GLPC Urges End To Anti-Gay/Lesbian Violence

By Harry Livesay

GLPC members overwhelmingly passed an anti-gay/lesbian violence resolution at its March 1 meeting. The resolution urges city of Houston support for the state hate crimes bill. It also urges the Houston Police Department to begin keeping local statistics on hate crimes. A full text of the resolution is printed on page 4.

GLPC president Ray Hill presented the resolution to the Houston City Council March 8 and conducted a news conference that day at city hall.

The March 1 presentation included information about the drastic rise in anti-gay and lesbian violence in Houston, Texas and in the nation, and what our community can do to battle this growing crisis.

According to GLPC president, Ray Hill, "Houston police are currently investigating 12 homicides that cannot be explained as a result of robbery or domestic conflict which occurred in the Montrose area."

A 1987 study by the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force found that anti-gay and lesbian violence and harassment increased over 42% in a one-year period. Current reports indicate this level continues to increase from 25% to 65% throughout the nation. Hill believes the majority of hate crimes against lesbians and gays still remain unreported due to "closet isolation and low self-esteem within the gay and lesbian community."

Another factor responsible for the under-reporting is the continued refusal of local and state law-enforcement agencies to give equal consideration to crimes motivated by a victim's sexual orientation, as in cases motivated by a victim's race, color, or religion.

Evidence collected by the Center For Democratic Renewal and the National Council of Churches indicates that increased reports of violence directed against lesbians and gay men occur at the same time of widespread attacks on other minorities, such as Arabs, Asians, blacks, Hispanics, and Jews.

National pressure by organizations such as the NGLTF, NGRA, the Human Rights Campaign Fund, and others has resulted in congressional attempts to pass legislation mandating the collection of statistics on "hate crimes" motivated by sexual orientation, as well as race, religion, or ethnicity.

Some cities have taken the lead by passing "hate-crimes" ordinances, with severe penalties for crimes motivated by prejudice and hatred. The city of Houston has no such law.

Hill believes anti-gay and lesbian violence continues to increase in Houston due, in part, to "the perception that gay people are easy targets, unable to fight back, and unwilling to risk exposure by reporting crimes against them to the police." Citing the recent murder of Debra Marie Koss in Pasadena as an example of the "hate crimes crisis" in the Houston area, Hill urges all persons in our community to attend the March 15 meeting to learn how to combat the bigotry and prejudice which leads to anti-gay and lesbian violence. A letter-writing workshop on anti-gay/lesbian violence is scheduled for the March 15 caucus meeting. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. March 15 at the Travelodge Hotel, 2828 Southwest Freeway. For more information, call the GLPC office at 521-1000.

Major Projects Planned; Committees Look For "Hidden Talent"

By Harry Livesay

The GLPC is undertaking three major projects this year to strengthen the caucus and to increase the solidarity of the Houston gay and lesbian community.

The first project is to improve and enhance the computer system of our organization, and to streamline and update our mailing list. Computer committee chair Mike Stubblefield stated, "We're currently updating, researching, and cross-referencing over 4,500 pieces of mail. We plan to implement four computer work stations for data entry on the master mailing list. Having the ability to correct and input this much information will make your mailing list much more efficient, and will ensure that our members receive vital information from the caucus."

Voter Registration Committee Co-chair Tim Hall heads the effort for GLPC's second major project: a concentrated effort to intensify the formidable gay and lesbian voting bloc in Houston through a mass voter registration campaign. The campaign will include prizes ranging from cameras to cash for the three top voter registrars. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. March 22 at the GLPC office, 900 Lovett, No. 101. (See Major Projects, page 2.)

Heading the third major project is Jack Valinski, chair of the Membership Committee. Jack stated, "I'll be sending out form letters and a mass mailout for address corrections" to update the GLPC mailing list. Valinski has pledged to work with President Ray Hill and all the members of the caucus to increase membership to 1,000 before the November general election. (A membership application is provided on page 4.)

The GLPC is currently looking for the "hidden talents" of our membership to join the ongoing efforts of these committees in these exciting projects. We need you! to help make 1989 GLPC's most successful year ever! For more information contact the GLPC office at 521-1000, or attend a GLPC meeting the first and third Wednesdays of the month.

Name The Newsletter

Perhaps you noticed that the name of our newsletter doesn't show much originality. Maybe gay and lesbian political types aren't as witty as many of our brothers and sisters. If you're feeling especially witty, however, call the GLPC office with some suggested names. No wisecracs please!

