GOOD HEALTH & SEXUAL VIGOR CAN BE YOURS

Vitamins are substances which are required by the body if it is to function properly. They are normally provided by foods, but not always in sufficient quantities. This is particularly true of processed foods which have been depleted of their vitamin content.

When extraordinary demands tax the body its nutrients are drained and must be replenished. We do this through proper nutrition; by eating good foods and supplementing our meals with vitamins and minerals. Those of us who have sex every day are especially concerned about the ability to perform successfully and safeguard against impotency—a condition which may be aggravated when certain nutrients are lacking . . . particularly those vitamins associated with sexual potency.

First and foremost the sexually-active adult should take a powerful multi-vitamin & mineral tablet daily for his general well being. During times of stress, and particularly the type which is associated with sex, the body requires more energy and therefore demands additional B vitamins to assist in the metabolic processes. Vitamin E is associated with sexual prowess and is consumed by thousands of sexually-active people who attribute their drive in great part to this vitamin. Bee pollen is gathered from the bee colonies and unsprayed flower fields in Southern Europe—where it is believed that bee pollen has aphrodisiacal properties. Korean Ginseng, particularly highest quality "heaven grade" processed from roots that are at least six years old, has for thousands of years been considered a wondrous rejuvenator and reactivator of the sexual organs in the Orient.

With this knowledge we have combined the highest-quality natural food supplements available for sexually-active adults. Three Sex Combos are available to meet the most discriminating requirements—and only you will know their value after you have added them to your diet. And like hundreds of others now taking Sex Combos we believe you too will find a new and livelier sexual awareness in your life.

The components may be purchased separately, but greater savings are realized when they are bought as Sex Combo packages.

Gay Morocco

Casablanca/Tangier Marrakesh/Agadir

By Jon Lorrimer

Notes by Dick Claybourne

"Morocco, eh . . . super!" a friend may say when you tell him about your proposed vacation. "I've often thought of going, but—well-I-I . . ."

"Well-I-I" may mean that he's given a lot of thought to going but the idea has never really excited him. This may well be a reaction to too many late-night showings of Casablanca, with Bergman and Bogie sitting around the piano of that seedy seaside bar as Dooley Wilson plays and gravel-growls "As Time Goes By."

Or perhaps too many hackneyed film lines, songs and situations stick in the memory ("Play it again, Sam.") Or Bing and Bob and Dorothy Lamour "Off on the Road to Morocco" for the howmanyeth time. Or back further to Charles Boyer and "Come wiz me to ze Casbah." All that made-on-the-Warner-soundstage hokum has made Morocco a kind of déjà vu cliché . . . oddly, you think you have seen it without ever having been there.

Other gay people have various unfounded reservations about why they haven't gone to this fabled land . . . among them—

a) that it's all desert and blistering sand

b) that the only humpy number in Morocco is a camel

c) that every day at noon the sky rains pigeon turds when the castrated muezzin, in a cracked boy-soprano voice, screeches loudly for the faithful to bow three times toward Mecca—thereby scaring the turds out of the birds

d) that the standard entertainment in Morocco is the ubiquitous belly dance which, as Ted Shawn once said, "is more belly than dance," performed by fat-assed, Indira-faced women

e) that because all men wear long caftans and burnouses you can't get a bead on a basket to see whether a number is worth cruising . . . he's all feet and beard

f) that, as in feudal times, gays are routinely beheaded if discovered hanky-panky . . . their heads being mounted on pikes in the Medina as a lesson to others

g) that if teen-young and handsome, visitors will be kidnapped and forced into a gay harem of a rich merchant, only

h) to be dispatched by sword when their 'beauteh' has gone—their foreskins being sliced off, stretched, cured, and made into exotic lampshades ("Ah, but what a lovely light he sheds!").

Allowing for the possible lone exception that you still might be hit by a flying pigeon turd (for even pigeons seem to be into scat these days), none of the foregoing reservations is valid. For one thing, all those humpy young-hungs of Morocco wear European-cut trousers and have also discovered Levis, and so you'll see more 'bunsifilled' jeans than underfilled caftans—a real throat-clutching heart-stopper with all that big thick throbbing Arab meat bulging beneath. You simply stop in your tracks, gawk, grab for a popper, and orgasm in your pants . . . right there before Allah and everybody!

Language.

You'll be able to communicate early—and with accuracy (especially when dealing with a hustler) if you speak French (or Arabic). You'll be able to manage with English, but it can be trying.

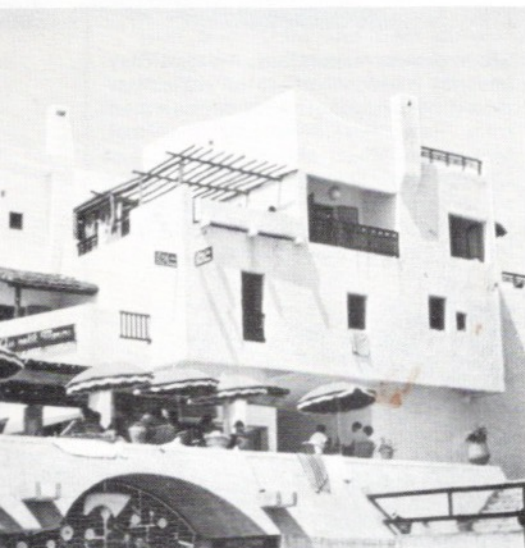

THE KISSY MOROCCANS

For all his fierce machismo (Morocco being only tippytoes away from Spain where machismo was invented), the gay Moroccan is the most affectionate trick in bed. All that rutting fierceness or fierce ruttingness disappears the moment the sheet is pulled, and he's the kissigest guy . . . over-and-under-and-all-around. You'll wish there were more of you to give him greater mileage! He just can't seem to cover enough of you with his kisses . . . like a young puppy rescued from the dog pound. Although this can be said to be a gay national trait, it seems to be more specifically so in Casablanca . . . possibly because of its diverse mixtures of romantic in-port sailors who have been to just about everywhere and know how to suck 'n fuck 'n kiss in 33 languages, including 16 dialects of the Chinese. Wherever you go in Morocco, however, you'll find that the more insistent his macho facade, the more affectionate the Moroccan is in bed.

HASSLING . . .

Although gay guys haven't been put to the sword or prepuce into lampshades since the French and Spanish occupation of the country early in this century, it is well to keep a low profile when cruising in the main streets and Medinas of Morocco's larger cities: Tangier, Marrakesh, Agadir and (to a far lesser extent) Casablanca (for one thing, because it's as large and as cosmopolitan as Toronto—nearly 2 million—and, for another, because of its sail-in/sail-out seaport anything-goes). In any event, this is not because the police are overly uptight about sucking 'n sodomy (which is, however, illegal), but because—in conjunction with Interpol—they are on the lookout for dope smugglers, of which Casablanca has plenty. So when street-meeting becomes noticeably prolonged the police become suspicious, and without warning or given reason you can be hustled off to the pokey for questioning. So if eye-cruising yields a responsive flutter from another, you may be sure he'll know the situation and will quickly suggest your hotel or his pad. Don't dilly-dally.

. . . AND HUSTLING

Morocco is by no means one of the underprivileged nations, yet its standard of living is somewhat lower in scale than that of nearby European countries. So you may expect to be set upon by competitive young hustlers—often hordes of them—wherever you go. They are ever-present. Even in the smallest town the porter who finally wins the battle to carry your bags to your hotel will try to make a date for later. If it can be said that hustling is pandemic now, with our greater gay world-recognizance, and endemic to all European and Atlantic/Afro vacation areas, it is actually epidemic throughout Morocco!

For example, even in such a smaller town as Essaouira. Essaouira looks like a typical Mediterranean white village—its houses accented by blue doors and shutters, in Portuguese style—where visitors come to see its ancient battlements and towers from which invaders from across the Atlantic were repelled. The hustling begins at the bus station where teenage boys vie to carry your luggage and offer you sex on the way to the hotel. They're handsome and charming, and worth every dirham they charge. Their price is less than in larger towns. At the present falling-dollar rate of exchange, $1 is worth 4.5 dirhams—a 'princely' sum for a 'lordly' (he'll be huge!) trick. (One of our correspondents who visits Morocco often, rents a car and does the roads all night long—picking up guys for trade at about $5 a throw. He particularly likes the soldiers, and sometimes takes on two at a time. And he claims it's safe.)

Because Morocco is nothing if not a land of colorful history, you may also expect your chosen guide to the Essaouirian historical sites (and has also vied for the honor) to be a hustler as well. While knowledgeably escorting you through the mediocrity of his lovely town, somewhere among the gun emplacements of Essaouira he will whip out his own . . . much to your surprise and delight!

In general, the teenage hustlers of the smaller towns are fun and funky, like those in Haiti who zone in on American gay visitors. In larger cities, however, they are a tad older (twenties) and tend to bear down and bargain harder. Here, they are more like the Turks . . . they can drive a hard bargain (can they everrr-r-r!).

These Moroccans have a can-ny idea of how affluent you are. You will be wise, therefore, to leave ostentation in your hotel room; don dungarees and scuffed sandals; leave your valuables and most of your money in the hotel safe . . . and take only about 113 dirhams—$25 American—with you each time you go out cruising. This will be quite enough for the two 33.75-dirham ($7.50) tricks, (Why only two? Wait and see!) with enough left for a snack, a drink, or a cruise movie. Since it is forbidden (for security reasons) to take hustlers back to your hotel—your trick will suggest a ‘rendezvous hotel’ where you can rent a room for a short time for a few dollars; he will arrange everything. If you take more money—and carelessly flash it—you can be sure that the Moroccan hustler will begin his bargain/haggle at a far higher figure. So the more ‘student tourist’ you look and dress, and the less money you carry, the lower his initial bargaining figure will be. Stay solvent!

ALL THAT JIZZUM!

Another observation about sexing with the horny Moroccan. He loves to cum-m-m ‘n cum-m-m and then explode some more. No matter whether he’s a 4.5-dirham teenage ‘guide’ in Essaouira or a 33.75-dirham Casablanca sophisticate, you can be sure you’ll get every damn dirham’s worth of his jizzum. He won’t let you miss a drop of it.

In some corner of the Moroccan gay guy’s mind is the unshakable conviction that he invented the cum-machine, and that it thrives best on overwork. So unless you’re geared for lengthy sex, as though it were a play . . . a Tennessee Williams three-act, or an Ibsen four-, or a Shakespeare five- (plus prologue and epilogue, and allowing a few last drops for an unexpected apotheosis), don’t get his boiler burning. He’s just not gonna let you get out of bed so fast and easily! So you see, that’s why a two-trick quota per day, as mentioned earlier, is about all one can take. Of course, this doesn’t apply if you’re making it in the bushes, the dunes, or in a movie john where mobility/time is a necessary factor and doesn’t allow for such a heavenly extension. He’ll have to be off to another trick to get rid of his overload.

The Moroccan’s hand-play and “love to kiss you” technique is legendary. He’ll be all over you, turning on the back burner before the flame in the front one is barely quenched. Where he gets all that jizzum is one of nature’s miracles. Maybe it’s all that couscous and roast pigeon . . . but ours not to reason why: just to be thank-full-I-I!

TANGIER

A good way to dip-the-pinky into Moroccan gay life is to go there for a day’s visit while doing Spain. Algeciras is the southernmost tip of Spain and you can be in Tangier via hydrofoil in 1 hour. Or by ferry—Transmediterranea—in 2 hours. If you’ll retain the Avis-bird you rent in Spain you can drive it on the ferry and off in sunny Tangier and be right in the swing of things. Your American driver’s license is honored in Morocco, and your European Green Card insurance is also valid here.

Tangier is as cosmopolitan as St. Tropez, comprising a populous modern city with an older Medina that overlooks the harbor, and an active (and very cruisy) market called the Grand Socco (love that name!). It is this contrast between ancient with modern and with-it that is perhaps Tangier’s greatest charm.

Hotels.

There are lots of good ones. King Hassan holds the lid on hotel prices in Morocco, except for the luxury hotels. Because of the fluctuating dollar, however, if you are contemplating a trip to Morocco you should get the revised hotel-price schedules from the Moroccan Tourist Bureau, 521 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017, or have your travel agent make inquiry. In Tangier, the Inter-Continental is luxury-class; the Malabata is four-star and excellent; and the very popular Chellah is three-star, and excellent. Here you may have a choice of American, European or, wiser, demi-pension plans. The Atlas Hotel, 50 Rue Musa-ben-Noussair, has long had a gay clientele. Very popular, and always filled. And if you're lucky enough to book space here you may find it convenient to whisk a trick in and out whom you'll have picked up along the Boulevard Mohammed, which runs in the opposite direction from Rue Musa-ben-Noussair, and only a few blocks distant from it.

While still on the subject of Tangier's hotels, let us also mention that all is not roses. Be warned about an ugly shake-down racket. A man named Larbi operates at the Balima Hotel. He is swarthy, quite good looking, about 30 years old. A visitor to Tangier reports that Larbi became friendly with a member of our correspondent's party, went to the friend's room, and then mentioned that his brother was in the Moroccan Secret Police. Later, there were midnight knocks on the door and demands for cash and expensive gifts. The Balima, fondly remembered by many as a more-or-less gay hotel, is no longer that free. Be careful if you go there. Also, the rates of hustlers have gone up very much, and are far higher than in any other city in Morocco. This year the asking price is 30 dirhams ($7.50), where only a couple of years ago it was 5 ($1.25). This is paradoxical in a country where you see handsome tricks poking around in vacant lots, picking up rags and scraps of paper to make a few pennies, but when it comes to sex the price zooms.

