Spotlight shines bright on performers

By Joey Guerra

The Houston LGBT Pride celebration is putting a dose of pop in its 35th anniversary.

Jaymes Vaughan and James Davis, this year's celebrity grand marshals, headline the Pride Festival entertainment. The duo competed as Team Chippendales on "The Amazing Race," coming in second during Season 21. They will perform new, original songs during the festival (1-7 p.m. on June 29 in Montrose). Vaughan is a singer and Davis plays guitar. They employ those talents, among others, during a nightly Chippendales show in their own theater in Las Vegas.

Also topping the lineup is singer Alexis Jordan, who has scored three consecutive No. 1 singles on the Billboard dance chart, including recent topper "Acid Rain." She was a semifinalist on the first season of "America's Got Talent" at just 14 years single, "R U Jealous Yet," is picking up steam all over the country. She graduated from the University of Texas and recently premiered the summery clip.

Also topping the lineup is singer Alexis Jordan, who has scored three consecutive No. 1 singles on the Billboard dance chart, including recent topper "Acid Rain." She was a semifinalist on the first season of "America's Got Talent" at just 14 years old and eventually signed to Jay-Z's RocNation label. Jordan has scored several hits overseas and racked up millions of views for her YouTube covers. She is working on her second album.

The lineup also includes several promising pop locals. Houston native Chanel Dror's debut single, "R U Jealous Yet," is picking up steam all over the country. She graduated from the University of Texas and recently premiered the summery clip.

Lauren Miller is a local pop singer and performer with the Houston Burlesque Revue. She's performed at Bayou Music Center, AvantGarden, Cullens Live and Jones Hall. She was the Pride SuperStar 2011 runner-up.

Christian Andreason and Kitten Kay Sera will team up to debut new single "Damn U."

Andreason is a pop singer and motivational life coach. Sera is likely familiar to folks as a character actress and reality star of sorts. She's only worn pink for the past three decades and has been featured on "The Dog Whisperer," "Good Morning America," "Talk Soup" and other programs. She's also a native Houstonian. Her song "Sex Kitten" features backing vocals from a young Beyoncé and Kelly Rowland.

Jess Walker featured a soulful pop sound last year on first single "Bones" and is finishing up a new EP. She's opened for the likes of Nina Hagen and God-Des & She and debuted music video "First & Last" in April.

Courtney Locke graduated from Taylor High School in Katy in 2008 and released "Last Dance" last month, a riff on the Donna Summer classic. She's the reigning Miss Ark-La-Texas (a tri-state pageant) and recently performed the national anthem before an Astros game at Minute Maid Park. Locke was inspired to join the lineup by her dad, who is gay.

Leo Laredo made an impression during the Pride Superstar competition.

Putting together the perfect playlist

By Joey Guerra

“Light Up the Skies,” Jaymes Vaughan and James Davis: A guitar-driven pop track with a simple hook (“We’ve got tonight/Let’s make it right”) that calls to mind the Black Eyed Peas.

“Happiness,” Alexis Jordan: International dance smash with lyrics — “Through strength I found love/In time I found myself in happiness ...” — that could double as a Pride anthem.

“R U Jealous Yet,” Chanel Dror: This breezy anthem seems tailor-made for summers in Houston. And not just because Dror is from here.

“First & Last,” Jess Walker: A soulful pop original from the burgeoning Houston act. It’ll be stuck in your head after a single listen.

“I Wanna Be an Amazing Man,” Christian Andreason: A self-empowering anthem about being a better person and remembering that we are all, indeed, created equal.

“Sex Kitten,” Kitten Kay Sera featuring Beyoncé and Kelly Rowland: Before they became icons, the bulk of Destiny’s

NBC

Sarah Golden performed on Season 2 of “The Voice.”

Child provided backup on this ‘60s-inspired tune from the woman who only wears pink.

“Just Praise,” Leo Laredo: The Pride Superstar finalist goes to church on this autobiographical tune about embracing his musicality.

“Hold Me Down,” Wendy Taylor: Another PSS contender (and “American Idol” top 42 hopeful) wails like a diva on this urgent original from her EP.

“I’m in Love With a Girl (But She Used to Be a Man),” the Sexual Side Effects: This one explains it all in the title. (Atlanta rock band SSE, led by transgender singer Amber Taylor, performed at the 2012 Pride Festival).

“Wild World,” Sarah Golden: A stirring song about preconceived notions and stereotypes. Local folk favorite Golden was seen on Season 2 of “The Voice” and performed at the 2012 Pride Festival.

celebrating the court ruling.

"That's how amazing this past decision was," said Frankie Quijano, CEO and president of Pride Houston. "This year, above all years, is definitely a time to celebrate because we've worked so hard as a community to get equal treatment."

Darrin Brindle and his partner, Mark Eggleston, were legally wed in California when the state first began issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples in 2008. They say the landmark decision was a reason to celebrate, but it's just a "stepping stone" on the journey to equal rights and acceptance for the LGBT community.

Cheers and kisses

"It was a lot of hugging and kissing going on," said Brindle, who watched at home as the decision was announced on Wednesday. "There was just a lot of joy and there was also a lot of hope for the future."

Food trucks and tents lined Westheimer Road between Dunlavy and Montrose in the early afternoon to prepare for the pride celebration. The summer heat was intense — temperatures soaring well above 100 degrees — but it didn't stop people from arriving early to claim the best spots to watch the parade that started later in the night.

"Pride Unleashed" was this year's official theme, and some couples chose to display their pride in front of protesters who showed up with signs declaring homosexuality a sin. One couple stopped right in front of the demonstrators to kiss, drawing cheers from the crowd across the street.

Hope for Texas' future

"It's almost like a joke that those people would even show up," Eggleston said of the protesters. "But that's what they choose to do despite the growing support we get."

Thirteen states currently recognize legal same-sex marriage, but the decision has little impact on the second largest state in the nation.

"I would love to see Texans open up their minds a little more and be more accepting," Ronny Adriansyah said in response to whether same-sex marriages would ever be legal in Texas.

"You can't prevent people from falling in love and they're going to want to get married," said Adriansyah, "because ... that's one of the basic needs of all human beings."

HOUSTON PRIDE FESTIVAL 400,000-plus show up to party with a purpose

A sizable crowd was in a celebratory mood on Saturday for the 35th annual Houston Pride Festival and Parade in Montrose. The U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision to dismiss a portion of the Defense of Marriage Act fueled the festive atmosphere for the events. See story, page B1.