Warm Reception For Gay/Lesbian Rights

By Bill Willis

Although we're perceived as the leading edge, the GLPC remains the longest standing gay and lesbian rights group in the city. But we've encountered the same kind of problems as others in our community. Some of those we most depended upon have fallen before the ravaging epidemic in our land. One of those stalwarts, Don Hrachovy, willed computers and software to the caucus. Since his untimely death, our systems have fallen into disrepair. To become operational, a consultant estimates our immediate needs at around $1,000. We believe that the rights we fight for are worth at least that much, and we need your support. Join us and give what you can.

Voter Registrar, Letters at March 15 Meeting

Part of the March 15 meeting will be devoted to writing legislators in support of pending hate crimes bills. Legislation is being considered on both national and state levels. The letter-writing session is a follow-up to the March 1 GLPC resolution concerning anti-gay/lesbian violence. (See separate story.)

A representative of the County Voter Registrar's office also will be present to deputize caucus members for the new

A Tisket-A-Tasket (Come Fill Stone Soup's Basket)

By Bill Willis

He first got involved in GLPC when he got tired of complaining and decided to take more direct action. Like most of us, board member Lou Vanech found that active participation enabled him to really focus on the objects of his complaints. It fulfilled a sense of responsibility too. When he saw that not much political attention was being given to AIDS issues he decided to get busy.

A Tisket-A-Tasket, now in its second year, grew out of that concern. Jointly sponsored by the Gay and Lesbian Political Caucus and the AIDS Foundation of Houston, it draws public attention to underfunding problems in caring for people with AIDS. It's also a partial solution that opens the door to greater community participation. This year the collection is set for March 25, the day before Easter.

Lou asks that you pay particular attention to the Stone Soup Wish List during the week prior to the food drive. (See the Montrose Voice and This Week in Texas.) Food given should be non-perishable. Please bring your donations in doubled paper bags. While you're thinking of PWAs, think about helping some of their closest friends. That's right, pet food is almost always on a list of wanted items. During a lengthy illness, a pet can be the most enduring of companions.

Board Gets Busy On Busy Year

By Cicely Wynne

GLPC board members spent a lengthy but productive Saturday, February 11 planning for the new year.

The annual board retreat covered every aspect of caucus business, from membership to mailing lists.

The board took several steps to increase membership: A newsletter committee will produce a monthly newsletter; bids will be taken for membership cards; membership/fund-raising letters will be sent to targeted sections of the mailing list; and a combination brochure/membership form will be created.

Also approved was a new membership/ mailing list policy designed to clarify and tighten use of the lists.

The motion reads:

The president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, chairs of the membership and newsletter committees shall have operational use of the membership list.

Operational use is defined as regular, direct caucus business including fund-raising for the caucus, excluding fund-raising for any individual or any other organization.

Other usage of the membership list must be approved by a majority of the board. If approval is needed before a meeting can be scheduled, polling of the board and approval by a majority of the board will constitute authorization.

(This operating procedure is in addition to Article XI of the GLPC bylaws, which states: The mailing list, including all membership records, is the sole property of the Caucus and is to remain confidential at all times. The Board shall insure this confidentiality. No Member may have access to the mailing list for non-Caucus business.)

Other board action:

* Three fund-raising events were approved.

The search is underway for a speaker for the annual GLPC awards dinner, probably to be held in September. Joe Thornton will head a committee to plan the GLPC booth at the April 8-9 Westheimer Arts Festival.

The third event, a March 18 fund-raiser, is featured in the enclosed invitation.

* The board accepted a computer committee report recommending a $920 expenditure to update GLPC's two computers. The board and caucus will vote on spending funds for immediate and long-term computer/ mailing list needs. The two computers were donated to the caucus by the estate of the late Don Hrachovy, former mailing list coordinator.

* A committee will research the possibility of moving the GLPC office and meeting location.

* Three presidential appointments were approved: Mike Stubblefield, computer/ mailing list; Darrell Young, voter registration; and Jack Valinski, membership.

* Media policy and strategy was reviewed, as were annual expenses and income.

* As time ran out, other political brainstorming was postponed until the March 8 board meeting.

Mickey Leland Honored, Committee Heads Approved

A resolution honoring U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland was overwhelmingly approved at the Feb. 15 GLPC meeting.