Pick-up beach bars.

Atlas Beach . . . Windmill Beach . . . Coco Beach. These are meeting places. All have changing-rooms where gay guys can get acquainted . . . and all have terraces for sunbathing. All very popular . . . all very young . . . and all with a horde of hustlers at the ready.

Cruise areas.

Head first for the Petit Socco, a small Soho-type square lying within the Medina (old city).

There are several busily-cruised cafes, of which the Cafe Centrale is the most-cruised. You should have no trouble scoring in this area. Also the Avenue d'Espagne, particularly near the Hotel Rif, is cruisily alive. But be careful late at night . . . muggers are not unheard-of here. By day, drive your car out toward the beaches along Cape Malabata and beyond. Also through the Foret Diplomatique and along the beach of the same name. This is a large forest noted for its parasol pines, eucalyptus and mimosa trees—about 12 kilometers from Tangier proper.

Restaurants.

Restaurants serve both Moroccan and Continental cuisine. Do try some of the Moroccan specialties such as mechout (roast whole sheep); pastilla (a large mutton pie with eggs, pigeon, chicken, vegetables and spices thrown in for good measure); couscous, of course—the national grain dish—and delicious Moroccan bread, always served warm.

If you must do the cocktail-bar bit, please remember that Morocco is a Moslem country and liquor is forbidden the faithful. So the numbers you pick up in the big hotel bars are almost surely to be Europeans or other Americans. There is, however, a mixed, but somewhat gay bar in Tangier—Scott's, 12 Rue Sanlucar. Very popular late at night . . . gets a young crowd, and—of course—lots of hustlers.

CASABLANCA

This is Morocco's great seaport . . . all the more amazing because it is an artificial harbor, representing one of the greatest engineering feats of the ages. The beaches, therefore, are some distance past Casablanca along the coast at Ain Diab. In the center of Casablanca is the lovely Arab League Park, a very cruised area.

Hotels.

The new Hotel Casablanca is located in the heart of the downtown business area. It's a luxury hotel—expensive, with a view of the ocean from every room. Beautiful beyond belief.

Its cocktail bar is, of course, Europe-orientated, and thus is more-or-less off-limits to the Moslem Moroccans. Your trick may very well be a Swede or German, or a chance acquaintance from Des Moines. A few miles outside Casablanca at Mohammedia is the splendid Hotel Meridien, luxurious, at luxury prices. Private gardens, swimming pool, tennis courts, golf course, and its own private beach—cruising, of course. The El Mansour is just a few blocks away from the Hotel Casablanca and has much of the same amenities—it's just a fine hotel in a different location.

Gay bars.

None, as such. Remember, Moroccans are forbidden to imbibe. But try the bars in the docks area of this huge seaport. Lots of humpy sailors from all over the world: mostly trade—sometimes rough. Also, check out the hustling trade in the Cafe de Frances on the Boulevard.

Action spot.

The area of the Boulevard de Paris and Avenue Hassan—in the bushes. Hustler action—and dangerous.

Beach cruising.

At beautiful Plage Ain Diab and Plage Sidi Rahal. Since Casablanca's beaches are all outside the city you'll need a car to reach them.

MARRAKESH

"The Pearl of the South" as it's called, lies at the foot of the Great Atlas mountain range, surrounded by palm groves and lovely gardens. Marrakesh is inland and dates from the 11th century. Many of its original buildings or remains are meticulously preserved. Marrakesh is spectacular beyond words to describe. To see it from afar is to be awed by its huge, tall Koutoubia minaret, and beyond, the breathtaking majesty of the Great Atlas mountains. At twilight the snow that eternally caps the mountain peaks turns mauve, and surely it must be one of the most heavenly sights anywhere. In town, Marrakesh is ablaze with gorgeous color. On the one hand there is its distinctive, lacy mosaic architecture . . . on the other there are its lively souks —bazaars/market-places where camels make friends with strangers, and foods, clothing and wares of every kind are on sale. Haggle/bargain—have fun. The Moroccans love it. To visit Morocco without a trip to Marrakesh is unthinkable.

Hotels

The Hotel La Mamounia is one of the world's most colorful hotels. Poolside is quite popular with gay guests. Also in the luxury class is the Hotel Saadi, and just to make you feel at home in a strange country there is a Holiday Inn.

Outdoor cruising

The Piscine du Medina (swimming pool) is cruised, and the area behind the Koutoubia Tower after dark.

AGADIR

Some call Agadir the Miami Beach of Morocco. Others describe it as the Acapulco of Morocco. Still others liken its climate and ambience to that of the Canary Islands. Perhaps there's a little of each in Agadir, but it is a wholly unique area of its own.

Lying 325 miles south of Casablanca, it is on the Atlantic Ocean and there are no beaches anywhere more beautiful, cleaner, whiter or more sophisticated. Agadir gets the international vacationing set—which means lots of gay people—all year long . . . particularly during the winter months. Agadir, south of the smaller town of Essaouira, mentioned earlier, is down from the snowy mountains, and next to the orange groves of Morocco. It's a paradise for water skiers and scuba divers, and there are opportunities for all sports. Not a dull moment in Agadir. Not surprisingly, this is where the big brass of the Club Mediterranean hotels/pleasure complexes chose for one of their most exotic establishments, and so sex blooms in Agadir; it's not all those sex-starved single gals with the crabapple tits who come here. Gay guys international make it in Agadir.

Hotels.

The Mahraba, Royal and

Mabrouk are excellent hotels, and, oddly, are less expensive than their opposite numbers in the other cities mentioned. A single room at the Royal on Boulevard Mohammed V should not cost more than $15 per day!

Many of the international gay-vacation set like the Motel Les Pyramides at Ben Sergao. Drive out in a wooded area from Agadir and you'll find this 25-bedroom establishment with a sympathetic management. It's straight, but possibilities do exist.

Outside cruising.

Everywhere! Try it in front of the Cinema Salam. And along the six miles of magnificent beach, check the dunes—plenty of action.

If you prefer to bypass Spain and enter Morocco direct from New York, both Pan Am and Royal Air Maroc have non-stop planes. The flight from New York to Casablanca is just 6¼ hours. So Morocco is not so distant as it may seem . . . and once there, you'll discover that while its ancient kasbahs (fortresses) and souks, its mosques and camels are just as they were nearly ten centuries ago, each of the cities we've mentioned is as modern as tomorrow in most other respects.

And remember, those big-cocked Moroccan men can make your vacation the most memorable experience of your life. Get your travel agent on the ball!

Gay Singapore

By Ralph W. Davis

Singapore is safe, attractive and dull. This once wild, anything-goes port city has been purged of its sins and now is one of the "cleanest" cities in Asia. If you want bawdy fun you'll be wise to skip Singapore. The only reason I went there is because it's a good place to recover from the depressed conditions of Indonesia. Food is safe here; so is water; even the streets at night are safe here. You won't be annoyed (at least significantly) by beggars or touts, and you can eat where you want, what you want without later regrets. The shops and hotels, for the most part, are new and elegant (a little New York with an attractive skyline). But that's where the similarity ends. If you want to meet someone gay you can sometimes search and search, then go home alone and masturbate. Of course there are areas where there is action. Some even get lots of it. But ...!

The types that frequent these areas aren't what might appeal to many Westerners. Some are unclean by our standards and there is always the possibility of contracting tropical diseases. So I warn you—be selective. Furthermore, if you avoid diseases you may not be so lucky in avoiding other problems—the government! Hippies aren't welcome. Anyone who doesn't behave, or dress according to local standards, is unwelcome.

A French boy I met in Bali was refused extension of his visa because he stayed with others his age who maintained a lifestyle not impressive enough.

A tourist (immigration officers believe) should stay in a nice hotel or with a respectable friend. He should dress in sensible clothes (no beads or long hair, please), and he should eat at popular tourist restaurants. Although it isn't possible for the government to determine if all their visitors are doing this, if they should, they will quickly express their disapproval. The government is very concerned that tourists always create the "right" image for their impressionably youth (starved for Western culture).

So why come, if you're going to be so uncomfortable?

Because it is a nice rest stop. If you are traveling extensively through Asia, Singapore will be a paradise after countries like India, Burma or Indonesia. You can stop watching your diet here. Never worry about water, cheese or milk. You can speak to strangers without fear of being misunderstood (although you may have difficulty understanding them). In short, it's like being at home.

Of course, there are places to cruise. If you are handsome, young and well-built you will have little difficulty. Those less fortunate will have to work at it a little. Here are some of the places I've found where your chances are fairly good:

The major hotel bars are good at the Singapura (Pebble Bar); Hilton (Tradewinds Bar); and Holiday Inn (Treetops Bar). The latter seemed very good on the Saturday night I was there. Also worth a check is Le Bistro at the Topicana (next to the Holiday Inn). All these hotels are in the Orchard and Scotts Roads and are within easy walking distance of one another. They are also excellent places to stay if you don't mind spending $35 a day. A more modestly-priced hotel—not gay by any stretch of the imagination—is The Queen's, very close to the better hotels, and rooms are only about $15 a day. The Queen's also has a swimming pool. Incidentally, all the hotels mentioned, and Le Bistro, are best at night after dinner.

Another place to check out at night is Tivoli Gardens at 290 Orchard (across the street from the elegant Mandarin Hotel). There was some quiet cruising here during my several visits. Because it's open 24 hours you will see all types coming here for a late snack or a drink. But remember, these places are chancy. Some nights they're good; other nights they're dull.

Less chancy is Bugis Street (especially after 2 a.m. when the drag queens come out in numbers). Bugis Street is two stop-signs away from the New Hong Kong Hotel on Victoria, near Rochor Road. A lot more cruisy than Bugis is Queen Elizabeth Walk (at Fullerton Road). Here at night (less so during the day), boys and men outnumber the mixed couples; and there is lots of camping and hand holding. For on-the-spot sex, head for Chinatown. Hong Lim Park (between North Canal and Upper Pickering at New Bridge Road) gets the bold types. Many of these Asians are rough and look hard. Same is true at Queen Elizabeth Walk. But if that merely excites you, then this is the place for you. Those who want gentler types should stay around Orchard and Scott.

At Hong Lim Park you should check out the john, as well as the small park. Also a little farther away (below South Bridge Road) on Canal Road, is another john. A third is in the People's Shopping Center, also a block from Hong Lim Park. There are two johns in the shopping center on the ground floor, facing Upper Hokkiam Street. (Note: Don't confuse the People's Shopping Center with the People's Complex. They are two different buildings.) At the Shopping Center look for the Silver Coach Restaurant; the johns are very close to it.

Another cruise area (though subtle and chancy) is in the International Building near the Lido Cinema, on Orchard. Cruise the shopping arcade on the ground floor, then visit the john (also on the ground floor). It is good to keep in mind that most of the Asians you'll be picking up expect payment. You should negotiate price. How much you will pay will depend on how well you bargain, and what impression you give them of your financial worth. So don't be one of those tiresome foreigners who tries to impress people with his wealth.

Orchard St. is cruisy on the Hilton Hotel side from Scott Rd. to Tanglin Rd. at night, especially. Sit on a bench and watch the movement.

Finally, there is an open market area worth checking out. It's behind the covered Orchard Market (off Orchard on Cuppage, near the Cold Storage). The john and the area can be cruisy. This may even improve since the open market stalls on Orchard in the Car Park across the street from the Cold Storage, are moving here in a few months, I understand. It would not be a bad idea to check it out occasionally.

Two movie theaters worth a check are the Capitol and the Odeon. Both are on North Bridge. The Capitol is at the corner of Stamford Road and North Bridge. The Odeon is nearby, a half block from Bras Basah Drive (near Raffles Hotel). Check out the johns of both. The Capitol's john is on the ground floor to the right (outside) of the ticket window. The Odeon's john is on the first floor near the refreshment counter. You don't need to buy tickets to use either facility. Chancy, but that will depend on you. Many look ready and willing. The back rows of the balcony see some hand play. So if you have time, see a movie (but buy the cheapest seats).

Tanglin Shopping Center has many johns, on different floors. It is at Tanglin Road and Orchard Road. During my visit I was followed from floor to floor. You may also be so lucky. But then again, it might have been chance—being at the right place at the right time.

For those who might like to try a brothel, there are several dirty ones on Johor Road off Rochor Road (near Bugis Street). I wouldn't recommend these male brothels unless you are really desperate. I'm sure if you linger around, or ask locally, you'll be shown these brothels.

Swimmers should head for Labrador Beach (the section near the B.P. Oil Refinery) on Pasir Panjang Road. The wooded area is sometimes active. But watch out for snakes. They are very poisonous. Only the more daring might want to check it out.

So that's about all I could find, and I searched hard in that humid heat. I hope my efforts make your cruising easier and safe. Good luck.

Gay Toronto Good Sin City

By Jim Quixley

Torontonians will say: "It's still 'Toronto the Good','' with a bit of a twinkle in their eye. This was the nickname for Toronto in the 50's when it was about the dulllest town in North America for its size—bar none. But now the meaning has done quite a shift—to the almost embarrassment of Torontonians—it's become a good fun city, including the gay scene. If you ask why, no one quite seems to know the answer.

