEBEC'S OUTDOOR CAFES AND INTERESTING NON-GAY INDOOR SPOTS

Rose Marie Outdoor Cafe Club, 583 Grande Allee East, provides a superb, elevated view of the street with a nice crowd of people, somewhat better class that you'll ordinarily meet in the cafes of the Quartier Latin.

Brasserie Grande Allee, 684 Grande Allee East, is a fine place to sip a beer in late afternoon or early evening and watch the passing parade on the sidewalk. The filet mignon and shish-kebab here are delicious and inexpensive.

These are just two of the many places on Grande Allee, all of which should be checked out.

There are always lots of interesting students to meet from all countries, including many Blacks from Africa who are attending the summer session at Laval University, and who spend their late-afternoon and early-evening hours at the outdoor Cafe Terrasse on their campus just in front of Pavilion Pollock. Beer is inexpensive and the sun is warm in the late afternoon. You reach there on a #7 bus from downtown, which lets you off right at the entrance to the University.

There are many interesting outdoor cafes within the old walled city in the Quartier Latin, all within a few minutes walk of each other. You can see who's there and stop where you like. It is often more profitable to cruise the outdoor cafes where there are lots of hunky bisexual and gay guys, than to make the rounds of the few gay bars and clubs.

Quebec is a small city and many of the guys do not want to be seen in the gay bars. Late afternoon is a great time for meeting a nice guy in the street, in one of the parks, or at a sidewalk cafe—all in the Quartier Latin. They are eager to meet visitors and appreciate the chance to practice their English. Quebec is nearly 90% French-speaking, so make the first move with a smile and a "bon jour" followed by a question on the location of a bar, restaurant or sight you're interested in locating, and your conversation is off to a good start.

We shall mention a few of the outdoor cafes, starting at Place d'Youville, going down rue St. Jean, and ending at the Chateau Frontenac—a leisurely stroll of about 15 minutes. Just window-shop and stop where the 'merchandise' appeals to you. Most of the places serve either light snacks or full meals.

Le Croque Mitaine, 33 rue d'Auteuil, is perhaps the most popular. It's jammed nightly, and on sunner afternoons, with beautiful young guys and gals, many of whom are looking for someone.

Figaro Cafe Terrace, rue d'Auteuil, is just down the block from Le Croque Mitaine and draws about the same crowd. The main entrance for the indoor cafe is around the corner on rue St. Jean.

Le Chateaufeuil, 1101 rue St. Jean, while not an outdoor cafe, draws a crowd of intellectuals who are ready to discuss any subject in the intimate atmosphere of this small, very popular cafe. Meat pie, salmon pie and shrimp pizza at reasonable prices are very good.

Le Terrace du Roy, 1034 rue St. Jean, features films of singers on a large screen which can be seen from the street. A large place, it draws all types.

Brasserie Le Foyer, 1044 rue St. Jean, while an indoor place, is very popular with the student set. Beer and good steaks at inexpensive prices. Good evenings.

La Cour, 1117 rue St. Jean, houses a series of small hip boutiques with a very popular bar crowded with the young head set at night. Walk in the narrow entrance and look at the shops.

Le Bec Fin, 1123 rue St. Jean, is the place the young set goes for a late-night snack, such as a delicious submarine, roast beef sandwich, quiche Lorraine, pizza or pastries, accompanied by good loud rock music. Its lovely open-air terrace on the second floor with a large tree growing through the floor and extending for 15 feet about it, is very pleasant in the evening. It's jammed every evening. Mostly jeans, mostly young, but everybody is welcome—friendly. Get your midnight lunch here or offer to take a new friend here for a snack.

La Guinguette, 1157 rue St. Jean, has a large clientele of young people. Colorful surroundings. A good beer stop.

Le Gaulois, 65 rue Buade (opposite the City Hall) is the place where the hunkiest guys and gals go for a drink, snack, and leisurely conversation. Good Quebecois musical entertainment in the evenings. Very popular. Try the second floor.

L'Atelier, just next to Le Gaulois, has a good musical group and outdoor drinking on a warm evening.

Chalet Suisse, 26 rue St. Anne (just below the Chateau Frontenac) has many tables outside its restaurant. Great fondues and steaks.

DISCOS AND BOITES IN QUEBEC CITY

All the places mentioned below are basically straight and are in the same area as the outdoor cafes just mentioned. Gays and bisexuals come here.

Vendredi le Treize Discotheque, 1018 rue St. Jean, attracts the real far-out disco crowd, many in full regalia, and many just here to be seen. Lots of gay guys dancing with gals who feel safe with gays. Very popular, and the gayest of the straight discos. No jeans.

Le Bistro Disco, 1063 rue St. Jean, has two floors of disco dancing and conversation with a good average crowd. Easy to meet a nice guy. No jeans; entry fee $1.00.

Le Circle Electrique, Cote de Palais, just down the hill from La Guinguette on 1157 rue St. Jean, is the city's largest disco and the only one offering live music, featuring good rock groups from Canada and the United States. A very mixed and young crowd, with some heads.