The 18th Congressional District representative was commended for mailing constituents an AIDS informational packet and for supporting gay and lesbian rights.

GLPC Vice President Dennis Spencer personally delivered the resolution to Leland's Washington, D.C. office.

In other caucus business, new President Ray Hill announced three key committee appointments: Mike Stubblefield, computer/ mailing list; Darrell Young, voter registration; and Jack Valinski, membership.

After adjourning the business meeting, Ray Hill presented a special program on homophobia within the gay and lesbian movement.

Operation Get-Over-It

By Michael Hollier

A committee has been formed within GLPC to organize a political response and raise community awareness about a form that the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR) is distributing to its members as a "courtesy."

The form is an Owner Disclosure Statement. In section four, along with questions about active termites and the hundred-year flood plain, is the question: Did the prior or current resident have AIDS? Many protests have been raised by state and local organizations.

There will be legislation introduced during this session of the state legislature prohibiting realtors from asking this. In (See Get-Over-It on following page.)

addition, our committee will attempt to convince TAR that this question should be deleted from the disclosure form NOW!

It is extremely important that realtors who are members of TAR express their displeasure with their trade association. Concerned individuals can contact their legislators and urge a speedy legislative end to this matter. Individuals are urged to send letters to TAR to voice their outrage. Send letters to: Texas Association of Realtors, P.O. Box 14488, Austin, Texas 78761.

Letters can be forwarded to the Houston Board of Realtors, 3693 Southwest Freeway, Houston, Texas 77027, to request that they urge their state organization to drop this question from the disclosure form immediately.

If you would like to volunteer for this project or have any suggestions on strategy, please contact GLPC at 521-1000. We are planning an organizational meeting for late March. Additional information will be available at the bimonthly GLPC meetings.

“Concerned Voters” also receive News

By CICELY WYNNE

Before each election, the GLPC Election News is mailed to everyone on GLPC's confidential mailing list.

The current Election News also is being mailed to unidentified “Concerned Voters” in targeted areas, such as Montrose and the Timmins-Cummins area.

Political organizations such as the Republican and Democratic Parties and major candidates normally purchase various lists and mail to individuals in areas where potential supporters have been identified.

By HARRY LIVESAY

By a margin of 5-1 GLPC members voted to endorse State Senator Craig Washington for the 18th Congressional District seat left vacant by the death of Mickey Leland in August.

Speaking to an enthusiastic audience at the candidate screening meeting Sept. 20, Washington reminded listeners of the immortal words of Martin Luther King Jr. : “No one is free until we are all free.”

Washington also discussed his constant support of gay and lesbian rights, and challenged other candidates

This Election News mail-out is a variation on this standard political practice. After canvassing the Montrose and Timmins-Cummins areas, GLPC added only the addresses and unit numbers of apartment complexes with large gay and lesbian populations. The canvassing did not identify anyone by name and no names were added to the confidential mailing list, which is composed of about 13,000 people who requested

Schulte, Newsome special guests at annual dinner Oct. 21

The Houston Gay and Lesbian Political Caucus will celebrate its 14th anniversary as the leading political organization of Houston's gay and lesbian community.

The annual dinner will be Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. at the Doubletree Hotel at Allen Center, 400 Dallas. A reception will be held at 7 p.m. in the conference room adjacent to the banquet hall.

The theme of this year's banquet will be "Remembering Mickey Leland, Our Friend". The 1989 Humanitarian of the Year Award will be presented to Leland posthumously for his life-long commitment to human rights. Alma Newsome, press secretary for the late congressman and civil rights advocate, will accept the award.

The keynote speaker will be Steve Schulte, the former mayor of West Hollywood, California. Schulte, a former Council in 1984 and in 1986 was elected mayor of the heavily-gay city in the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

Schulte has served in leadership roles on local and national levels as a founding member of the National Organization of Gay and Lesbian Elected Officials and was former executive director of LA's Gay and Lesbian Community Center.

GLPC's 1989 Bayard Rustin Award winner will speak on the importance of the gay and lesbian bloc vote.

"We are very excited about this year's dinner," stated GLPC Vice-President Dennis Spencer. "Steve Schulte is a very dynamic speaker, and we are happy to welcome him back to Houston to celebrate the 14th anniversary of our organization."

Hofheinz endorsed after intense debate

By CICELY WYNNE
and DONN MUMMA

Many of the endorsements were as easy as the spontaneous cheers that greeted Craig Washington on Sept. 20.