All the immigrants we've had lately, and the influence of the 60's are two possible reasons. Well, there has been a large influx of immigrants of all lovely nationalities from just about everywhere—Australia to Tanzania—and of course most of the Western World was liberated, at least to some extent, by the ideas of the hippies, flower children, etc. It still doesn't fully explain it. Anyway, now we have a city that, as Americans are pleased and surprised to note, has all the fun and sophistication of a big city (after all, its population is over 2½ million) but avoids the squalor and mistakes of places like New York—so far at least.

Probably because Toronto was proper and British although, let's face it: provincial and dull for so long, it's still an O.K. city. Nice people (cars actually wait for pedestrians!), it's very clean and you don't really need a car to get around. In fact, the transport service is the envy of many parts of the world. Many gays from New York are discovering this new scene—new faces, new fun, new fucks!

Drive the 500 miles north of New York, stopping off at Niagara Falls to break the journey, or fly. Buses take you from the airport to the subway (cheap!) or, for $3.50 there's a bus to the Royal York Hotel, the old reliable hotel in the heart of downtown Toronto. Its Imperial Room features stars like Marlene Dietrich and Craig Russell.

Subway, 55¢, or 7 tokens for $3. Get a transfer at your starting place. A taxi from the airport to downtown costs about $10-$12. And typical of this nice town is that taxis don't have a grill between driver and passenger, so do sit next to the driver if you want (and if he's cute).

There are no gay hotels as such in Toronto except the Carriage House, and the residents here may include straights (its swinging bar/disco compensates). Of course, as in most towns, most hotels here have a good sprinkling of the willing. There's always the Y.M.C.A., 40 College St., which is very central. Reasonable, central and a wee bit smarter is the new hotel, The Carlton Inn, 30 Carlton. Like the Y, it's near Yonge St., and only $17.95 a night, single. That includes the use of the swimming pool, sauna, etc.

Even newer and smarter, if a few dollars more, is the Ramada Inn, more or less over the road from the Carlton Inn, but one block further away from Yonge St. Then for that luxury weekend there's Sutton Place (Hotel), and, probably the best in town, the Sheraton Centre (Hotel), opposite our new City Hall (Space Age design and we've grown very proud of it, for all its theatricality).

As you notice, Yonge St. (pronounced Young) keeps coming up. It's the main street of Toronto, running north and south, and forms the town's backbone, with the ribs like Bloor St., Carlton/College, splaying out on either side east and west. For other basic information about Toronto, buy 'Toronto Life' preferably, or 'Toronto Calendar'. And contact the Convention and Tourist Bureau, Eaton Centre, Yonge St. (at Dundas subway station).

During summer there's an information booth outside the Centre too. They'll provide a map and tell you all you want to know. In addition, for information on how to get from anywhere to anywhere by public transport, call the Toronto Transit Commission, another helpful service this city has to offer.

More about Yonge St. One of the greatest and almost unique features of Toronto is that it's not a dead city at night. This city is humming, with Yonge St. as the centre. Yonge St. is the promenade street of Canada and probably of most Anglo-Saxon places anywhere. Till 2 a.m. and later, especially in summer, it's packed with people and cars. People stroll and drive up and down just to see what's going on. Some book stores stay open late, and record stores are open till midnight, so there's good cruising even off the street. And for window shopping alone, apart from just meeting friends and strangers, it's a fun place to be.

Where to eat? Personal favorites worth trying, and with moderate prices, include Parkes Restaurant, 226 Carlton; the nearby Le Couscousier, 195 Carlton, and, a bit dear but worth it, Maison Basque Restaurant and Tavern, 15 Temperance, for interesting French food of that region. If you want a quick dinner before the theatre, Ed's Warehouse, 270 King W., has good roast beef and the most fantastic collection of Victoriana and bric-a-brac this side of the Queen Mum.

You'll soon discover lots of nice little places for yourself on Yonge St. (e.g., Cafe New Orleans, corner of Yonge and St. Joseph), not to mention the delightful open-air cafes in Yorkville (more later) and on Markham St., (near Bathurst subway station).

"Tell 'em just how uptight Toronto men are." "You know cruising is lousy around here." These were some of the answers from gay men when asked about gay life in Toronto. And it's true that Torontonians are supposed to be 'cold', and sometimes are. Yet others strongly contest this. Which all leads to the firm reminder—don't be shy in Toronto! It's a luxury you'll agree no one can afford anywhere, but particularly here. Be assured, however, the hard and just plain serious cruisers do make out in Toronto. Of course, how often is up to you, but a shortage of good-looking men can hardly be used as an excuse here.

Why there's perhaps more uptightness here than in, say, San Francisco or New York—to name two extreme cases of non-uptightness—no one really quite knows. Cold climate, cold heart? British heritage, maybe? Perhaps it is British properness and reserve, because Torontonians are usually warm when you get to know them (in fact they can be very hot!). And, except during the depths of winter, it isn't that cold here. Toronto is actually torrid during July and August.

O.K., details of gay life here.

The Parkside Tavern, 530 Yonge St. Always available, but Saturday afternoon, after about 4:30 this is where you should be. Just beer and it's a sit-down-only bar, but for years it's been the 'club', the meeting place of all the gays in town at this time. Normally a popular macho bar, but on Saturday afternoon (and on on Saturday afternoon) the smart set dons its denims and comes to slum, so there are good lookers of all sorts available. Cruising's harder than at a stand-up bar—our strange Canadian liquor laws say you must sit to drink at taverns such as this—so do change tables if necessary. It's friendly and fun.

Most of the gay activity is, as you'd expect, around Yonge St., with almost all the locations within about a half-mile of each other. So you can easily walk just about everywhere, from bar to disco to baths to restaurants and back to your hotel, etc. By the way, remember that bars close at 1 a.m. here.

If you try dinner at the bar/restaurant Les Cavaliers, 428 Church (I found their food dull but gourmets I met were very happy) you'll probably enjoy coffee and liqueurs to the sound of the piano and perhaps a hearty chorus from Oklahoma! issuing from the room next door. The piano bar here is often full, particularly on weekends, with lots of smiling faces. Nice decor with fireplace and chandelier. A cavalier's bust (if you'll pardon the expression) sternly overlooks all. The restaurant doubles as an overflow parlour from the bar and so provides a quiet place to sit and talk if that's your bag. There's usually a pleasant sprinkling of youngsters here who, of course, do very well. The friendliest bar in town, and you can always get in, no matter how big the crowd.

More on that, i.e., getting into bars. Canada is what can only be described as 'fire frantic'. Probably a hangup from the days of log cabins and timber buildings when fire was a really high-risk factor. Anyway, even today all public buildings are only licensed to hold a certain number of people. That's why queueing occurs at bars like The Carriage House and The Quest (see later). To get in on busy nights you have to wait till others leave. The number of people in a room is strictly regulated.

Back to cruising. Above Les Cavaliers, and in complete contrast, is The Barn. This is fairly new and is the bar for the real leather boys. Decor is—surprise!—like a barn, with saddles and other gear hanging around, plus hay, etc. A little dancing among the not-completely super butch and, of course, a pool table. All ages and very popular.

From here head north up Yonge St. to the St. Charles Tavern, 488 Yonge St. A large bar, always popular, especially with a somewhat older (but not wrinkle set) and macho crowd. Not over-refeened but a pleasant, friendly place with some leather and lots of denim. It's split into two rooms—the right side as you enter is perhaps the more butch of the two. This is beer country like the Parkside, which is a couple of blocks further up Yonge St. on the same side.

Next. Behind the Parkside is another new bar, a near bar (unlicensed), Dudes, 10 Breadalbane. As the name indicates, the accent is on masculinity. Decor is a bit like The Barn, with a lovely toy shop thrown in. Mercifully subdued lighting, porn slide shows on the hour and a pool table at one end. Dudes now has real beer mid-week. If you cruise easy, sipping near beer or coffee, then this is your place. Very popular, especially after the bars close at 1 a.m., and for Sunday brunch.

The most northerly bar, but still within easy walking distance, is the oldest and still one of the most popular bar/discos, The Quest, 665 Yonge St. It's been going for years under various names. Still one of the best for all age groups. Downstairs is particularly popular with the 'slightly more mature'. Kind lighting and fun decor include lamp shades with 'Drink Coca-Cola' on.

To get upstairs may take a while at busy times. You must ask for a number and that number is called when enough people have left. It's worth waiting for as it's much cruiser upstairs. It's a swinging disco and the young pretties are more inclined to be up there. A long bar to lean against, mostly men and a friendly staff.

For those who prefer butch to super butch, i.e., lots o' denim, there's the terrific disco, Charlie's, above the St. Charles. Large, licensed, sensational music, and take the poppers.

On the other hand, if you're unisex-type inclined, try Stages, or perhaps Studio II. Stages (above the Parkside) is one of the best spots for bisexuals and unisexers, although—when it comes down to it—its men at least are, not surprisingly, almost all gay. Very good music; lots of cute young things and dressers-up. A wee bit expensive, regulars must pay a membership of $10, but this place is meant for 'the beautiful people'. Unlicensed, so more of an 'after the bars' place.

In complete contrast there's Studio II, 72 Carlton; unpretentious and with a license. Mostly young women and men. Spacious, with a big dance floor, fabulous music, lots of passages and rooms, all carpeted, including a games room, library with TV, snooker room and downstairs a full cinema. Twice a night a movie such as "The Ten Commandments" or "Rosemary's Baby" and there's a drag show in the wee hours at weekends, which is well rehearsed, well dressed and good. One of the best buys in town at $3.

Over the road at 306 Jarvis is the very swinging disco in the gay hotel aforementioned, The Carriage House. Crowd—great; music—great, and, of course, licensed.

For connoisseurs of beauty, however, especially the young college types, the must disco is The Manatee, 11a St. Joseph. Again, just off Yonge Street. Strangely, this super popular disco was closed for six months a while ago. When it reopened it was just as popular as ever, right from night 1. All the young absolutely stunning males finish up here after midnight on one of the two big dance floors under the flashing lights, to absolutely the best music in town. Three gorgeous go-go boys provide diversion. Only coffee, etc., but the boys (it's men only) are sufficient intoxication, with enough of the slightly more mature crowd to make it worthy of serious cruising for anyone.

Here particularly, maybe because of the youth of the crowd and their damned glamour, hard cruising is just about essential. These knockouts expect you to chase them—hard! So go to it! And there are so many of them all in one place—don't control yourself!

By the way, most discos here, such as Stages and The Manatee, only function Thursday or Friday to Sunday.

Outdoor activity means David Balfour Park, or Hanlon's Point on Centre Island. David Balfour Park is a little east of St. Clair subway station. Still very hot at night and even during the day, although some gangs beating up gays have been reported lately. Be cautious and have fun, al fresco.

Centre Island, or just 'The Island', is Toronto's parkland. Here Mr. and Mrs. Toronto (and son) go for picnics and walks. Take the ferry at Front St. below Yonge St., to Hanlon's point, a ten-minute ride. Follow the gays to the gay beach. Frolic in the bushes, etc.

Well, you can't just cruise all the time! Toronto has all the usual variety of unique sights that one should see. It's worthwhile taking time out for them. Begin with a bus tour of the city to orientate you. Then, depending on the time available to you, there's the new CN Tower (a must): the highest free-standing structure in the world. Next, the Royal Ontario Museum with its various special exhibitions (such as In the Presence of The Dragon Throne) and the Art Gallery of Ontario with its fabulous Henry Moore Room. Straight after viewing this, step back a hundred years by visiting The Grange, an old mansion attached to the Gallery, with everything authentically of the period, e.g., a real live cook in costume of the nineteenth century baking bread in the kitchen in a brick oven.

Visit Markam St. (near Bathurst subway station) for lunch. It's a street owned by Toronto's finest entrepreneur, Ed Mirvish, who also owns the beautiful Royal Alexandra Theatre where pre- and post-Broadway shows play. He's now bidding for the O'Keefe Centre, a huge modern theatre where the Canadian Ballet and Canadian Opera perform.

After strolling around through the various boutiques and antique stores of Markham St., and enjoying lunch at one of the restaurants, studiously ignore the ridiculously luscious desserts in Ed's Icecream Parlour, corner Bloor and Markham—they're strictly for the slim and the silly.

In addition to Markham St. the must strolling area is Yorkville. Walk west from Yonge St. along Bloor, past Georg Jensen and Secretts (marvelous jewelry) and Yorkville is north of Bloor, past Bay. This used to be the hippy district and is now bursting with the smartest boutiques in town. Very nice cafes here too. As regards the prices, yes, well, prices are generally higher in Canada than in the States. C'est la vie!

You shouldn't and, actually, you can hardly avoid the huge new shopping complex on Yonge at Dundas—the recently-opened Eatons Centre (where the Convention and Tourist Bureau is). It's our biggest department store, plus hundreds of shops, enclosed in a triple-tiered arcade.

Another local delight is the thriving little theatre scene, which includes the Toronto Workshop Theatre, Factory Lab and, one of the leading theatre innovators for original Canadian plays, the Tarragon. And for those into art, tripping around to the many little private galleries is very rewarding.

All good tourists and culture vultures deserve reward, so maybe you should save the baths till last. The day scene is hardly bad, especially if the weather's a bit cold (try it around lunch time and afternoon) but, of course, night is busy time. Toronto has a pleasant variety of baths, nice without being dull—like most things here. Maybe this should be Toronto's motto.

For the tougher male it's The Barracks, 56 Widmer. Not necessarily wild S and M but good hard fun nevertheless. It includes a little shop with lots of terrifying toys.