Bar Elite, 54 rue Couillard, situated on the continuation of rue St. Jean where it meets rue de la Fabrique, is very popular with a hip crowd who are easy to meet, and are of all sexual persuasions. Entertainment evenings. Look in the window and you can see who's there.

L'Ostradamous, 29 rue Couillard, features local musical talent each evening. A very popular and friendly little boite frequented by the hip set of all sex tastes. Extremely friendly and down-to-earth guys. Many artistic clients.

Le Crenau, 48 rue de la Fabrique, offers a folk singer and guitarist or group each evening. Its two floors are jammed with a young, middle-class crowd that's a bit hard to meet, but the atmosphere and music are typical of Quebec.

Le Balzac Discotheque, rue de Tresoir, with its telephones at the tables and loud rock music, is the 'in' place at the moment.

OTHER PLACES IN QUEBEC CITY

Place des Armes Park (below the Chateau Frontenac) and the little park just opposite the City Hall are all good places to watch the passing crowd and meet interesting people on the benches or grass.

Don't miss the hundreds of inexpensive watercolors, etchings and paintings displayed on the walls of rue du Tresoir just below the Chateau Frontenac. They make a nice, inexpensive gift for a friend, as well as a fine souvenir for yourself. The people selling the paintings, generally friends of the artist, are very sympathetic, and you may well find somebody you'll want to make a rendezvous with after midnight. Paintings hang from early in the morning until about midnight.

Youthful craftsmen can be seen making various items of artsiana in the courtyard of the Anglican Cathedral, near the Chateau Frontenac and place des armes. Some of the guys there are very sympathetic.

Roller-skating at Place Quebec, just beneath the Hilton Hotel (next to the Parliament Buildings) draws a big crowd of young guys every evening. The skates and shoes can be rented. Cruising is very good evenings in Place Quebec (beneath the Hilton Hotel) where many guys go to look in the windows of boutiques, or to one of the movie theaters, restaurants or bars. The toilet on the main floor at the corner of St. Cyrille Boulevard is the best direct cruising spot in Place Quebec.

QUEBEC CITY'S GAY BARS AND BATHS

In case you forget your gay guide, "Private Stock," here's a listing of the gay bars and baths in Quebec City:

TAVERNS

(Closed Sunday)

Taverne Jean Caron, 1087 rue St. Jean.

Taverne Quartier Latin, 1190 rue St. Jean.

Taverne Select, 925 Cote d'Abraham.

BAR

Le 640, 640 rue St. Jean.

DISCOTHEQUES

(Open 'til 3 a.m.)

L'Alouette, 1169 rue St. Jean (3 floors).

Le Ballon Rouge, 811 rue St. Jean.

Le Venus, 157 rue St. Jean (2 floors).

BATHS

(24 hours a day)

Le Sauna Hippocampe, 31 rue McMahon.

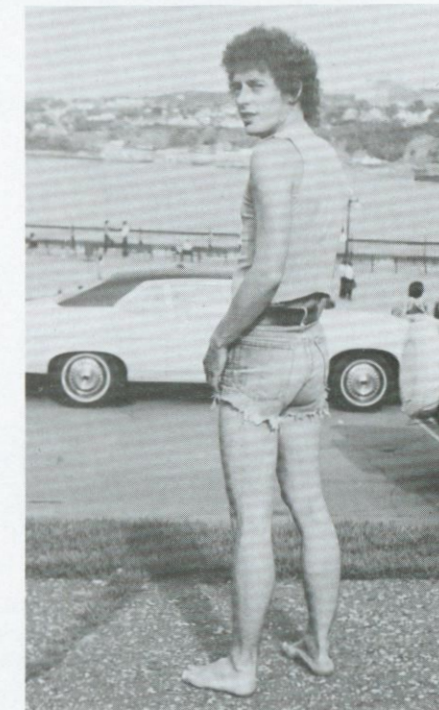

Le Bain Sauna, 920 rue St. Jean (2nd floor).

There's lots to see and do in Quebec City during the Festival d'Ete, most of it out-of-doors. The air is fresh and the city is jammed at this time with young guys, most of whom have little money, lots of free time, and are eager to meet other guys from different backgrounds. Visitors are welcome, and hospitality and friendliness are the order of the day. Montreal and Ottawa are just a few hours' bus ride from Quebec City and worth a few days' visit.

Hope to see you in Quebec City this summer. Dress informally.