Washington overwhelmingly won caucus support in his race for the 18th Congressional District.

City Controller George Greanias and Councilmembers Eleanor Tinsley, Rodney Ellis, Vince Ryan and Ernest McGowen Sr. were quickly endorsed after they or a representative addressed the caucus. Gay activist Bruce Reeves was endorsed in the City Council District G race against Christin Hartung.

Caucus members also voted to back the Port of Houston bond issue as well as four constitutional amendments.

A slightly tougher choice involved the City Council at-large contest between front-runners Sheila Jackson Lee and Leonel Castillo, both previously endorsed candidates. But after discussion, Lee easily prevailed.

The mayor's race

The most debated choice was, of course, mayor.

The first motion was to endorse Fred Hofheinz. A substitute motion to endorse Kathy Whitmire followed. An hour of vigorous debate later, the Whitmire motion failed 40-28.

The vote to endorse Hofheinz was 38-37. Because of the close vote, a division of the house was taken. That vote ended 35-35. President Ray Hill, who chaired the meeting, exercised his option, voting for Hofheinz.

Anyone who joined GLPC 30 days before endorsement night was eligible to vote.

Screening Scores

Hofheinz averaged 74 percent from an 8-member screening panel.

Whitmire did not screen this year. In 1987, a different panel gave her approximately 85 percent.

A Whitmire staff member tried to schedule screening several days before the Sept. 20 meeting, but an interview was not finalized. A Whitmire aide asked GLPC members for support on endorsement night.

Caucus leaders had hoped Whitmire would screen so the same panel could discuss the lengthy questionnaire with both candidates and score them, and the full caucus could compare 1989 questionnaires.

Numerous caucus members explained their choice that night, reflecting some opinions that had been ex-

Hofheinz's screening

Hofheinz's 74 percent was averaged from panel scores ranging from 94 to 45.

Panelists comments included:

1. Hofheinz came across as the mayor most likely to deal with you honestly and caringly, said the one panelist who screened both Hofheinz this year and Whitmire in 1987.
2. He screened well. He was honest and open.
3. Hofheinz could have been better informed on some issues important to gay men and women.
4. His scores on AIDS, his criticism of the religious right's treatment of gays and lesbians, and his willingness to appoint openly gay men and women earned high marks.

* Hofheinz's record as mayor, 1974-1977 awarded early AIDS grants, Houston was not. Local AIDS service organizations and some granting agencies have pointed out that Houston was denied grants because of lack of leadership from city government and a fragmented local effort.

Houston continues to have the nation's 4th-largest AIDS population. Despite this tremendous need, city spending — which includes federal and state funds — ranks 48th in the nation.

Whitmire appointed two city health directors who had difficulty working with the predominantly gay health organizations that began the fight against AIDS in Houston.

One GLPC member also reminded the endorsement night audience that President Reagan said the word AIDS publicly before Mayor Whitmire did.

After weighing the pros and cons of both candidates, GLPC members made a tough choice in 1989. But a majority of members present Sept. 20 believed Fred Hofheinz could best serve the interests of gay men and women.

One caucus member pointed out that Hofheinz's record must be judged in light of the mid-1970s when a less-progressive City Council and far less-enlightened police department were in control.

* Some members said they believe gay men and lesbians would have a better working relationship with Mayor Hofheinz.

Numerous GLPC members have praised Whitmire as an excellent mayor in many areas. But her slow response to such a crucial issue as the AIDS crisis in Houston has eroded her once-strong GLPC support.

Reaching "Concerned Voters" is one way to increase the bloc vote. GLPC also is spending more money to advertise endorsements.

Absentee voting begins Oct. 18

Absentee voting is scheduled for Oct. 18-Nov. 3 at Courthouse Annexes throughout the county.

Houston residents will vote on mayor, and City Council, while all county residents will decide the fate of the Port of Houston Authority Bond Election and state constitutional amendments. Some voters will select a new U.S. Congressman, new Houston ISD trustees, City of Bellaire officials and Houston Community College trustees.

All county residents may vote absentee at the downtown Houston absentee voting location, 49 San Jacinto. People also may vote absentee at a branch office in the justice of the peace precinct in which they live.

But since no one has to pretend they're going out of town on election day, Nov. 7, some people have suggested they change absentee voting to "early voting."