For more everyday sexual fun there's the Richmond Street Health Emporium (sic), 260 Richmond East—one of the smartest baths in this city. Spacious, with many rooms, an indoor pool, a sauna and a nice grope room upstairs. Mostly, no shortage of pretties.

As in most cities, however, you can't do much better than The Club (231 Mutual, at Carlton). The usual high standard, clean with tasteful decor. And this one is especially interesting, being in a large old brick mansion. Upstairs and downstairs—what do the original owners' ghosts think of the goings-on now! Swirl pool (a little large for easy cruising), a steam room (good for groping), sauna, (ditto!), and in summer a delightful swimming pool and sundeck outside. In the large dark rooms on the top floor anything is possible. The twists and turns of the old house provide ideally intimate nooks and crannies. Like Richmond St. these baths are open all the time. On busy nights like Saturday, however, you have to get there early to get a room. By the way, weekend 'hotel' rates are available.

Like everywhere else, Toronto can't stay the same forever. Right now it seems to have the best of a big city (it works!) and to have avoided the worst (mugging is comparatively rare), but how long can it last? The new wave of puritanism and old-fashioned intolerance has now reached these shores too. In fact, our rival city, Montreal, has had some of its baths closed down already. And clearly our city fathers have their disapproving eye on all the fun we're having—gays and straights. In fact, the Toronto City Council not so long ago received a report strongly urging that Yonge St. be cleaned up!

So don't delay folks! Come to our good sin city while it's still good—and enjoy!

Gay Malaysia Penang & Kuala Lumpur

By Ralph W. Davis

Penang, "The Pearl of the Orient," has lost some of its international appeal. Although it is still quite beautiful and inexpensive it is no longer the duty-free port which once dazzled tourists with its good buys. Now there are strict controls on goods, and anything of any antiquity must have Customs clearance to leave the country. For this reason many tourists are bypassing Malaysia for the shopping freedom of Singapore. Yet Penang, like most of Malaysia, is delightfully beautiful. Thick with jungle flora and fauna of great variety, it is a veritable paradise. Batu Feringhi, where some of the best resort hotels are located (Rasa Sayang, Palm Beach, Casuarina Beach, and soon Holiday Inn) has one of the most welcoming stretches of beach in Asia.

To make visitors comfortable, Malaysians, like most Asians, are friendly and attentive hosts. There are, of course, the usual squalid sights: beggars, depressed villages, and offensive-smelling markets, but the total impression isn't one of abject poverty, disease and neglect. Instead, one gets the feeling that the government does take care of its citizens and is trying its best to provide for them.

Penang: Penang Rd.

Penang: John Near Fort

Penang: John on Maxwell

Kuala Lumpur: Jalan Raja Sportsfield

Kuala Lumpur: Coliseum Cinema

Presently, the government's biggest concern is the drug traffic. There is talk of a death penalty for anyone dealing in hard drugs. Yet the severity of the law as it now stands hasn't stopped experimenting and traffic. Perhaps this is because of Malaysia's proximity to the infamous "Golden Triangle" where heroin is produced, then smuggled through Thailand to the rest of the world. It is best—if you are into drugs—to skip Malaysia. You will have only regrets.

On the brighter side, gay sex isn't suppressed. There is a casual attitude here that is quite refreshing and healthy. Meeting locals is not at all difficult as it is, for example, in Singapore. Trisha drivers are outrageously bold, and if they are attracted to you physically it won't take long to make clear contact.

One technique I recommend, if you are the very discreet type, is to act indifferent to the driver's offer of a bargain ride. After they tire of trying to persuade you to visit the tourist sights with them they'll offer other attractions—first girls, then boys. Of course, when you finally get to the subject of sex the next step is easy and routine.

The going price for a boy seems to be Malaysian $10 or U.S. $4. I wouldn't bargain too hard if the quotation is reasonable because they may resort to less agreeable means to get the difference. So take my advice—leave the jewels and "heavy" cash at the hotel; play the poor tourist; and stay alert. For cruising these trisha drivers I recommend Penang Road in Georgetown. The selection is best here, and the competition for the tourist dollar is great. So use this to your advantage.

Other cruise areas in Georgetown of particular interest are: the park in front of the City Council Building; Fort Cornwallis; and the john by the Fort underneath the elevated refreshment area. All three are very close to each other. The City Council Building site at one end of the park and the Fort at another. Inside and alongside the Fort is the refreshment area.

At night this area gets busy. Men, boys and mixed couples come here and fuck in dark corners of the Fort. You should wander around and observe. The rest will be easy.

A very busy john is on Maxwell, a block from Penang Road, where the yellow buses park. You can always find someone here.

Also worth some time is the square in front of the Capitol Theater. At night everyone comes here to sit. Although it is mixed, there is some quiet cruising in front of the Ambassador Hotel at night. But the best places and the surest for contact are the Fort area and the john on Maxwell.

Hit-or-miss places like the bars at the Eastern and Oriental hotels and Hotel Lone Pine are not overly recommended. If you are not staying there and stop in for a drink or two occasionally, that's one thing. But don't expect much. Although I have been boldly cruised by help and guests at Rasa Sayang, where I stayed, I couldn't exactly call it gay. I just happened to be in the right place at the right time. But as I noted, Malaysians are usually very casual about sex, so it doesn't really matter where you are—someone is sure to respond to you.

KUALA LUMPUR

About all I can say about Kuala Lumpur is that it's a big city. Certainly not a giant like Hong Kong, Singapore or Bangkok, but a big city, nevertheless. It offers very little amusement to satisfy the restless tourists. Yet there are some sights worth seeing. I was particularly fascinated by a church near the bus station. I liked its decaying, tropical look. The Post Office, railroad station, and City Hall are fascinating buildings. The National Museum is a waste of time, as are the Batu Caves. Even the old seaside town of Malacca is a disappointment. All Malaysia offers, in my opinion, is its natural, unspoiled beauty. So I suggest that you seek this out and forego the culture.

If you elect to visit Kuala Lumpur and you want to make contact, I suggest that you head quickly for the sports field on Jalan Raja, across from the Post Office and Federal Secretariat. At night gays come here and sell themselves. It is good at both ends of the large sports field near St. Mary's and the building across from it at the other end of the field. If you see movement on the field at night you won't be wasting your time following it. The whole area gets busy.

There are three movie theaters to check out. The Coliseum at 96 Jalan Tuanku Abdul Rahman; the Odeon at the corner of Rahman and Jalan Campbell, and the Central (behind the Singapore Airlines office) at the corner of Jalan Ampang and Jalan Campbell. You should sit in the cheapest seats (about Malaysian $1.25 or U.S. 50¢), and check out the toilets.

Another place to check, but, like the movies, not the best meeting spot, is the Railroad Station. The waiting room and john can be cruisy. I didn't try it at night. Maybe it's better then than during the day.

The Hotel Shiraz in the 300 block of Rahman, near the Odeon, and the Hotel Kowloon at 142 Rahman, are inexpensive places to take your partners. No questions are asked. Near the Kowloon Hotel is a real dive, the Tivoli. Like all such dives the world over, you can find anything here. I just couldn't get myself to stay for a drink here. But if such places appeal to you, then head for 136 Rahman.

A good meeting place is the Hilton Hotel lobby. Lots of young people, and hustlers. Very popular.

At the more elegant Merlin Hotel the former Thistle Bar is now called Scots Bar, and is cruised.

For several years there has been a dance bar, with live band, called My Hideout on Lorong Medan Tuanku Satu, about 200 feet from the corner of Jalan Medan Tuanku. This bar is on the second floor and in addition to dancing there are hustlers, rough trade, entertainment and it gets a young crowd. It's very popular.

Other hotels, as elegant as the Merlin and Hilton, are the Holiday Inn and the Equatorial. Gay contact is hit-or-miss here, but eventually something will show up.

For those who were earlier visitors to Kuala Lumpur the street named Jalan Treacher has been changed to Jalan Sultan Ismail.

There is probably more to gay life in Kuala Lumpur, but I couldn't find it. It is well to remember that although I didn't find many 'active' areas I did experience many friendly approaches from taxi drivers to toilet attendants. So smile, and always be friendly. In Malaysia—where homosexuality isn't disapproved or widely, openly approved—it's still widely enjoyed. Your smile and friendliness can easily lead the way to the bed. And that's a wonderful place to be on those long, hot tropical afternoons and evenings.

Dining à la Russe

Fantastic Food In 14 Dialects

By Scott Young

When the Leningrad Symphony or the Moscow State Symphony Orchestras visit New York during the winter to play concerts in Carnegie Hall, blasé New Yorkers, accustomed to the bizarre, are nonetheless astonished to see the entire orchestra personnel standing patiently in the snow, peering through the window—as if mesmerized—at a small chicken rotisserie in a Seventh Avenue food shop. As Perdue's pullets are transformed from 'that light, golden-yellow color' to a crusty, yummy tan, the men step inside by twos and threes to buy the roasted birds.

Then, following an evening concert, they again queue up in front of the popular Stage Delicatessen, waiting to take out some of the Stage's famous hot pastrami sandwiches. One might assume from all this patience and snowy travail and the satisfied looks on their faces that food in Leningrad and Moscow is a decided novelty. Such is not the case. Nor is waiting in line a novelty either. The people of these two Russian cities are used to queueing up for anything, thus waiting in line for entrance to popular restaurants there is the norm. If you plan to visit either of these cities you'll be the one who finds queueing a novelty—and possibly not to your American liking. (There are some who wouldn't even stand in line for the Second Coming.) But once you've found out that it's the only way you can dine on the fantastic food of fourteen dialects you'll say it's well worth the 'sacrifice'.

SNEAK ATTACK ON RUSSIAN RESTAURANTS

The herd instinct is so endemic to many travel groups in the Soviet Union that they unquestioningly follow whatever may be programmed by Intourist. Indeed, it may never occur to some that a trip inside the U.S.S.R. can be far more varied, interesting and exciting than whatever the package-deal may outline.

This is particularly true of dining—especially in Leningrad, and to some degree in Moscow, which we shall go into more deeply in this article.

In Leningrad it is customary for Intourist to get your tour group herded into the same restaurant, the Sadko, for every meal. True, it is one of Leningrad's best restaurants, but the cuisine is group-planned for you—no deviations—and therefore amazingly unrepresentative of the many exotic foods of other Soviet 'republics'.

So what can one do if programmed for breakfast-lunch-dinner here? Simple. Go to the Intourist office in whatever hotel you've been assigned and ask the polite attendant whether instead of your programmed meal at the Sadko you might make a reservation for, say, the Baku. Be assured that you'll likely have no difficulty. Although the U.S.S.R. is big and monolithic and overpowering, its welcome is out for the tourist dollar, and so the Intourist gal or guy will phone ahead and make a reservation, then give you a slip of paper confirming it, and tell you not to wait in line . . . to just knock on the door of the Baku and all will be taken care of with dispatch. Since you would have had to wait in line at the Sadko, just like everyone else, this will seem quite a novelty! This cannot be done for an entire group, however. Of course, when you sail grandly past the long queue at the Baku (the 'Bakuqueue', as it were) they'll think you're a V.I.P. and you'll be well into your meal before they're even in smelling distance of the dining room!

Why the Baku? Because here are two of those 'fourteen-dialect' foods: fish from the Caspian Sea, and exotic dishes from the Caucasus. The Baku is at Ulitsa Sandovaia 12 (between the Nevskii Prospekt and Ulitsa Rakova). Two floors; the bottom is quite informal, the top more intimate and elegant. What may floor you, if you cannot read or speak Russian, is the menu. It is printed in Cyrillic, without translation. But by pointing, shrugging, and otherwise making known what you want (the waiter will know and speak some English since it's now a requirement for those serving the public/tourists in the Soviet Union). But just in case he doesn't read you exactly, don't be surprised if he rushes over to someone else's table, whisks off a particular dish, brings it over to you and asks if that's what you have in mind! They try hard to please, even if it does mean a temporary gap between someone's soup-spoon and soup-bowl. This is done so often that no one is surprised or takes offense. It's done so deftly that one might well say "there's never a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip."

Especially recommended at the Baku are the cold appetizer of satsivi chicken in a heavy spicy sauce with red onions . . . the basturma (a kind of shish-kebab), and cold coffee with ice cream in it! Another dinner might include as an appetizer the sol'yanka myasnaya—a light, tasty mutton broth with chunks of mutton, chick peas, onions, potatoes and, of all things, prunes! A main course might be one of the many unusual varieties of Caspian fish or shashlik Kavkasky, which is broiled mutton served with a sour plum sauce (delicious!). If you'd like ice cream for dessert, and you can't remember that it's moro-shnoe, just say "Cold . . . sweet." "Gotcha," the waiter will say in his limited English. (And he may also 'getcha' in another way if he finds you attractive. Check his eye signals and respond. You may meet later for a discreet evening of fun and games.

Another excellent restaurant (and again get cozy with your hotel Intourist attendant for a proper switchover slip) is the Kavkazky on the Nevskii Prospekt at #25. More 'dialectic' food . . . this time from deeper into the Soviet East Try the kharcho soup as an appetizer (really a meal in itself) . . . then chicken tabaka or the chebureki (mutton cakes made with chopped parsley and rice in a quite different style from other preparations of mutton). Pickled red cabbage goes with the chebureki and you'll say you've had quite a meal.