COMPUTERIZED PERSONAL ADS LIST NO. 24

- Free Ads For Subscribers
- Only $1 For Forwarding Replies

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD

For as long as you are a subscriber to any of our magazines (QQ Magazine, BODY or Ciao!) we will run your Personal Ad absolutely free in every issue of all our publications. Simply send us your ad not to exceed 30 words (name and address count as 2 words). If the message exceeds 30 words send $1 per word additional. Only 1 ad to a subscriber (no matter how many magazines you subscribe to). You may change your ad as often as you like, but notify us at least 3 months in advance. Use your own name, address and/or phone number, or we will assign you a private code number and forward your mail when it arrives (see "How To Answer An Ad" below). We reserve the right to change wording in keeping with our editorial policy. Please print clearly and indicate which magazine(s) you subscribe to. Be sure and include your full name and address for our records (even if not used in your ad). Send to: QQ Publishing Co., Inc., Suite 602, 450 Seventh Ave., New York, N.Y. 10001. Use the handy coupon provided in this ad section if desired.

HOW TO ANSWER AN AD

Anyone may answer an ad, subscribers and non-subscribers alike. Write or phone the advertiser directly if an address and/or phone number is given. If a code appears at the end of the ad, here's how to reply: 1. Seal your letter in a small "personal size" envelope. 2. Write the code number very small but clearly in one of the corners on the back of the envelope. 3. Place the envelope(s) to be forwarded in a larger "business size" envelope along with $1 for every letter we are to forward for you. (If $1 does not accompany each letter to be forwarded, the letter(s) will be discarded by us; you may send cash, a check or money-order but no postage stamps, please.) 4. Seal the larger envelope, address to us (QQ Publishing Co., Inc., 450 Seventh Ave. Suite 602, New York, N.Y. 10001), and affix proper postage for mailing. Make certain that if several envelopes are enclosed that enough postage is used to cover the weight, and do not use one of our postage-free business-reply envelopes for sending us such mail (we will not process mail arriving in our business envelopes, sorry). 5. You will hear directly from the advertiser and from then on correspond directly; please do not ask us to act in your behalf at that point. (We advise you to use caution with strangers you make contact with.)

HOW THE COMPUTERIZED CODE WORKS

Advertisers who use their own address and/or phone number do not require a code or our $1 forwarding service. Those desiring a code so that we may forward mail are assigned a number which remains in our files (nobody but us ever sees your name, address or code number . . . we guarantee privacy). We then record this code and your address in our electronic computer. When mail arrives at our offices for forwarding your code is entered into our computer and in seconds your name and address are placed on the letters bearing your code. Postage is applied by us and your letters are on their way . . . thus guaranteeing you privacy (those answering your ad never see your address until you write directly to them after receiving their letters, if you wish to do so) and speed.

NON-SUBSCRIBERS AND BUSINESSMEN NOTE

If you are a non-subscriber or have a business-type ad (for the sale of merchandise, a service, etc.) you may purchase ad space on a one-time-per-payment basis at $1 per word (name and address count as 2 words). You may use your name, address and/or phone number or we will assign you a code (see details above). Personal ads will appear normally; business ads will appear in white type on a black panel at no extra charge. If your ad is personal please be sure and include your age. Send all ads to: QQ Publishing Co., Inc., Suite 602, 450 Seventh Ave., New York, N.Y. 10001.

1979 GAY TRAVEL DIRECTORY

From The Editors Of Ciao!—The Most Celebrated Gay Travel Magazine In The World—A 1979 International Travel Directory Containing Nearly 4,000 Up-To-Date And Accurate Keyed Names And Addresses Of Gay Hotels, Bars, Baths, Movie Houses, Book/Sex Shops, Meeting Places And Action Spots Throughout The U.S.A., Canada, Mexico, Central America, The Caribbean, South America, Europe, Africa, The Middle East, Asia, And The Pacific . . . Your Passport To Gay Adventure In A Compact Booklet Small Enough To Fit In Your Pocket!

THE MOST ACCURATE GAY TRAVEL DIRECTORY IN THE WORLD

Nearly all existing gay travel directories are "rip-offs" of guides published years ago—providing information which is no longer valid. The editors of our gay travel magazine span the world—constantly gathering information for Ciao! They have prepared our 1979 gay travel directory—which we call "Private Stock." It contains nearly 4,000 accurate and up-to-date names and addresses of gay establishments and meeting places everywhere in the world—conveniently arranged by country and city in alphabetical order. By utilizing a concise system of "keys" we are able to present detailed information about each listing; the keys are so arranged that you can instantly interpret them and learn everything you need to know—whether a place is entirely gay, what you will encounter—young guys, old guys, sex, no booze, entertainment, food, lesbians, hustlers, muggers, cops, even dangerous animals (in jungle meat-racks!). And we dare to bare it all—including johns on college campuses, in subways and department stores that swing. By using small type which is easy to read we are able to cram all this valuable information in a compact booklet which is securely stapled together in magazine form and small enough (3x5) to fit in your shirt pocket. Its cover is durable and leather-grained with absolutely no "tell-tale" printing so that discreet travelers can use it anywhere. Plus other features such as where to look for sex in college towns, and how much hustlers are paid—and how to handle them. Published annually—"Private Stock" is the only gay travel directory you need . . . the only one you will ever want. It is your personal address book for hot times! Sent via certified 1st class.