Absolutely everyone who registered by Oct. 8 can take advantage of convenient absentee voting.

The schedule:

- Oct. 18-Nov. 3: Mondays through Fridays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., all locations.
- Oct. 28-29, 1-6 p.m., all locations.
- Nov. 2-3, 7 a.m.-7 p.m., all locations.

Moved recently?

People who moved recently but did not fill out a new card should return to their old precinct to vote.

No card?

If you register by Oct. 8, but do not receive a card, you can still vote. You must inform your precinct officials that you did, in fact, register by Oct. 8. They are required to allow you to sign a brief affidavit and vote. If they refuse to allow you to vote, call the County Voter Registration Office at 224-1919. Also call that number before election day with any voter eligibility questions.

Anyone who loses their card can vote simply by showing a photo ID.

Missed the deadline?

Anyone who did not register by Oct. 8 should fill out a card quickly because of possible run-off elections next month and statewide party primaries in March 1990.

Every election is accompanied by a big push to get out the vote. In the case of the gay community, like other minorities, a large turnout for favored candidates establishes our influence with those candidates and legitimizes our community's influence politically.

This election the community finds itself divided between two candidates for mayor who, depending on who you talk with, have basically strong claims to the gay vote. Frankly, this is a rare occurrence in Houston.

To say that our community should vote its conscience does not undermine the electoral influence we might have. The loyalties within the community to the two leading candidates for mayor are of such a substantive nature as to preclude bloc voting for the sake of bloc voting.

In this age of sophisticated electronic gadgetry, we can still make our impact felt by a large turnout. The politicians know the demographics of every precinct and when the "gay" precincts register a large turnout the message is clear, and our importance in this and future elections is well established. And the gay vote can and is being demonstrated by the age-old method of the political donor and foot soldier—politicians

GLPC volunteers crucial to candidate victories

The lesbian and gay community of Houston is well-known for the thousands of hours volunteered each year to GLPC-endorsed candidates. Our volunteers have been the backbone of numerous successful campaigns.

Volunteers are needed for simple tasks requiring only a few hours, such as one evening of sealing envelopes for a mail-out. Volunteers are also needed to answer phones, run errands, put up yard signs, bloc walking and phone banking to get out the vote.

GLPC also needs dozens of volunteers to get out the bloc vote for endorsed candidates. (Candidates, of course, also need money.)

Campaign volunteers opportunities abound. Here's a sampling:

Campaign headquarters:

- Fred Hofheinz, 3701 S. Main, 524-5900.
- Sheila Jackson Lee, 4414 S. Main at Richmond, 523-3533.
- Craig Washington, 3702 Travis, 526-1818.

GLPC Election Activities:

Distributing endorsement cards at polling places;

Bloc walking for candidates;

Get-out-the vote phone banking to GLPC's list;

Distributing candidate's signs;

To volunteer for any of these activities, call the GLPC office at 521-1000 or attend a caucus meeting. The caucus will meet twice before the Nov. 7 election, at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18, and Nov. 1., at the City Multi-Service Center, 1475 W. Gray.

future elections is well established. And the gay vote can and is being demonstrated by the age-old method of the political donor and foot soldier—politicians always remember those who give money and those who labor in the headquarters and the precincts.

Our community is not divided over goals or our hopes and aspirations for all gay men and lesbians in Houston. And differences over personalities should not be exploited for the sake of division or personal ambition. Those who labor over the past not to enlighten but to divide do not serve our community well. Unanimity on our goals does not necessitate a single approach. As long as we are willing to listen to each other and work together we shall achieve those goals. Those who exploit our differences serve no goals but their own.

Channel expansion essential

GLPC urges people to support the $130 million Port of Houston bond election on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The bond sale is part of a $319 million project to deepen and widen the Houston Ship Channel.

The channel would be deepened from 40 to 45 feet, and widened from 400 to 530 feet.

The remainder of funds would come from the federal government and local industry.

Five other major Gulf of Mexico ports are already expanding to 45 feet, while New Orleans, Mobile and Texas City are planning to extend to 50 feet or more.

A study by Rice Center estimated that 20,000-27,000 new jobs would be created by the year 2020 because of the expansion.

The Houston Chronicle has endorsed the bond election. The Chron- icle points out that unless the channel is improved, it cannot meet the needs of the world's second largest petrochemical complex, including modern ships.

Widening the channel also "would provide a badly needed safety factor, one that will help protect the environment by making collisions less likely," the Chronicle notes.