All of the restaurants mentioned are on the Nevskii Prospekt. Also in this area is the Ogonek, Leningrad's super ice cream 'parlor'. You don't need Intourist to run interference for you here. Walk right in in jeans and be the instant hit of Leningrad! Ice cream, champagne, wine, candy fruit; it gets a very young crowd and you just may make out fantastically here.

On the fast-food side is the Russkie samovary, Ulitsa Sandovaia 42 which, as the name implies, is a tearoom (legitimate kind), from whose huge copper samovar tea is poured into tall glasses nestling in woven-silver bases, with handles. The sour-cream blini here (little crepes with a sour cream filling) are the best anywhere. The place is charmingly rustic, with much outdoorsy wooden furniture and peasant crockery.

Also 'young' is the stolovaia (cafeteria) on Tamoszhenny Lane—a swinging University favorite. A jeans place. To get there, turn right off University Embankment at the Museum of Anthropology. The second entrance on the right side is the cafeteria's.

MOSCOW

Although to some extent the same 'sneak attack' can be made on restaurants in Moscow, there are only about 10 such places where you can pull this caper. Also, your reservation will have to be paid in advance in American dollars. Thus you lose money in the sense that payment for the meal is not 'transferred' to the alternate restaurant, as in Leningrad. But $8 added to your budget for a meal at a really fine restaurant—away from all that hotel food—is not such a hard fact to face. Such as at the Aragvi.

This is one of the best in Moscow . . . a marbled, cellared establishment with dramatic ceilings and walls with painted scenes from Georgian legends . . . wild-eyed horses frothing at the mouth and kicking madly at ferocious Central Asia tigers—sort of Russian 'Wagnerian'. If all this doesn't overwhelm you, the food will.

First, the waiter places four carafes on the table. One contains a Georgian white wine; another an Armenian brandy; another a chilled fruit drink; and, of course, the fourth is vodka. Starting with vodka neat, next comes a plate of apples and cheese, flat bread and butter (the fruit drink goes with this). Other appetizers (they don't stint on anything here) are the chicken satsivi, as in Leningrad, and a spicy kidney bean salad called lobio (kidney beans in a rich walnut dressing, spiked with sliced scallions). There is also a plate of thinly-sliced cold cuts. Then the main course—chicken tabaka. We've mentioned this in the Leningrad listings, and chicken tabaka is a whole, small, boned chicken pressed under a heavy weight, fried, and served with a plum sauce. The wines accompanying the chicken will be either a carafe of the Makuzani or Tsin-andeli.

A famous old restaurant is the Slavianskii Bazarr, Ultima Dvadsat Piatogo Oktobria 17. This is where the Moscow Art Theatre had its beginning. The famous of Russia came here (Tolstoy, Gogol, Chekhov and Stanislavsky), and the famous of today love it as well.

Start with a vodka neat, then osterina (thin slices of sturgeon), or ikra (caviar) and blini (this time the blini are made with a caviar, rather than a sour cream, filling). Follow this with the most succulent steak in Russia (Bikhstek), or chicken prepared in several ways. Wash it down with that super drink of the Russian proletariat—sham-pansloie (Champagne).

If you can possibly wangle it, try to get into the Uzbekistan, Ulitsa Neglinnaia 29. This is really hard to do because it's such a popular place. It gets all the famous people, and the food is out of this sphere. It's one of those fabulous places in Moscow where the head of a family will sacrifice two weeks' wages for them to dine in luxury once. A beautiful place, like something transported from the far Caucasus . . . a kind of 'tiled oasis'.

After caviar on Uzbekistan bread (baked on the premises, and the most unusual bread you'll ever taste), washed down with vodkas neat, try as a first course the salat Uzbekistan; then roulet of lamb (rolled lamb with a spicy stuffing, then sliced in thin rounds like German rouladen, and served cold with sweet pickled apples, dill, and sour pickled cabbage), along with a buket (bouquet) of pickled garlic, red peppers, cabbage and olives. (With this you can fart yourself to paradise for a week.)

Just the bread itself—called obi-non—is a feast. With a hunk of butter and some wine it is a soul-filling meal. But you've only just started! Next comes Arabsky kabab (long garlicky sausages) and accompanying this is ploy Uzbeki, a very filling 'ploy' of rice, lamb, onions and carrots. Although the desserts will not stun the mind, being of the "Cold . . . sweet" variety, they are delicious and—for that matter—who needs dessert after such a meal?

For all its oriental opulence the Uzbekistan is a very free-wheeling establishment. Don't be surprised (no one else will be) if the tenor and soprano of the Bolshoi Opera fight a vocal duel at the table . . . one trying to outsing the other. Or if a dancer from the Bolshoi Ballet gets up from his table to demonstrate a particular pas seui. The Uzbekistan may well be the 'fun place' of Moscow, so if you can swing it, do it.

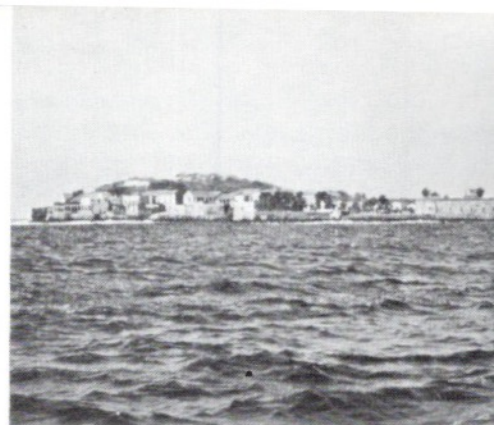

A trip to Moscow or Leningrad can be a more treasurable experience, and one can get the feel of the country so much better, just by using a little common sense and taking the trouble just to ask, thus breaking away from the programmed tours/events/here-a-dam, there-a-museum . . . and especially the dreariness of dining in the same, or same type of restaurant. Make Russia a totally different experience—something you'll never forget.

Gay Dakar/ Senegal

Every Man's A Superstud!

By David Bartel

Alex Haley's "Roots" mesmerized the greatest audience in the history of television. Its week-long showing riveted the attention of 69% of TV viewers—equivalent to 155 million people. In turn this has spurred the interest of Blacks to visit the breathtakingly beautiful country of Senegal from which the ancestors of so many came—as slaves. In the spirit of a pilgrimage they fly to Dakar, the capital of Senegal, and take the short ferry ride over to Goree Island to see the slave houses where their ancestors were penned until ships arrived to take them to destinations in the Americas and the Caribbean.

Goree Island

Goree Slave House

Although there were many slave houses—called “slave castles”—on the island, and all are still standing, all but one are used as schools, museums and even for private housing. The remaining slave castle is preserved just as it was. When visiting Goree Island one can see a demonstration of how the slaves were chained, and enter the dungeon cubicles in which they were held. It's something Blacks can never forget, and it's something that shames us all, whatever our color.

The Dakar pilgrimage has also engaged the attention of many gay guys—black and white—in Europe and the United States who have been stirred by stories about the extraordinarily handsome, extremely tall, very courteous and most obliging Senegalese men whose cocks are believed to be the biggest in the world. The traditional elongation/attenuation of the male African body generally assures fantastic cock length (and any cock less than 9 inches in length is regarded with suspicion). As a biological plus, through Senegalese intermarriage with the French (Senegal was once part of French West Africa) one usually finds both Senegalese length and legendary French thickness. Real whoppers, guys! So it's no wonder that gay guys are enthusing about the ‘Big Macs’ of Dakar . . . each a ‘meal’ in itself. “Any Senegalese is a walking meatrack!” they enthuse.

On the presumption that such statistics are at least of passing interest to our readers we should like to mention something about Dakar (since here's where the action is) . . . something about this handsome, modern city; its people; areas of interest; and about the gay action/places there.

Getting there.

Take a Pan Am or Air Afrique flight direct to Dakar from New York City and you'll be there in 6½ hours—a relatively short flying distance—about the same time it takes to fly across the continental United States. If you're in Europe it's just a short flight . . . shorter still if you're doing Morocco. You can fly from Morocco across Mauretania and be in Dakar in something over an hour. You'll also have to show an ongoing or return ticket, and in addition to your passport you'll need (a) a visa from the Senegalese Embassy in Washington, D.C., or from the Senegalese Mission to the United Nations in New York, plus (b) a smallpox-vaccination certificate not more than 3 years old.

Your arrival.

All flights arrive at Yoff Airport, which is a short taxi ride from Dakar's downtown area. Taxis are both metered and unmetered. The latter will charge you $10 for the trip . . . less by metered. Still less by airport bus which charges just 25¢ to deliver you to your hotel! Always establish the fare when taking an unmetered cab. They have heard of shafting in Dakar.

Car rental.

Moderate charges for Hertz, Avis-Senegal Tourisme, Sintra and Europ-Car. Drivers may also be hired for the day. You'll see more and learn more about dramatic Dakar if someone is chauffeuring you around.

Climate.

Heavenly, November through May. Much the same as that of Southern California, around San Diego. The north of Senegal is cool; the south, at Casamance, is quite tropical. Winter months are best in Dakar because the weather is absolutely heavenly . . . dry and in the 70s by day, and in the cool 60s at night.

Language.

Senegal is multi-lingual. The official language is still French, but the national tongue is Wolof. Parlez-vous Wolof? If not, you can make out in French and English. English is now more widely spoken, but not the American idiom. More formal, so speak slowly and you'll be clearly understood.

The people.

About 80% of the Senegalese are Muslims. This will be to your gay advantage because, under Muslim law, males are forbidden intercourse until they are married, when they are 25. This plays into your conniving little hands . . . be sure that all that superstud meat is not going to rot under the African sun for want of a cunt! You'll have no trouble finding sex; somehow it seems that a tall, humpy number is right there at your elbow.

It should also be noted that, as in other Muslim countries, there is no civic objection to homosexuality. Anita B couldn't sell a drop of orange juice here. Also, remembering the privileges their ancestors were denied—as slaves—causes the Senegalese to be tolerant about almost everything. Very easy-going. If there's an opposite side to this carefree coin it's that the Senegalese nationals are catered to, more than outsiders. They get the priority treatment, but for a once-slave nation this is understandable. In general, you'll be courteously treated.

The Senegalese are very clean people. This is not to say that in this huge city of one million everything is squeaky clean. Dakar has its slums, as does any other big city. Even open sewers. But it is more disease-free than any other Black-governed African city. There's a very low rate of VD—what there is comes through contact with foreigners. So your trick should be safe as well as sexy.

A brief description of your Senegalese number: If his family has not intermarried with the French he will be about 6' 3" or taller, with a long torso—silky muscular. Wide shoulders . . . his hips the narrowest. Long arms and fingers, and long and quite slender legs. He moves slowly/angularly. To the foreigner this is simply breathtaking. At first, sex seems so unlikely, for however can one manage such a number? Fear not . . . let him show you!

On the other hand, if there is French (or Portuguese) blood in his veins you'll find a more broadly-built man. Wider pelvis, heavier pectorals, thicker bones, bigger buns and meatier calves. Also the color of his skin will be shades lighter. Generally, the Senegalese range in color from deep black, through dark, to light bronze, to shiny copper, to almost dusky pink. But whether pure Senegalese or a mixture, you can be sure he's all cock!

He hustles in a very unobtrusive way (one exception, noted later). He may not suggest money, but offer it anyway, because he needs it. The Senegalese are, on the average, quite poor. If you offer him 1000 CFA (Senegalese) francs—which is about $4.20 American—you'll make him happy. He can buy a lot of things for his family with that sum. Considering all that meat, this is quite a bargain.

Where to stay.

If you want to get right down to sexing with the Senegalese, avoid the large, modern luxury hotels in the heart of Dakar and opt for N'Gor Village—a small enclave in a 70-acre complex of hotels/motels, beach and resort facilities along the ocean. Specifically, N'Gor Village comprises 157 thatched huts which have showers, toilets and air-conditioning. Each hut is sizable and commodious . . . don't think 'roughing it'. The Calao Restaurant, on the grounds, serves French and Senegalese food. In a large, separate hut is the Wahoo—a discotheque. Not a gay disco, but because many gay guys do (particularly those from France) flock to N'Gor Village they can be seen in the crowd. The Senegalese, who love dancing of any kind—and all the time—think this disco is really far-out. How animated they become!

Now about the hustlers. They work this area; they know how to turn a pretty penny, and so whatever trick you pick up here will expect money. But again, these hustlers are not sharky . . . and it's all very pleasant. Besides, they charge so little one would be churlish to haggle with them.

N'gor Village, therefore, is a wise choice since you can swim (in the Atlantic or in the N'Gor Village pool), sun, dance, eat and make out. Because your hut is not precisely a room, but a home, inviting your trick within as often as you like is whatever everyone else does. All very casual. And some staff members are available for about $4.20; convenient.

Nearby is the Hotel N'Gor, 159 elegant rooms all facing the bay and beach and the island of N'Gor. Although there is no proscription against bringing a trick to your room, he may, nevertheless feel a little out of place. If he's a professional hustler, of course, this won't bother him. But if he's just a gentle local it may overwhelm him. So if you want to get the most fun and sex from your vacation in Dakar, opt for Le Village de Paillotes (Straw-hut Village), as we've described. Take this up with your travel agent the moment you give serious thought to Dakar. This charming hut-compound is extremely popular, so naturally it's filled. Le Village is only 15 minutes from the heart of Dakar.