As the editorial points out, numerous steps are being taken to ensure environmental damage is minimal.

Reeves seeks Council seat as openly gay candidate

By BRUCE REEVES

First, I would like to thank you for your endorsement.

Second, I will try to answer the question most often asked of me: "Why would an openly gay person choose to run against an incumbent of 10 years in an area as conservative as Memorial and River Oaks?"

My answer is, I have to start somewhere, and where better than the Council district I live in? There are many voters in the district who do not live in Memorial and River Oaks. If we can assume that 10 percent of the voting population of the district is made up of gay and lesbian people, that is more than generally vote in the district.

The only way we will ever elect openly gay and lesbian people to office is to run for those offices, and I am a firm believer that my most ardent enemy as a citizen of this country is a closeted politician — they have proven it too many times.

I firmly believe that I have the skills necessary to represent District G as City Councilmember. I have leadership experience that ranges from being a Scoutmaster in the Westbury area for three years to serving as co-chair of Lesbian/Gay Pride Week 1988. The Advocate recognized me as one of the country's "21 Unsung Heroes" for my work in the lesbian and gay community. I hope to have the opportunity to use my skills to help our city.

I feel the city needs a quality program that would allow all employees of the city a better avenue to suggest needed changes in their jobs/departments and to be able to do this safely. The best people to determine where money can be saved without reducing jobs, salaries, or the quality of services are the people who work in those jobs.

It is time our city had new blood with new ideas. Our city can only grow by changing, and change cannot happen without new ideas — and someone who is willing to put their neck on the line (if necessary) to express those ideas. I am that person.

Since serving as a page in the U.S. Congress in 1976, I have been drawn to the political arena. With your support, perhaps I can be the first openly gay elected official in the city of Houston.

BLOC votes have changed history. The black civil rights movement, for instance, registered and bloc voted hundreds of public officials into office.

Bloc voting is one reason cities such as Chicago, New York and San Francisco have equal rights protection that includes gay men and women, and cities such as Houston and Dallas do not.

For 14 years, Houston Gay & Lesbian Political Caucus has worked hard to increase the community's bloc vote. This year, GLPC will mail its carefully considered endorsements to thousands more supporters and will spend far more on advertising and precinct efforts.

But each piece of the bloc costs money. For example:

$68.50 Postage to reach 500 more voters

$13.00 Cost of 20 returned, address-corrected newsletters

Post/commentary

The Hofheinz Years

Lulled by its continuing success, Houston was content with things as they were when Fred Hofheinz took office in January 1974. With a law degree and a doctorate in economics, the young mayor brought a new viewpoint to City Hall — an analytical eye that saw long neglected problems and major weaknesses in the city's structure. He jolted Houston off the status quo and tackled the worst problems first.

Houston's sewerage was deplorable. The federal government was ready to go to court to stop further construction. Some parts of town had no sewer pipes at all. Because of the long neglect, the massive effort to improve forced a sharp rise in water and sewer bills — a rise that should have been coming gradually over the past several years. But the people of Houston saw that the job had to be done. We made a commitment to repair and to build that met the standards of the Environmental Protection Agency. And recently Houston broke ground for the 69th Street water treatment facility, the keystone of the $500 million sewer modernization.

In transit, Houston bought the bus company, gaining more than $13 million in federal aid, and began to buy new buses and expand routes. Hofheinz established an office of transportation. In four years we have gained a long-range plan and made starts with park-and-ride lots, contraflow lanes and, with the state enabling act, a new Houston Metropolitan Transit Authority with an interim board. It will offer voters a plan for a countywide transit system.

To pay for the bus company and finance fire and police improvements, the city increased property taxes 8.6 percent. It also began a regular four-year property valuation cycle. Houston gained a Triple A financial rating, the highest possible, thereby saving the city hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest paid. The passage of the ethics code and the financial disclosure ordinances were achieved by the mayor and City Council working together.

In the four Hofheinz years, Houston tripled the amount of public funds spent on parks over the preceding four, and established a Houston Parks Board to seek contributions. Houston's library system expanded and gained in quality. As one of his first acts in office, Hofheinz had stopped the plan to strip City Hall of its irreplaceable marbles and ornamental metal work, and now the building has been restored to its original elegance. The mayor and City Council recently adopted a hotel-motel tax to guarantee a steady flow of city funds into the major visual and performing arts organizations. They established the Cullen Arts Council to channel the funds. All these are lasting measures for enhancement of the city.

Hofheinz introduced a management and information system, common to big business but new to Houston city government. The computer data banks enable the city to know at any one moment exactly what it has spent on each item of government and service. Hofheinz brought blacks, Mexican Americans and women into city departments they had never before entered. And he attracted to City Hall an outstanding administration of talented, dedicated people.

No mayor leaves office content. He can always see more he wants to get done. Houston still has many problems of rapid growth to solve. But Hofheinz made this city see the problems and do something about them. He accomplished much, he gave us a strong start on more. Fred Hofheinz has been a good mayor and Houston owes him warm thanks.

Hofheinz platform excerpts

Fred Hofheinz has written numerous position papers on the crucial issues facing Houstonians. Following are excerpts from those papers.

AIDS

Ever since the defeat of the gay rights referendum in 1985, Kathy Whitmire has pushed gays and what she sees as gay issues away from her. Unfortunately, that includes the massive problem of AIDS.

Whitmire has only paid lip service to the AIDS problem, creating committees which have done little to stop the spread of this disease.

When the City had its first opportunity to apply as a separate entity for federal funding for AIDS, Whitmire's Health Department director kept much of the money for his department, leaving out the community-based organizations who dealt with AIDS for years before government became involved. And those organizations have suffered through a bureaucratic nightmare trying to obtain from the city what little money they were given.

The Hofheinz Agenda on AIDS

Hofheinz is dedicated to fighting AIDS, helping those who have contracted the disease and trying to prevent it from spreading any further. He and state funding for AIDS treatment and education.

- * Working with community-based organizations to provide funding and assistance.

Waste, Fraud and Abuse in City Government

Hofheinz's agenda includes:

- * Assembling a Citizens' Advisory Board of members of Houston's private sector for policy recommendations on increased efficiency and elimination of mismanagement in city government.

Police, Crime and Drugs

His agenda includes:

- * Establishment of a Narcotics Response Command consisting of legal and law enforcement personnel to take action to confiscate drug dealers' assets, raze crack houses, continually raid drug markets and coordinate action with other government bodies.

Business and Economic Development

The agenda includes:

- * Construction of a downtown hotel in proximity to the George R. Brown Convention Center.

PROPOSITION 1 — House Joint Resolution 102 proposes an amendment to increase the salary of state Legislators and the lieutenant governor from the current annual salary of $7,200 to $46,716 for the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House, and to $23,358 for state Legislators.

GLPC recommends a FOR vote. At the current salary level of $7,200 a year, access to public office is limited to wealthier citizens with very flexible schedules. Texas ranks as one of the lowest-paying states for legislative salaries. Increasing salaries to more realistic levels would open the election process to more qualified candidates (for example, gay men and women, and other minorities).

PROPOSITION 2 — Senate Joint Resolution 5 proposes an amendment to authorize the Texas Water Development Board to issue an additional $500 million of Texas water development bonds to be used for water supply loans, water quality enhancement projects, and flood control.

GLPC recommends voting For this amendment because it would allow economically depressed counties and Texas communities to obtain much-needed water projects, and would support flood control projects needed in PROPOSITION 8 — Senate Joint Resolution 8 proposes an amendment to allow the Legislature to authorize issuing up to $400 million in general obligation bonds to construct new correctional facilities, mental health retardation institutes, youth correctional facilities, and to repair or renovate existing facilities.

GLPC recommends AGAINST. The majority of funds would go solely to create or expand correctional facilities to house more youth and first-time offenders in need of vocational or educational rehabilitation programs, which are not addressed in this amendment.

PROPOSITION 9 — House Joint Resolution 101 would allow the Legislature to pass laws to organize and combine state agencies that perform criminal justice functions, such as the Texas Dept. of Corrections, the Board of Pardons and Paroles, and the Texas Adult Probation Commission.

A vote AGAINST is recommended. Combination of these agencies would result in a disturbing concentration of power in the Texas Department of Corrections. Passage of this amendment would mean a loss of autonomy for agencies such as the Pardons and Parole Board that have opposed past TDC policies regarding the treatment of PROPOSITION 10 — Senate Joint Resolution 4 would authorize the Legislature to enact laws requiring or permitting judges to advise juries that convicted defendants can receive credit for good conduct which can result in a shorter prison term, or that eligibility for parole or mandatory supervision also can affect the length of time served.