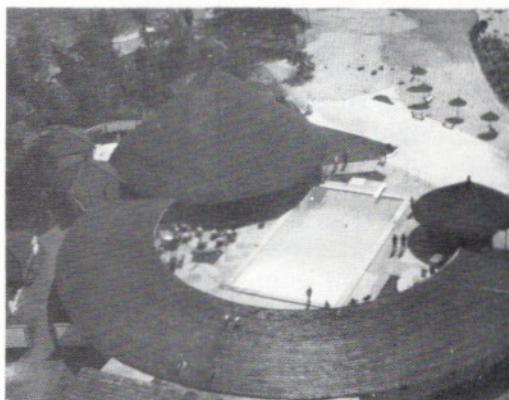

If you'd like to live it up in elegance, there's the fantastic Hotel Meridien Dakar on Cape Verde, in a 25-acre park filled with coconut palms and bougainvillea, facing the miles of sugar-sand beach along the bay. This divine place is 10 miles from Dakar. If you don't care to rent a car, the hotel supplies free minibus service to and from the city. No problem.

The Meridien is where you'll find plenty of European sex. It's too elegant (and a little too remote) for the Senegalese male. Thus the bars and beach are heavily cruised. The hill above the open-air restaurant is the cruisiest. From 9 to 10:30 in the evening it's wild. Even the Senegalese who patrol the grounds of the hotel at night go 'up the hill' for a piece of the action. The hotel is very popular with visiting Frenchmen who come from Dakar for the beach via bus from 3 to 5 in the afternoon.

In the city, the most cruised area is the wide, lovely Place de l'Indépendance. A principal street—the Fifth Avenue of Dakar. Here the 'complexion' of Dakar changes a little. It goes European with so many French and Portuguese on the gay prowl. Many stay in another magnificent hotel, also on Place de l'Indépendance—the Teranga. At first sight—seeing it head-on—its soaring center pillar might have been painted by Diego Rivera. The Teranga has a pool that looks directly to the Atlantic and across to the slave castles of Goree Island. There is a beautiful pool which adjoins the hotel by way of a footbridge over a flowered garden. The thatched-roof restaurant Le Pinguine, and the bar Le Tarpou—at poolside—are delightful and cruised. There are 264 elegantly furnished rooms with wide/slide windows leading out to private balconies. With all this super elegance there's also an inexpensive coffee shop, in case you've lavished too many 1000-CFA francs on your humpy tricks.

The government of Senegal has much control over hotel prices. In the interest of promoting tourism it takes a dim view of overbooking, and to a considerable extent sets maximum charges for rooms. You can pay as little as $6 American for a single—and even the most elegant and expensive is less than that of equivalent accommodations in Caribbean resorts and Puerto Rico during the high season. The government limits rates in one-, two-, and three-star hotels in order to give the less-than-affluent "Roots" tourist a fair shake. N'Gor Village's thatched huts fall in the three-star category (figure about $20 per person per day). The big luxury hotels are exempt from price controls. Still, figure only about $30 per day per person. Less expensive hotels abound, and your travel agent will have a listing—with prices.

Senegalese food.

Jimmy Carter would love Senegal. Its principal agricultural crop is the peanut. And peanuts find their way into so many Senegalese dishes. The penutty mafe, for example . . . chicken cooked with peanut sauce. Their yassa is very popular . . . chicken marinated in lemon and then cooked with a tastebuddy sauce of peppers and onions. All Senegalese dishes have something in common with Creole cuisine (indeed, many slaves left Goree Island for New Orleans) in that the basis is seafood/rice-peppers/tomatoes. The national dish—as popular as our American ham 'n eggs, is Thie Bou Dene (pronounce it very fast as che bu gen (hard g) and you'll never go hungry in Senegal!). It's a combination of rice, fresh fish, snails, peppers and vegetables.

Drinks.

Besides all the great wines and beers and liqueurs of Europe, you'll want to try the three national drinks: cool and refreshing palm wine; ginger ale made from local ginger roots laced with mint, vanilla and sugar; and kinkiliba (and 'kinky' it really is!).

Good inexpensive/expensive restaurants are plentiful, and you're not likely to get turista from either food or water—something the Senegalese government is very finicky about. Tap water is safe. The luxury hotels have both European and American-plan rates if you care to eat high on the hog all the time. But it's more fun to explore. You might miss an interesting place if you don't . . . such as Le Guet Ndar where you sit on embroidered pillows around a low table and feast from heaping platters (home-style) of lamb, fish, chicken and couscous. Such a feast, plus excellent Senegalese beer, will cost you about $6.50! How's that for good eatin' at bargain prices? Dinner at the thatched-hut village—Le Papillote—will run you about $9 for all you can eat. Beer (Senegalese) is a buck a bottle. Tips additional (they've heard about tipping in Dakar!).

You need not dress elegantly in Dakar restaurants. Casual clothes are just right. But if you dine in one of the luxury hotel dining rooms—or see a nightclub show—a jacket and tie are de rigueur.

Don't worry about having time on your hands in Dakar. If you're sports-minded there's the greatest water-skiing/surfing outside Waikiki . . . scuba diving, tennis, horseback riding, plus golf and tennis. And you have 350 miles of beautiful beach to explore.

Also you might wish to visit other areas of this colorful country, such as the Niokolo-Koba Game Park (wild animals in their natural home); the Djoudj Bird Preserve (Audubon would have loved it); and Basse Casamance Game Park, which is in tropical Senegal—at the southern end. There are bus tours—some lasting up to four days—which take you to every part of Senegal. Always there are comfortable hotels/motels and thatched-hut villages. There is so much to see and do you'll regret it if you don't prepare for a longer stay.

Ivory Coast.

If you would like to extend your vacation to include Abidjan on the Ivory Coast, ask a taxi driver for La Boule Noire in Treichville, the African section of Abidjan. This is where men groove to men. Nights only. Dancing to live music. Drinks about $5.00. Mixed European and African types. The bar is discreet and dark, but on a main road, easy to find. This would seem to be the only really gay bar in this area, although hustlers abound in several others in the vicinity of La Boule Noire.

It might be worthwhile, as a recent visitor there reports, to be wary of situations in which you can be blackmailed—a favorite trap in Africa. Some trick might go along with you, then, once in your room, pull off the ploy that he's undercover police—with others 'officially' dressed as such to appear at the door soon thereafter. Since laws are strict, the situation can be sticky, especially if you are in Abidjan in any kind of official capacity—government or business.

Sweet-Tooth Beers

Chugalug 'n Love 'em!

By Walter Norris

Has it escaped your notice, as it did ours, that the history of beer is as ancient as that of wine? The reason may be that throughout the Bible more note is made of wine as a symbolic or ritualistic drink (The Wedding at Cana . . . The Last Supper). Yet beer was easier to produce (grape harvests were often skimpy) and was more commonly drunk. The first mention of beer occurs on an Assyrian tablet with reference to Ma and Pa Noah who, although they 'two-by-two'd everything else aboard the Ark, certainly took along more than two six-packs of Coor's.

More relative to us is the real reason why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock instead of already-settled Virginia. Their tongues were hanging out because they'd run out of beer. How the course of American history might have changed if the barrels of porter and stout hadn't run dry!

Until fairly recently, most Americans favored the light brew such as Bud, Miller's, Schlitz, Pabst and local beers brewed in a similar manner. Then, as many of us became acquainted with the richer, spikier imported beers—Hein-eken's, Wurzbürger and Pilsner-Urquell—our beer tastes began to change. Many have reached the connoisseur stage of drinking one kind of beer (called an 'eating' beer) with food—the Danish Carlsberg, for example—and another, heavier, for socializing—or perhaps an ale such as Whitbread's.

Again, tastes are changing. This time for beers for a sweet tooth. Actually, these are imported ales, lagers, bocks, stouts and Pilsners to which something sweet has been added. It's not a new idea to Europeans, but it has caught on with gay guys 'n gals of New York's Upper East Side who drop in at Yorkville's German bars for

WEISSBIER, AND BERLINER WEISSE MIT SCHUSS

The more popular and easier to prepare is Weissbier. Into a long glass the bartender draws the pale beer, then squeezes into it a slice of lemon. But the Berliner Weisse mit schuss—a champagne-like beer, is served with a shot of pure Himbeer (raspberry) sirup on the side. It's a kind of raspberry 'boiler-maker'. Most gourmet food shops have genuine imported raspberry sirup, so try it with a very light beer—it's delightfully different. Or try just a little fresh lemon juice in a light beer. A whole 'nother drink.

ARF 'N ARF

Heaven knows this is common to the English and Irish, but if you haven't tried it you may like the pub way of mixing equal parts of beer and ale. Give it a good stir and sip. Take it easy, however, for this can pack quite a wallop for the novice. The ale gives just the requisite 'sweet-toothiness'. Many New York Irish bars—Downey's, Charlie Brown's, and Michael's Pub among them—serve a beautiful drink made with wine and beer. They call it—as they elegantly should

BLACK VELVET

Ice a tulip-shaped champagne glass (not the flat-bottomed kind) and pour into it a good stout (Guinness is great) until the glass is a smidge less than half-full. Then slowly fill to the brim with a dry champagne. Rich head . . . exotic taste . . . wow! It really should be called Black Magic, 'cause that's what it is.

ROSE OF ERIN

Use a full beer stein for this one. Into the stein pour one ounce of freshly-squeezed lime juice. Fill with any good light domestic beer.

SHANDY GAFF

This is a favorite at Charlie Brown's Ale and Chophouse in New York . . . and it's as old as the Irish hills from whence it came. Have your beer well iced. Then into a beer glass pour simultaneously 1 cup of the icy beer and 1 cup of icy ginger ale. It's absolutely delicious, and won't give you such trouble keeping it all together as some of the other 'innocent-sounding' but 'power-whopping' drinks mentioned.

SWEET-TOOTH CHRISTMAS BOWL

You might save this recipe for a gay Christmas party. It's a famous peasant punch—a special favorite of the Swiss who have it as their wassail bowl on Christmas Eve. Takes a bit of doing, but it'll give you Brownie points in hosting. Here's how it's done.

Remove the cores and seeds from 6 small tart apples. Place them in a small, shallow baking dish. Into each apple place 1 teaspoon of light brown sugar. Pour $\frac{2}{3}$ cup water around the apples. Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes, or until the apples are well done. Be sure to baste occasionally. Now in a large saucepan combine 6 cups of light beer; 1 cup brown sugar; the juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ lemon, plus the other half of the lemon seeded and cut into thin slices; also $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon grated nutmeg; $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground ginger; $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon cinnamon, plus 4 whole cloves. Heat very slowly over low flame but do not allow to boil. Then pour the mixture into a punch bowl; add apples. The recipe serves six.

Merry Christmas!

Irish Coffee

It All Began As A Put-on!

By Terry McWaters

Irish coffee—or 'Gaelic' coffee, as it is sometimes called in places posh—is the biggest put-on in alcoholic history; that is, if one discounts the Bloody Mary (actually more ripoff than put-on) which—in must brunchy places—is so disguised with spices it rarely contains even a drop of vodka.

In the first place, the Irish wouldn't dream of using their precious uisge beatha (Gaelic for 'water of life') so cavalierly. As they say, "Why insult good Irish whisky with coffee?" (On the other hand there are many who ask "Why insult good coffee with Irish whisky?") In the second place, the Irish are a tea-rather than coffee-drinking people (they're lucky, in view of the steep coffee prices); and in the third place, their alcoholic tastes run to beers and ales, such as Harp or Guinness and other brands.

Irish whisky is really a connoisseur's liquor—it's an acquired taste. This is borne out by the fact that few bars in the United States stock more than a bottle each of Paddy's or Old Bushmill's, or Tullamore Dew. But as Irish coffee grows in popularity, some less-expensive brands are to be found in liquor stores.

Irish coffee actually began as a kind of expedient at Ireland's Shannon Airport in 1950. In that jet-less age, planes from New York were not non-stop to London and the continent; there were two stopovers: one at Gander, the other at Shannon, for refueling. Air travelers, bored with guzzling coffee, beer or ale during the long waits while the planes were readied for the final lap, asked the Shannon airport bartender if he had something with more of a lift. Joe Sheridan thought for a moment and came up with the brilliant idea of 'Irish' coffee (which the Irish had never heard of until then). It caught on with the passengers, and later with lots of others. Now you'll find it at good bars—particularly Irish bars—wherever you go.

THE TWO WAYS OF IRISH COFFEE

Since there is no 'authenticity' about Irish coffee there is also no authentic way to prepare this libation. In the main, however, there are two schools of thought about the way it should be 'built'. In New York—particularly at such popular Irish restaurants as P.J. Moriarty's and Downey's Steak House—brown sugar is the sweetening ingredient. But in San Francisco—just as Irish as New York, white sugar is used. If you try both you'll notice a remarkable difference. The brown-sugar variation seems to have greater body.

The technique of the 'build' is much the same. Warmed goblets are used. A barspoonful of sugar is placed in the glass. Then just about an ounce of hot coffee (regular strength) is added to mull the sugar. In a very busy restaurant or bar these goblets will be lined up at the ready (Downey's has a special 'coffee bar' adjoining its regular bar, with all the makin's handy). Then when ordered, the goblet is filled to about one inch from the brim with a good hot coffee, and to this is added one jigger of Irish whisky, and thick whipped cream is 'floated' over it. Enjoy!