GLPC recommends a vote AGAINST. Release of this information to juries prior to sentencing could result in excessive prison terms.

PROPOSITION 11 — House Joint Resolution 102 would increase the per diem of Texas Legislators to an amount equal to the deduction allowed for federal income tax purposes. The per diem would increase from $30 to $81.

GLPC suggests voting For this amendment. The increase would give Texas Legislators the same per diem as other state and federal employees.

PROPOSITION 13 — Houston Joint Resolution 19 proposes the creation of a bill of rights for crime victims allowing them to receive notification of court proceedings and the right to be present at all public court proceedings, the right to restitution, and the right to information about conviction and sentencing.

The Caucus recommends voting FOR for this amendment. It would give more rights to the victims, including the victims of hate crimes motivated by prejudice and homophobia.

Bloc vote key to political power

By RAY HILL

Only a few years ago, the Gay and Lesbian community was politically invisible: Few of us were registered to vote, and when we did, we each voted for different candidates. If the community needed something from politicians, a few of us took the back stairs, hats in hands, and begged for mercy, all the while looking at the floor with our heads bowed.

I literally remember doing that in Larry McKaskle's office when he was Louie Welch's administrative aide. I did not ask for much, got less, but had to cope with some of my closeted friends campaigning for Welch in the popular gay bars of the era.

In 1975, some of us were bold enough to think we could make things better by organizing politically. The Caucus was born that year. Many said it would not work. The reasons they gave were: gays are too flighty; men and women in our community can't get along; we can never agree which candidate to support; we just will not vote; politicians will not listen to us; and it will tion that does business in the name of gay and lesbian voters, the Houston Gay and Lesbian Political Caucus.

I agree that it is easier to keep the bloc vote together in those election years when there are several pages of judges on the ballot whose names are not household words as are those of mayors and Council members. It is still important to vote as a bloc in city and special elections. In previous elections we have asked you to vote for candidates we are opposing in this election. We do not ask you to do so lightly.

The process by which the endorsements were made has been an open one. Much has been written in the community media. I even did an informal poll and reported the results months before the endorsement meeting so those who were behind would have time to work toward their gave were: gays are too flighty; men and women in our community can't get along; we can never agree which candidate to support; we just will not vote; politicians will not listen to us; and it will not make any difference anyway.

All of that has been proven untrue. Our strength grew slowly at first, but by 1978 we were growing rapidly. Our influence was significant until the 1985 city employment referendum and the public perception of AIDS knocked the wind from our sails and handicapped our optimism.

After 1985 we suffered a decline, but this year the Caucus has experienced more growth than in any year since 1984.

Perhaps the growth has been a product of our realizing the reasons for our organizing in the first place have not gone away. Perhaps growth came about because we have been more visible or more controversial this year than in years previous. Or maybe the shame of the 1985 defeat has decreased while our anger over the city's cold inaction as our friends have died from AIDS has increased.

Whatever the reason, the hope of political influence is back. Our community is talking politics, and politicians are talking to and about our community. We must take full advantage of this opportunity to capitalize on and continue our present growth.

In this ELECTION NEWS, you will find the Caucus endorsements of candidates and positions on the referenda at the bottom of the ballot. If you choose not to follow these endorsements you are helping return us to the days of invisibility.

the community media. I even did an informal poll and reported the results months before the endorsement meeting so those who were behind would have time to work toward their endorsements.

TWT and the Montrose Voice, as well as the gay and lesbian programs on KPFT, reported each step of the process. Wherever I went, many of you stopped me to discuss the process and the direction it was taking. We have never had a more open process.

As always, anyone was invited to join GLPC and vote. People who join 30 days before an election are eligible to vote on any GLPC endorsement. This will be one of the dirtiest campaigns in recent memory. The Caucus and I will be attacked from several quarters in an attempt to tarnish the endorsements.

Do not be deceived; the Caucus made the only decision possible in defense of our community.

We did not take a position in all races. Please carefully consider the options in the races where no endorsement was made. On referenda where the Caucus took no position, remember you are voting on proposed changes to the Texas Constitution and will have to live with those changes for a long time.

If you have not carefully considered each issue, cast no vote. The wording of issues on the ballot is often deliberately confusing.

All of the candidates endorsed by the Caucus came forward and asked for their endorsements. Each is proud to have your support, and all deserve your vote.