Irish coffee is a drink that affects one quite differently than any other alcoholic beverage. It tends to steal up on the drinker. As the Shannon bartender who dreamed it up said, "It cossets the spirit." Indeed it does, and if you have two or more that's not all it will 'cosset'. You are actually getting an 'up' from the caffeine, and a 'down' in the whisky; two or more and all this begins seesawing. An Irish-coffee hangover is not the most delightful experience. Still, it has the advantage of brevity. The Irish coffee hangover is over with sooner than the gin or vodka kind. Perhaps to some extent this is because the caffeine in the coffee acts as a painkiller.

Irish whisky bombs faster because it's heavier than Scotch (especially the lighter Scotches such as J&B and Dewar's, that are so popular and drunk more freely). Irish whisky, as the bard said, "should be orderlie taken." Although, like Scotch, it is a blend—distilled from grain mash—the difference (1) is that Irish whisky is triple-distilled—not only from rye and wheat, as Scotch is, but from Irish oats and barley; and (2) the blend is made in the mash, not after having been distilled, as is Scotch.

And while the alcoholic content may be the same as Scotch—that is, either 80- or 86-proof—it comes on stronger. So whether you're having your first Irish coffee, or your first drink of straight Irish whisky, take it easy. Stop at o-n-e!

Gay hosts are warned to look with careful eye at any guest who asked for a second Irish coffee. Count him as the dull one in the orgy. Although in his mind's eye he may think he's doing just great, it's really just a leprechaun's illusion. The first Irish coffee can be counted on to fill in the potholes and get the traffic to the orgy room running apace.

Today Irish coffee is a favorite with both the jeans crowd and the Rolls-Royce set, whose chauffeurs await without. If you have the opportunity of traveling from coast to coast, try it as prepared the brown-sugar way in New York and the white sugar-cube way in San Francisco. It's a treat, either way.

Cruising In Salvador, Brazil

By Vincent Synge

It would be hard to find more gorgeous Black people anywhere else in the world than the people in the Brazilian state of Bahia, located about 1,000 miles north of Rio de Janeiro. The capital city of this state is Salvador, a city filled with people resulting from the intermarriages of African, Portuguese, French and sundry other nationalities.

There is a comic saying throughout Brazil, referring to Bahian men. They say that Bahian men wear their pants the regular way all day and wear them backwards at night. A bitchy way of referring to these beautiful people's acceptance of sex as something not to be limited by what Queen Victoria thought we should do in bed, and with whom.

Actually gay life in Salvador is not the rampant wild thing it is in Rio, where transvestites hustle the speedways at night and screaming queens can be seen anywhere. Salvador is es-entially a big "small town." Gay life is greatly affected by the fact that nobody wants his family to know. So what you will see is a barrage of charming young men going in and out of the slightly undercover bars with a host of screaming sissies inside. The transformation is amazing. In short, this is closet country.

The most chic bar in town is the Maison Noire, Rua Carlos Gomes 140, a street that has many clubs, cafes and restaurants. Maison Noire is painted all black and has mirrors along its narrow walls to try and offset the closed-in feeling the color gives. It is a small place with a small veranda. The clientele is the most affluent in town since the prices compare with those of American bars. They just seem to sit around, however, and bitch about how expensive it is to travel to Europe these days, and how their last servant ripped them off. It is a good place to meet someone who speaks English though, who could take you around to see the non-sexual sights the city offers.

Som 7 Boite, Rua Santa Theresza 7, just off Rua Carlos Gomes, is a gay discotheque where the locals come to kick up their heels. It is somewhat small, but then the crowds demanding this outlet are not large either. It is a makeshift place that has no decor, and a dilapidated sound system. Occasionally the doorman-waiter-porter goes to sleep near the entrance. Just pass him by and go in. There is no entrance fee. The place is not a cruisy one. People usually go there, oddly enough, just to dance—which they do all night long. The crowd, as you might suspect, is a youngish one—20s.

The Bar (it really has no name) at Rua Carlos Gomes 133, is a very discreet gay bar where you might even encounter a rare transvestite. The place is so discreet, in fact, that it has no sign outside. You simply go to the address, walk down the steps and enter an unmarked door to your left. The blaring music and psychedelic lighting will let you know you're in the right place. Actually this place is a straight bar-restaurant during the day (like most of Salvador's chosen few), turning gay at night. A hallway leads to a large room dominated by a counter on which drinks and some food is served. The people there don't seem to be out to make it. Maybe that's because in a small town they all know each other. They seem to be happy just being in a place where they can let their hair down. If you do cruise, though, they are only too delighted to go along, if you have a place to take them. Just seeing a new face (girl) in town excites them too.

The outdoor cafe, Oasis, at Rua Carlos Gomes 544, is the general, all-purpose meeting/cruising/last-chance spot for Salvador's gay set. It is a riot of scenes, with friends gathered at clumps of tables, and boys parading back and forth in front of the cafe, wanting desperately to be picked up. It's usually best from 10 p.m. until closing, in the week hours of the morning. One usually finds quite a few hustlers here, so you'll have to check to see if your number expects money. Since Bahians are so friendly, this too is a good place to make friends. Don't look for the place during the day because it just does not exist during the day. It is not until the busy working offices close that the white chairs come out to make one of Salvador's best outdoor gay spots.

The "Number One" discotheque at Carlos Gomes 354, is not a gay spot, but it is a good spot to meet numbers. The local boys go there because it is a fun dance place, with many extra women just hanging around. The local gays go because in the matching game there are always more guys left over when the gals have made their pick. The place is warm and friendly, too, with everybody frantically showing off his stuff on the dance floor.

The big weekly event in Salvador is on Saturday (10 a.m. to 5 p.m. are the best hours) at the Mercado Modelo (Model Marketplace). It is a large two-story armory-type building filled with concessionaires who sell tourist items such as clothes, silver jewelry, paintings, carvings, and Brazilian percussion instruments. Everyone who wants to cruise, or just be with friends, spends Saturdays there at the many bars and cafes located on the first and second floors. It is a wild, friendly scene that is so Salvador. People singing at tables together, playing drums and dancing as they get drunk. All the time there is furious cruising going on. Arrange your stay in Salvador to have as many Saturdays as possible. These are the big days. Also arrange to arrive in town near Saturday.

Outdoor cruising in Salvador is more widespread during the day and early evening—the place being essentially the small town it is. There is some cruising at many of the beaches that run for a stretch of about 20 miles along the ocean front between the city and the airport. The best beach, though, is Barra, located closest to downtown.

In the early evening, the square and city gardens near the state building in Praca Thome de Souza is a good place, but the boys there are definitely commercial numbers and a bit on the desperate side.

Praca de Se is the main terminal place for the city's many buses. It is also Salvador's meek answer to New York's Times Square. Right next to it is a square called, simply, Terreiro where the boys sit around the fountain, gleefully waiting for Tennessee Williams (or you) to come along and resolve all their financial problems.

Terreiro

If you go to Brazil and want to split your time between Rio and Salvador, it would be best to divide the time two-thirds to Rio and one-third to Salvador.

During your few minutes of non-cruising in Salvador you should definitely see a samba show, since the samba was born in Salvador. You should also witness some Capoeira, the Brazilian martial art that will just knock you out. The men who do it are choice physical numbers. Candomble is the Brazilian equivalent of Haiti's voodoo and is a main tourist attraction in Salvador, too.

Although Rio is a livelier city, Salvador has a special charm that has a way of making you want to stay longer.

Superstud On Tour

Jaunts With Jack Wrangler

By The Editors

Sorry, buddy, but it's now too late to get in on Jack Wrangler's San Francisco Tour—which comes off just about the time this magazine rolls off the presses.

No matter. We'll share the Good Times with you through one of our publications. And now knowing that Jack Wrangler (who gets our vote as the Superstud of The Century!) takes personal charge of his tours, you can start making plans to join him the next time around, here in the U.S. of A. or wherever Wrangler wrangles upcoming jaunts.

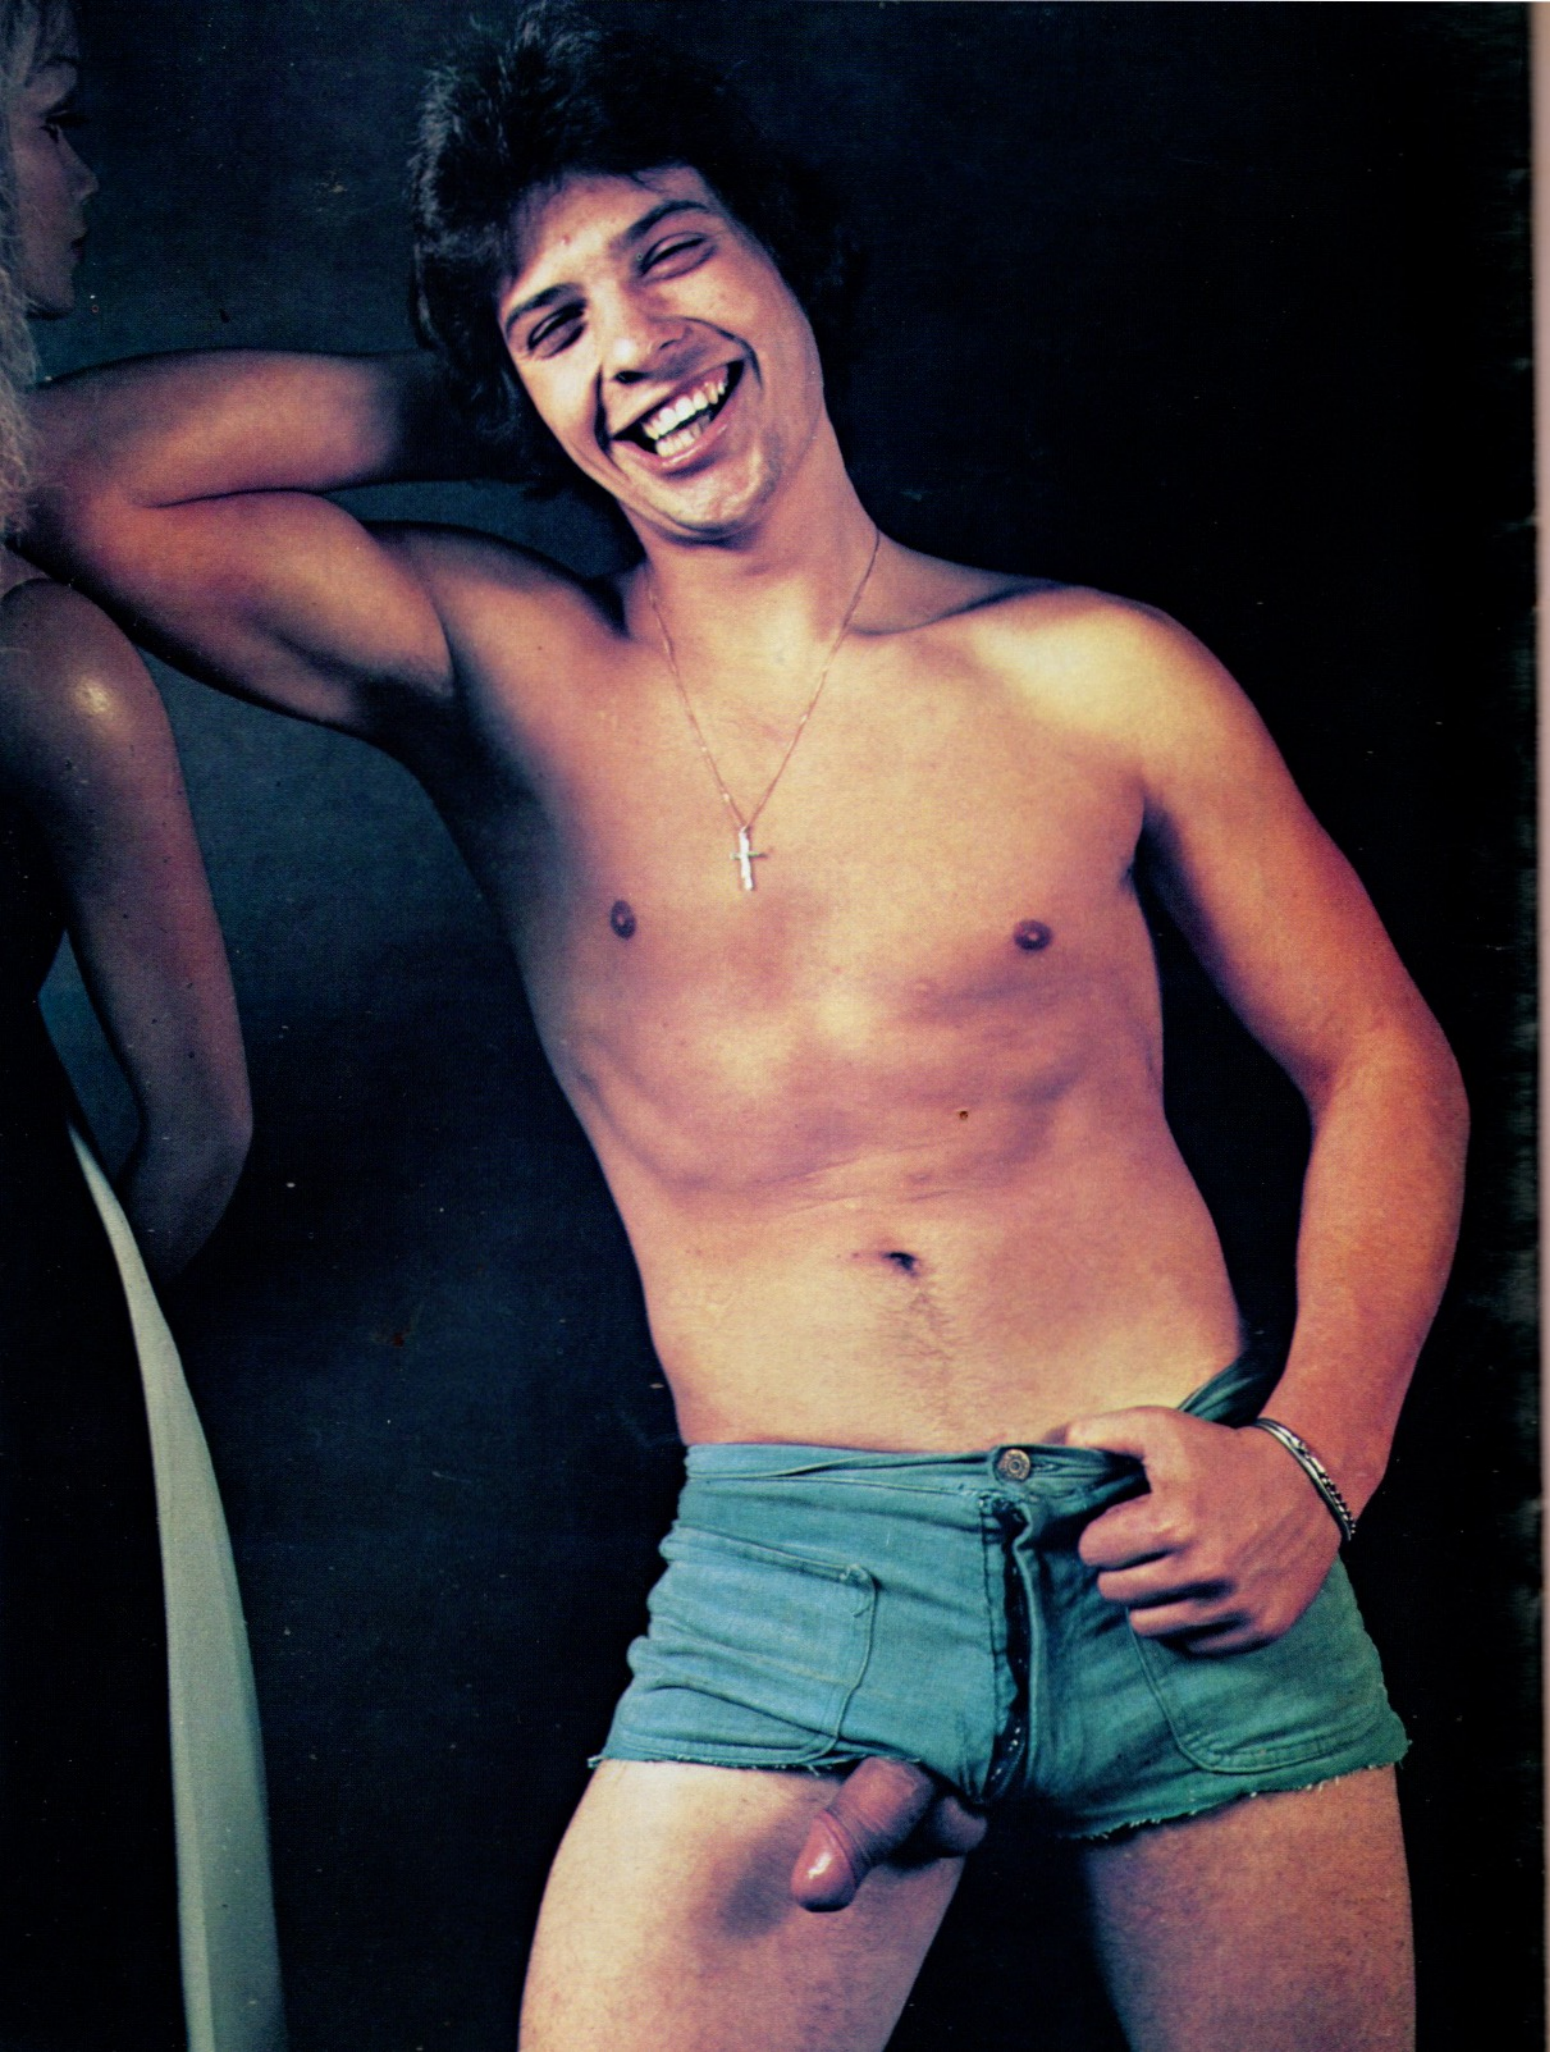

Jack, the person, is unique—because his good looks only serve to complement his really super personality. He's full of life, and genuine in everything he does. Concerned about the people he knows. And on tour he really does accompany you to meals, the bars, the baths, private parties . . . as you may accompany him on his trips to the gym for workouts (where you're invited to take pictures!). (This personal attention alone may be unique in itself; too often we have heard of others making promises of a fabulous guide—who ends up snubbing the group and runs off with a very guarded trick he's snatched along the way.)

We endorse the Jack Wrangler Tours because we endorse Jack the person. We've met him. We like him. We think he's gold. And you will too.

And this is why we suggest you write him and find out more about his tours and the Jack Wrangler Fraternity. The address is: Jack Wrangler's Fraternity, 256 So. Robertson, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211.

GOOD HEALTH & SEXUAL VIGOR CAN BE YOURS

Vitamins are substances which are required by the body if it is to function properly. They are normally provided by foods, but not always in sufficient quantities. This is particularly true of processed foods which have been depleted of their vitamin content.

When extraordinary demands tax the body its nutrients are drained and must be replenished. We do this through proper nutrition; by eating good foods and supplementing our meals with vitamins and minerals. Those of us who have sex every day are especially concerned about the ability to perform successfully and safeguard against impotency—a condition which may be aggravated when certain nutrients are lacking . . . particularly those vitamins associated with sexual potency.

First and foremost the sexually-active adult should take a powerful multi-vitamin & mineral tablet daily for his general well being. During times of stress, and particularly the type which is associated with sex, the body requires more energy and therefore demands additional B vitamins to assist in the metabolic processes. Vitamin E is associated with sexual prowess and is consumed by thousands of sexually-active people who attribute their drive in great part to this vitamin. Bee pollen is gathered from the bee colonies and unsprayed flower fields in Southern Europe—where it is believed that bee pollen has aphrodisiacal properties. Korean Ginseng, particularly highest quality "heaven grade" processed from roots that are at least six years old, has for thousands of years been considered a wondrous rejuvenator and reactivator of the sexual organs in the Orient.

With this knowledge we have combined the highest-quality natural food supplements available for sexually-active adults. Three Sex Combos are available to meet the most discriminating requirements—and only you will know their value after you have added them to your diet. And like hundreds of others now taking Sex Combos we believe you too will find a new and livelier sexual awareness in your life.

The components may be purchased separately, but greater savings are realized when they are bought as Sex Combo packages.

The Greatest Invention Since The Human Mouth

ACCU-JAC

New Variable Speed Model

If you are into masturbation then ACCU-JAC is for you. It is a professionally engineered massaging device that took four years of research and development.

ACCU-JAC uses alternating air pressure to move a smooth massaging membrane on the erect penis. The stroking motion is total and incorporates pressurized air flow which produces suction and compression to drive the massaging sleeve back and forth, thus approximating actual fellatio. This total massage combined with gentle suction results in violent climax.

No electrical parts ever touch you. ACCU-JAC is completely safe and entirely harmless. It is gentler than the hand or actual fellatio. A warranty is included to protect all electrical and mechanical parts.

The basic unit includes everything you need to use ACCU-JAC . . . there are no extras to buy. Additional sleeves for a variety of unusual sensations are available for later purchase. They are detailed in literature which accompanies ACCU-JAC and also in our 1975 Catalog advertised elsewhere in this magazine.

It is crucial that you furnish exact measurements of your erect penis to ensure perfect fit of the sleeve sent with your unit. If you are purchasing ACCU-JAC with a friend order an additional sleeve for the second person if his size is different from yours and/or you intend to use ACCU-JAC simultaneously with a T-connection accessory (see coupon).

If you wish to learn more about ACCU-JAC before purchasing see our detailed report in the May-June 1977 QQ Magazine. Send $3.50 ($4.50 in Canada & Mexico; $5.00 all other countries) for a copy; $1 for a Xerox copy of the report. Address is on coupon.

Our prices include all shipping charges and taxes where applicable. We ship via insured parcel post. Cartons are sturdy and carefully packed and bear no revealing markings. U.S. residents desiring air service please add $10 to your order. A money-order or charge expedites shipment. Sorry, no C.O.D.'s. Price reflects manufacturer's 1974 increase. You must be over 21 to order.

1978 GAY TRAVEL DIRECTORY

From The Editors Of Ciao!—The Most Celebrated Gay Travel Magazine In The World—A 1978 International Travel Directory Containing Nearly 4,000 Up-To-Date And Accurate Keyed Names And Addresses Of Gay Hotels, Bars, Baths, Movie Houses, Book/Sex Shops, Meeting Places And Action Spots Throughout The U.S.A., Canada, Mexico, Central America, The Caribbean, South America, Europe, Africa, The Middle East, Asia, And The Pacific . . . Your Passport To Gay Adventure In A Compact Booklet Small Enough To Fit In Your Pocket!

THE MOST ACCURATE GAY TRAVEL DIRECTORY IN THE WORLD

Nearly all existing gay travel directories are "rip-offs" of guides published years ago—providing information which is no longer valid. The editors of our gay travel magazine span the world—constantly gathering information for Ciao! They have prepared our 1978 gay travel directory—which we call "Private Stock." It contains nearly 4,000 accurate and up-to-date names and addresses of gay establishments and meeting places everywhere in the world—conveniently arranged by country and city in alphabetical order. By utilizing a concise system of "keys" we are able to present detailed information about each listing; the keys are so arranged that you can instantly interpret them and learn everything you need to know—whether a place is entirely gay, what you will encounter—young guys, old guys, sex, no booze, entertainment, food, lesbians, hustlers, muggers, cops, even dangerous animals (in jungle meat-racks!). And we dare to bare it all—including johns on college campuses, in subways and department stores that swing. By using small type which is easy to read we are able to cram all this valuable information in a compact booklet which is securely stapled together in magazine form and small enough (3x5) to fit in your shirt pocket. Its cover is durable and leather-grained with absolutely no "tell-tale" printing so that discreet travelers can use it anywhere. Plus other features such as where to look for sex in college towns, and how much hustlers are paid—and how to handle them. Published annually—"Private Stock" is the only gay travel directory you need . . . the only one you will ever want. It is your personal address book for hot times! Sent via certified 1st class.

"THE GREEK BOY" TERRY CLOTH BIKINI Only $7.50

2 FOR $14.00! 3 FOR $20.00!

THE GREEK BOY is made of fine terry cloth that clings without pulling. The front is cut low, utilizing a codpiece-like panel to create a U-drop, thereby accentuating the crotch . . . and the seat is cut FULL, so unlike most bikinis and flimsy swimsuits the seams fall where they should and don't cut across the middle of your ass. We carry STRIPES ONLY (no solid colors). Some stripes are broad, some thin, some muted—all colorful on a background of white. When you order INDICATE YOUR FAVORITE COLORS and we will send the stripe combination that includes the color(s) you want. If you order more than one GREEK BOY we will not duplicate the design. Give your correct size (using your underwear as a guide)—SMALL, 28-30; MEDIUM, 32-34; LARGE, 36-38. Provide true size since swimsuits are a sanitary item and are not returnable. The Greatest Invention Since The Human Mouth

New Variable Speed Model

NEW MODEL
40 TO 100 STROKES PER MINUTE
VARIABLE SPEED

If you are into masturbation then ACCU-JAC is for you. It is a professionally engineered massaging device that took four years of research and development.

ACCU-JAC uses alternating air pressure to move a smooth massaging membrane on the erect penis. The stroking motion is total and incorporates pressurized air flow which produces suction and compression to drive the massaging sleeve back and forth, thus approximating actual fellatio. This total massage combined with gentle suction results in violent climax.

No electrical parts ever touch you. ACCU-JAC is completely safe and entirely harmless. It is gentler than the hand or actual fellatio. A warranty is included to protect all electrical and mechanical parts.

The basic unit includes everything you need to use ACCU-JAC . . . there are no extras to buy. Additional sleeves for a variety of unusual sensations are available for later purchase. They are detailed in literature which accompanies ACCU-JAC and also in our 1975 Catalog advertised elsewhere in this magazine.

It is crucial that you furnish exact measurements of your erect penis to ensure perfect fit of the sleeve sent with your unit. If you are purchasing ACCU-JAC with a friend order an additional sleeve for the second person if his size is different from yours and/or you intend to use ACCU-JAC simultaneously with a T-connection accessory (see coupon).

If you wish to learn more about ACCU-JAC before purchasing see our detailed report in the May-June 1977 QQ Magazine. Send $3.50 ($4.50 in Canada & Mexico; $5.00 all other countries) for a copy; $1 for a Xerox copy of the report. Address is on coupon.

Our prices include all shipping charges and taxes where applicable. We ship via insured parcel post. Cartons are sturdy and carefully packed and bear no revealing markings. U.S. residents desiring air service please add $10 to your order. A money-order or charge expedites shipment. Sorry, no C.O.D.'s. Price reflects manufacturer's 1974 increase. You must be over 21 to order.
